Costs.

109. The costs of all necessary correspondence in admiralty actions shall be allowed by the registrar.

Costs of solicitor acting as agent out of the district.

When it becomes necessary to employ a solicitor to act as agent out of the district of the court for the purpose of obtaining the evidence of witnesses on the trial of an action, a reference before the registrar, or the taxation of costs, or for any other necessary purpose, the costs of such agent and of instructing him shall be allowed by the registrar.

111. Where any party is allowed at the trial or any adjournment thereof to avail himself of any defence, set off, or counterclaim of which notice should have been given before the trial, the judge in exercising his discretion as to costs shall consider what effect the non-delivery of such notice has had in the action. Rule 111. Costs where defence, etc., which should have been pleaded is allowed at trial.

112. In admiralty actions where the amount recovered, or in the case of a defendant the amount claimed, does not exceed 20*l.*, the costs shall be allowed under column B., unless the judge otherwise orders. Costs where less than 20*l.* recovered or claimed.

Application of order to proceedings in Admiralty under 57 & 58 Vict. c. 60, and other Acts.

In cases where no provision is made by the County Court Admiralty Jurisdiction Acts, or by this Order XXXIX., the general practice of the court shall be followed (see Order L. r. 36).

As regards a jury, however, the word "actions" in sect. 101 of the County Courts Act, 1888, does not include admiralty actions; therefore, in an admiralty cause, the defendants are not entitled as of right to a jury; if one party desires a jury, and the other party a trial before the judge with or without assessors, no jury ought to be sworn (The Tynwald, (1895) P. 142; 64 L. J. P. 1; The Theodora, (1897) P. 279; 66 L. J. P. 50; see also Metropolitan Asylums Board v. Sparrow, (1913) W. N. 115; 29 T. L. R. 450).

[Title of Action.]

Whereas by the judgment [or order] in this action, dated the day of 19 (or by consent of the parties upon an admission of liability, or as the case may be), the damages recoverable by the plaintiff (or by the defendant on his counterclaim) have been referred to me [and (if so) to two assessors] to report the amount thereof.

Now, I hereby report that I have, [with the assistance of Messrs. and the assessors appointed], carefully examined the claim and vouchers filed in this action, and having heard evidence on affidavit and viva voce (or as the case may be) on behalf of the plaintiff and defendant, I find that the defendant is indebted to the plaintiff (or vice versâ) in the sum of £ , as shown by the schedule hereto annexed, which sets forth in separate columns the several amounts claimed and the amounts which I [in conjunction with the said assessors] consider justly due to him in respect to each item.

I am of opinion that interest at the rate of 4*l.* per cent. per annum from the day of 19 , should be allowed on the said sum of £ until the date of payment.

I am further of opinion that the costs of the reference should be paid by the defendant or [plaintiff]. (If for any special reasons, add reasons.)

Right of suing on allotment notes.

143.—(1) The person in whose favour an allotment note under this Act is made may, unless the seaman is shown, in manner in this Act specified, to have forfeited or ceased to be entitled to the wages out of which the allotment is to be paid, recover the sums allotted, when and as the same are made payable, with costs from the owner of the ship with respect to which the engagement was made, or from any agent of the owner who has authorised the allotment, in the same court and manner in which wages of seamen not exceeding fifty pounds may be recovered under this Act; provided that the wife of a seaman, if she deserts her children, or so misconducts herself as to be undeserving of support from her husband, shall forfeit all right to further payments under any allotment made in her favour.

(2) In any proceeding for such recovery, it shall be sufficient for the claimant to prove that he is the person mentioned in the note, and that the note was given by the owner or by the master or some authorised agent; and the seaman shall be presumed to be duly earning his wages, unless the contrary is shown to the satisfaction of the court, either—

(a) by the official statement of the change in the crew caused by his absence, made and signed by the master, as by this Act is required, or

(b) by a certified copy of some entry in the official log book to the effect that he has left the ship, or

(c) by a credible letter from the master of the ship to the same effect, or

(d) by such other evidence as the court in their absolute discretion consider sufficient to show satisfactorily that the seaman has ceased to be entitled to the wages out of which the allotment is to be paid.

B. 616; 83 L. J. (K. B.) 596, following and applying Westminster Corporation v. Gordon Hotels, (1908) A. C. 142; 77 L. J. K. B. 220.

165. A proceeding for the recovery of wages not exceeding fifty pounds shall not be instituted by or on behalf of any seaman or apprentice to the sea service in any superior court of record in Her Majesty's dominions, nor as an admiralty proceeding in any court having admiralty jurisdiction in those dominions, except: Restrictions on suits for wages.

See notes to sect. 3, sub-s 2 of the County Courts Admiralty Jurisdiction Act, 1868 (31 & 32 Vict. c. 71), under heads "Limitation of Jurisdiction in Suits for Wages," and "Other Claims Recoverable as Wages," ante, pp. 1200, 1201.

Wages not recoverable abroad in certain cases.

(2) If a seaman on his return to the United Kingdom proves that the master or owner has been guilty of any conduct or default which but for this section would have entitled the seaman to sue for wages before the termination of the voyage or engagement, he shall be entitled to recover in addition to his wages such compensation not exceeding twenty pounds as the court hearing the case thinks reasonable.

Section 167.

Remedies of master for wages, disbursements, etc.

(3) If in any admiralty proceeding in any court having admiralty jurisdiction touching the claim of a master in respect of wages, or of such disbursements, or liabilities as aforesaid, any right of set-off or counterclaim is set up, the court may enter into and adjudicate upon all questions, and settle all accounts then arising or outstanding and unsettled between the parties to the proceeding, and may direct payment of any balance found to be due.

[NOTE.—For the considerable amount of case law bearing upon this important section reference should be made to a leading text-book upon the Act, as it is beyond the scope of this work.]

459.—(1) Where a British ship, being in any port in the United Kingdom, is an unsafe ship, that is to say, is by reason of the defective condition of her hull, equipments, or machinery, or by reason of undermanning, or by reason of overloading or improper loading, unfit to proceed to sea without serious danger to human life, having regard to the nature of the service for which she is intended, such ship may be provisionally detained for the purpose of being surveyed, or for ascertaining the sufficiency of her crew, and either finally detained or released as follows :—

(a) The Board of Trade, if they have reason to believe, on complaint or otherwise, that a British ship is unsafe, may order the ship to be provisionally detained as an unsafe ship for the purpose of being surveyed.

(b) When a ship has been provisionally detained there shall be forthwith served on the master of the ship a written statement of the grounds of her detention, and the Board of Trade may, if they think fit, appoint some competent person or persons to survey the ship and report thereon to the Board.

(c) The Board of Trade on receiving the report may either order the ship to be released, or, if in their opinion the ship is unsafe, may order her to be finally detained, either absolutely, or until the performance of such conditions with respect to the execution of repairs or alterations, or the unloading or reloading of cargo, or the manning of the ship, as the Board think necessary for the protection of human life, and the Board may vary or add to any such order.

(d) Before the order for final detention is made a copy of the report shall be served upon the master of the ship, and within seven days after that service the owner or master of the ship may appeal to the court of survey for the port or district where the ship is detained in manner directed by the rules of that court.

(e) Where a ship has been provisionally detained, the owner or master of the ship, at any time before the person appointed under this section to survey the ship makes that survey, may require that he shall be accompanied by such person as the owner or master may select out of the list of assessors for the court of survey, and in that case if the surveyor and assessor agree, the Board of Trade shall cause the ship to be detained or released accordingly, but if they differ, the Board of Trade may act as if the requisition had not been made, and the owner and master shall have the like appeal touching the report of the surveyor as is before provided by this section.

(f) Where a ship has been provisionally detained, the Board of Trade may at any time, if they think it expedient, refer the matter to the court of survey for the port or district where the ship is detained.

(g) The Board of Trade may at any time, if satisfied that a ship detained under this section is not unsafe, order her to be released either upon or without any conditions.

Undermanning.]—This section was extended to undermanning by sect. 1, sub-s. 1, of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1897 (60 & 61 Vict c. 59), post, p. 1317. See sect. 8 (2) of the Merchant Shipping (Convention) Act, 1914, post, p. 1349.

(3) A detaining officer shall forthwith report to the Board of Trade any order made by him for the detention or release of a ship.

(4) An order for the detention of a ship, provisonal or final, and an order varying the same, shall be served as soon as may be on the master of the ship.

(5) A ship detained under this section shall not be released by reason of her British register being subsequently closed.

(6) The Board of Trade may with the consent of the Treasury appoint fit persons to act as detaining officers under this section and may remove any such officer; and a detaining officer shall be paid such salary or remuneration (if any) out of money provided by Parliament as the Treasury direct, and shall for the purpose of his duties have all the powers of a Board of Trade inspector under this Act.

(7) A detaining officer and a person authorised to survey a ship under this section shall for that purpose have the same power as a person appointed by a court of survey to survey a

(2) If a ship is finally detained under this Act, or if it appears that a ship provisionally detained was, at the time of that detention, an unsafe ship within the meaning of this Part of this Act, the owner of the ship shall be liable to pay to the Board of Trade their costs of and incidental to the detention and survey of the ship, and those costs shall, without prejudice to any other remedy, be recoverable as salvage is recoverable.

(3) For the purpose of this section the costs of and incidental to any proceeding before a court of survey, and a reasonable amount in respect of the remuneration of the surveyor or officer of the Board of Trade, shall be part of the costs of the detention and survey of the ship, and any dispute as to the amount of those costs may be referred to one of the officers following, namely in England or Ireland to one of the masters or registrars of the High Court, and in Scotland to the auditor of the Court of Session, and the officer shall, on request of the Board of Trade, ascertain and certify the proper amount of those costs.

(4) An action for any costs or compensation payable by the Board of Trade under this section may be brought against the Secretary of that Board by his official title as if he were a corporation sole, and if the cause of action arises in Ireland, and the action is brought in the High Court, that court may order that the summons or writ may be served on the Crown and Treasury Solicitor for Ireland in such manner and on such terms respecting extension of time and otherwise as the court thinks fit, and that service shall be sufficient service of the summons or writ upon the Secretary of the Board of Trade.

(2) Any damage sustained by an owner or occupier in consequence of the exercise of the rights given by this section shall be a charge on the vessel, cargo, or articles in respect of or by which the damage is occasioned and the amount payable in respect of the damage shall, in case of dispute, be determined, and shall, in default of payment, be recoverable in the same manner as the amount of salvage is under this Part of this Act determined or recoverable.

Section 545.

545. When it is made to appear to Her Majesty that the government of any foreign country is willing that salvage should be awarded by British courts for services rendered in saving life from ships belonging to that country, when the ship is beyond the limits of British jurisdiction, Her Majesty may, by Order in Council, direct that the provisions of this Part of this Act with reference to salvage of life shall, subject to any conditions and qualifications contained in the Order, apply, and those provisions shall accordingly apply to those services as if they were rendered in saving life from ships within British jurisdiction.

Salvage of cargo or wreck.

546. Where any vessel is wrecked, stranded, or in distress at any place on or near the coasts of the United Kingdom or any tidal water within the limits of the United Kingdom, and services are rendered by any person in assisting that vessel or saving the cargo or apparel of that vessel or any part thereof, and where services are rendered by any person other than a receiver in saving any wreck, there shall be payable to the salvor by the owner of the vessel, cargo, apparel, or wreck, a reasonable amount of salvage to be determined in case of dispute in manner hereinafter mentioned.

(2) Subject as hereinafter mentioned, the receiver shall detain the vessel and the cargo and apparel, or the wreck (hereinafter referred to as detained property) until payment is made for salvage, or process is issued for the arrest or detention thereof by some competent court.

(3) A receiver may release any detained property if security is given to his satisfaction or, if the claim for salvage exceeds two hundred pounds and any question is raised as to the sufficiency of the security, to the satisfaction in England or Ireland of the High Court, and in Scotland of the Court of Session, including any division of that court, or the Lord Ordinary officiating on the bills during vacation.

(4) Any security given for salvage in pursuance of this section to an amount exceeding two hundred pounds may be enforced by such court as aforesaid in the same manner as if bail had been given in that court.

554.—(1) Where services for which salvage is claimed are rendered either by the commander or crew or part of the crew of any of Her Majesty's ships or of any other ship, and the salvor voluntarily agrees to abandon his lien upon the ship, cargo, and property alleged to be salved, then, upon the master entering into a written agreement attested by two witnesses to abide the decision of the High Court in England, or of a Vice-Admiralty Court or Colonial Court of Admiralty, and thereby giving security in that behalf to an amount agreed on by the parties to the agreement, that agreement shall bind the ship, and the cargo, and freight respectively, and the respective owners of the ship, cargo, and freight, and their respective heirs, executors, and administrators, for the salvage which may be adjudged to be payable in respect of the ship, cargo, and freight respectively to the extent of the security given.

(2) If the master fails, without reasonable cause, to comply with this section, the expenses of maintenance and of the journey to the proper return port,—

(a) if defrayed by the seaman, shall be recoverable as wages due to him ; and

(b) if defrayed by the proper authority or by any other person, shall (unless the seaman has been guilty of barratry) be a charge upon the ship to which the seaman belonged, and may also be recovered against the person who is the owner of the ship for the time being, or, where the ship has been lost, against the person who was the owner of the ship at the time of the loss, or, where the ship has been transferred to some person not being a British subject, either against the owner for the time being or against the person who was the owner of the ship at the time of the transfer, at the suit of the proper authority or other person defraying the expenses, or, in case they have been allowed to the authority or person out of public money, as a debt to the Crown, either by ordinary process of law or in the court and in the manner in which wages may be recovered by seamen.

(3) This section shall not apply in the case of a foreign seaman who has been shipped at a port out of the United Kingdom and discharged at a port out of the United Kingdom.

As to mode of recovering wages, see sects. 164 et seq. of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894.

Discharge, etc., of seamen on change of ownership of ship at a foreign port.

33.—(1) Where a British ship is transferred or disposed of at any port out of His Majesty's dominions, any seaman belonging to that ship shall be discharged unless the seaman consents in writing in the presence of the proper authority as defined for the purpose in this part of this Act to complete the voyage of the ship if continued.

(2) Where a seaman is so discharged the provisions of this Part of this Act as to the certificate of discharge, and the return of the seaman to a proper return port, shall apply as if the service of the

Section 33.

Expenses of medical attendance in case of injury or illness.

34.—(1) If the master of, or a seaman belonging to, a ship receives any hurt or injury in the service of the ship, or suffers from any illness (not being venereal disease, or an illness due to his own wilful act or default or to his own misbehaviour), the expense of providing the necessary surgical and medical advice and attendance and medicine, and also the expenses of the maintenance of the master or seaman until he is cured, or dies, or is returned to a proper return port, and of his conveyance to the port, and in the case of death the expense (if any) of his burial, shall be defrayed by the owner of the ship, without any deduction on that account from his wages.

(2) If the master or a seaman is on account of any illness temporarily removed from his ship for the purpose of preventing infection, or otherwise for the convenience of the ship, and subsequently returns to his duty, the expense of the removal and of providing the necessary advice and attendance and medicine, and of his maintenance while away from the ship shall be defrayed in like manner.

(3) The expense of all medicines, surgical and medical advice, and attendance, given to a master or seaman whilst on board his ship shall be defrayed in like manner.

Recovery of expenses from owner.

35.—(1) If any of the expenses attendant on the illness, hurt, or injury of a seaman, which are to be paid under the Merchant Shipping Acts by the master or owner, are paid by any authority on behalf of the Crown, or if any other expenses in respect of the illness, hurt, or injury of any seaman whose wages are not accounted for under the Merchant Shipping Acts to that authority, are so paid, those expenses shall be repaid to the authority by the master or owner of the ship.

(2) If the expenses are not so repaid, the amount thereof shall with costs be a charge upon the ship, and be recoverable from the master or from the owner of the ship for the time being, or where the ship has been lost from the person who was the owner of the ship at the time of the loss, or, where the ship has been transferred to some person not being a British subject, either from the owner for the time being or from the person who was the owner of the ship at the time of the transfer, as a debt to the Crown, either by ordinary process of law or in the court and in the manner in which wages may be recovered by seamen.

(3) In any proceeding for such recovery, a certificate of the facts, signed by the said authority, together with such vouchers (if any) as the case requires, shall be sufficient proof that the said expenses were duly paid by that authority.

As to mode of recovering wages, see sects. 164 et seq. of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894.

(2) If a master fails without reasonable cause to deliver the account, he shall for each offence be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding ten pounds, and, if he knowingly delivers a false account, he shall for each offence be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding twenty pounds, in addition in each case to the payment of the wages.

38.—(1) The master shall pay the amount of wages due to a seaman left behind on the ground of his unfitness or inability to proceed to sea, if he is left in a British possession to the seaman himself, and if he is left elsewhere to the British consular officer.

(2) Where payment is made to a British consular officer, that officer shall retain one duplicate of the account delivered to him, and, if satisfied with the account, endorse on the other duplicate a receipt for the payment, and return it to the master, and the master shall deliver the duplicate within forty-eight hours of his return to his port of destination, if that port is in the United Kingdom, to the superintendent at that port, and, if that port is not in the United Kingdom, to the proper authority as defined for the purpose of this Part of this Act.

(3) The payment shall be made, whenever it is practicable, in money, and, when not so practicable, by bills drawn on the owner of the ship, but if payment is made by bill—

(a) the person signing the required certificate of the proper authority shall certify by endorsement on the bill that the bill is drawn for seamen's wages, and shall also endorse on the agreement with the crew the amount for which the bill is drawn, and such further particulars as the Board of Trade require;

(b) if the bill is drawn by the master, the owner of the ship shall be liable to pay the amount to the holder or endorsee thereof; and it shall not be necessary in any proceeding against the owner upon the bill to prove that the master had authority to draw it;

(c) a bill purporting to be drawn and endorsed under this section shall, if produced out of the custody of the Board of Trade or of the Registrar-General of Shipping and Seamen, or of any superintendent, be admissible in evidence; and any endorsement on any such bill purporting to be made in pursuance of this section shall also be admissible as evidence of the facts stated in the endorsement.

(4) If a master fails, without reasonable cause, to make such payment of wages as provided by this section, he shall for each offence be liable on summary conviction, in addition to the payment of the wages, to a fine not exceeding ten pounds.

Application by British consular officer of payments on account of wages of seamen left behind.

39. Where the amount of wages due to a seaman left behind on the ground of his unfitness or inability to proceed to sea is so paid to a British consular officer, that officer shall deal with the sum so paid to him in the following manner, namely:—

(1) If the seaman subsequently obtains employment at or quits the port at which the payment has been made, he shall deduct out of the sum any expenses incurred by him in respect of the maintenance of the seaman under the Merchant Shipping Acts, except such as the owner or master is by the Merchant Shipping Acts required to defray, and shall pay the remainder to the seaman, and deliver to him an account of the sums so received and expended on his behalf;

(2) If the seaman dies before his ship quits the port, he shall deal with the sum as part of the property of a deceased seaman; and

(3) If the seaman is sent to a proper return port at the public expense under the Merchant Shipping Acts, he shall account for the sum to the Board of Trade; and the sum, after deducting any expenses duly incurred in respect of the seaman, except such expenses as the master or owner of the ship is required by the Merchant Shipping Acts to pay, shall be dealt with as wages of the seaman.

Section 40.

Regulations as to relief and maintenance of distressed seamen.

40. The Board of Trade shall make regulations with respect to the relief, maintenance, and return to a proper return port of shipwrecked seamen and of seamen found otherwise in distress in any place out of the United Kingdom, and may, by those regulations (in this Act referred to as the distressed seamen regulations), make such conditions as they think fit with regard to that relief, maintenance, and sending to a proper return port, and a seaman shall not have any right to be relieved, maintained, or sent to a proper return port, except in the cases and to the extent and on the conditions provided by those regulations.

41.—(1) Where either—

(a) any seamen, whether subjects of His Majesty or not, are found in any place out of the United Kingdom, and have been shipwrecked from any British ship or any of His Majesty's ships, or by reason of having been discharged or left behind from any such ship in any place out of the United Kingdom, are in distress in that place, or

(b) any seamen, being subjects of His Majesty, who have been engaged by any person acting either as principal or agent to serve in a ship belonging to the government or to a subject or citizen of a foreign country, are in distress in any place out of the United Kingdom, the proper authority as defined for the purpose in this Part of this Act may, and, if not a merchant, shall, in accordance with and on the conditions prescribed by the distressed seamen regulations, provide in accordance with this Act for the return of those seamen (who are in this Act included in the term distressed seamen) to a proper return port, and also provide for their necessary clothing and their maintenance until their departure for such a port, and, in addition, in the case of shipwrecked seamen for the repayment of any expenses incurred in their conveyance to port after their shipwreck, and their maintenance while being so conveyed.

(2) The authority shall be paid in respect of the expenses incurred under this section on behalf of distressed seamen such sums as the Board of Trade may allow, and those sums shall, on the production of the bills of disbursements, with the proper vouchers, be paid as provided by this Part of this Act.

Recovery of expenses of relief of distressed seamen.

42.—(1) Where any expenses (other than excepted expenses as defined by this section) are incurred by or on behalf of the Crown, or are incurred by the government of a foreign country, and repaid to that government by or on behalf of the Crown, on account of a distressed seaman, either for his maintenance, necessary clothing, conveyance to a proper return port, or in case of death for his burial, or otherwise in accordance with this Act those expenses (together with the wages, if any, due to the seaman) shall be a charge upon the ship, whether British or foreign, to which the distressed seaman belonged, and shall be a debt to the Crown from the master of the ship, or from the owner of the ship for the time being, or, where the ship has been lost, from the person who was owner of the ship at the time of the loss, or, where the ship has been transferred to some person not being a British subject, either from the owner for the time being or from the person who was the owner of the ship at the time of the transfer, and also, if the ship be a foreign ship, from the person, whether principal or agent, who engaged the seaman for service in the ship.

(2) The debt, in addition to any fines which may have been incurred, may be recovered by the Board of Trade, on behalf of the Crown, either by ordinary process of law or in the court and manner in which wages may be recovered by seamen.

(3) In any proceeding for such recovery the production of the account (if any) of the expenses furnished in accordance with this Act or the distressed seamen regulations, and proof of payment of the expenses by or on behalf of the Board of Trade, shall be primâ facie evidence that the expenses were incurred or repaid under this Act by or on behalf of the Crown.

(4) For the purpose of this section, excepted expenses are expenses incurred in cases where the certificate of the proper authority obtained on leaving a seaman behind states, or the Board of Trade are otherwise satisfied, that the cause of the seaman being left behind is desertion, or disappearance, or imprisonment for misconduct, or discharge from his ship by a naval court on the ground of misconduct, and expenses incurred on account of the return to a proper return port of a distressed seaman who has been discharged at the port at which he was shipped, or at some neighbouring port.

As to mode of recovering wages, see sects. 164 et seq. of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894.

Deduction from wages and payment to superintendents, &c., of fines.

44.—(1) Every fine imposed on a seaman for any act of misconduct for which his agreement imposes a fine shall be deducted as follows (that is to say) :—

(a) if the offender is discharged in the United Kingdom, and the offence, and the entry in the log book required by the Merchant Shipping Acts in respect thereof, are proved to the satisfaction, in the case of a foreign-going ship of the superintendent before whom the offender is discharged, and in the case of a home-trade ship of the superintendent at or nearest the port at which the crew are discharged, the master or owner shall deduct the fine from the wages of the offender;

(b) if the offender enters His Majesty's naval service or is discharged abroad, and the offence and the entry as aforesaid are proved to the satisfaction of the officer in command of the ship he so enters, or of the proper authority by whose sanction he is discharged, as the case may be, the fine shall be deducted as aforesaid and an entry made in the official log book of the ship and signed by the officer or authority to whose satisfaction the offence is proved.

(2) Every fine so deducted shall be paid—

(a) if the offender is discharged in the United Kingdom, to the superintendent;

(b) if the offender enters His Majesty's naval service, on the return of the ship to its port of destination, if that port is in the United Kingdom, to the superintendent before whom the crew is discharged, or in the case of a home-trade ship, to the superintendent at or nearest to the port at which the crew is discharged, and, if the port of destination is not in the United Kingdom, to the proper authority as defined for the purpose of this part of this Act;

(c) if the offender is discharged at any place out of the United Kingdom, to the proper authority.

(3) A proper authority shall remit any amounts received by them under this section at such times and in such manner, and render such accounts in respect thereof, as the Board of Trade require.

(4) If a master or owner fails without reasonable cause to pay any fine as required by this section, he shall for each offence be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding six times the amount of the fine not so paid.

(5) An act of misconduct for which any fine has been inflicted and paid by, or deducted from the wages of, the seaman, shall not be otherwise punished under the Merchant Shipping Acts.

Proper return port.

45. For the purpose of this Part of this Act, either the port at which the seaman was shipped or a port in the country to which he belongs, or some other port agreed to by the seaman, in the case of a discharged seaman, at the time of his discharge, shall be deemed to be a proper return port:

Provided that in the case of a seaman belonging to a British Possession who has been shipped and discharged out of the

Section 45.

United Kingdom the proper officer may treat a port in the United Kingdom as a proper return port.

Mode of providing for return.

46.—(1) A seaman may be sent to a proper return port by any reasonable route, either by sea or land, or partly by sea and partly by land.

(2) Provision shall be made for the return of the seaman as to the whole of the route if it is by sea, or as to any part of the route which is by sea, by placing the seaman on board a British ship which is in want of men to make up its complement, or, if that is not practicable, by providing the seaman with a passage in any ship, British or foreign, or with the money for his passage, and, as to any part of the route which is by land, by paying the expenses of his journey and of his maintenance during the journey, or providing him with means to pay those expenses.

(3) Where the master of a ship is required under this Part of this Act to provide for the return of a discharged seaman to a proper return port, the master may, instead of providing the seaman's passage, or the expenses of his journey, or of providing the seaman with means to pay his passage or those expenses, deposit with the proper authority such sum as that authority consider sufficient to defray the expenses of the return of the seaman to a proper return port.

(4) The Board of Trade may, by the distressed seamen regulations, make such provision as may be necessary for enabling the proper authority, and in the case of expenses required to be incurred in the United Kingdom any officer named for the purpose by the Board, to defray on behalf of the authority originally making arrangements for the return of a distressed seaman to a proper return port any expenses on account of that seaman which the authority originally acting in respect of him could defray, and any expenses so incurred shall for the purposes of this Part of this Act relating to distressed seamen be deemed to be expenses incurred on behalf of the distressed seaman.

Provisions as to taking distressed seamen on ships.

48.—(3) On the production of a certificate, signed by the authority by whose directions any such distressed seaman was received on board, specifying the number and names of the distressed seamen and the time when each of them was received on board, and on a declaration made by the master before a justice of the peace, or any officer authorised to administer an oath, stating the number of days during which each distressed seaman has received maintenance, and stating the full complement of his crew and the actual number of seamen employed on board his ship, and every variation in that number, whilst the distressed seamen received maintenance, the master shall be entitled to be paid, in respect to the maintenance and passage of every seaman so conveyed, maintained, and provided for by him, exceeding the number (if any) wanted to make up the complement of his crew, such sum per diem as the Board of Trade allow.

(4) If any master of a British ship fails without reasonable cause to comply with this section in the case of any distressed seaman, he shall for each offence be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding one hundred pounds.

Enlargement of remedy by action for injuries caused by negligence of a shipowner.

1.—(1) If it is alleged that the owners of any ship are liable to pay damages in respect of personal injuries including fatal injuries caused by the ship, or sustained on, in, or about the ship in any port or harbour in the United Kingdom in consequence of the wrongful act, neglect, or default of the owners of the ship, or the masters or officers or crew thereof, or any other person in the employment of the owners of the ship, or of any defect in the ship or its apparel or equipment, and at any time that ship is found in any port or river of England or Ireland, or within three miles of the coast thereof, a judge of any court of record in England or Ireland may, upon its being shown to him by any person applying in accordance with rules of court that the owners are probably liable to pay damages in respect of such injuries, and that none of the owners reside in the United Kingdom, issue an order directed to any officer of customs or other officer named by the judge requiring him to detain the ship until such time as the owners, agent, master, or consignee thereof have made satisfaction in respect of the injuries, or have given security, to be approved by the judge, to abide the event of any action, suit, or other legal proceeding that may be instituted in respect of the injuries, and to pay all costs and damages that may be awarded thereon ; and any officer of customs or other officer to whom the order is directed shall detain the ship accordingly.

For powers of detention in the case of damage done by a foreign ship, see sect. 688 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894 (57 & 58 Vict. c. 60).

(3) Section six hundred and ninety-two of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, shall apply to the detention of a ship under this Act as it applies to the detention of a ship under that Act, and the expressions " port " and " harbour " have the same meaning as in that Act, and, if the owner of a ship is a corporation, it shall for the purposes of this Act be deemed to reside in the United Kingdom if it has an office in the United Kingdom at which service of writs can be effected.

(4) The words " person applying " in this section shall include an employer who has paid compensation or against whom a claim for compensation has been made under the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1897, as amended by any subsequent enactment, if he shows the judge that he probably is or will become entitled to be indemnified under that Act, and in such case this section shall apply as if the employer were a person claiming damages in respect of personal injuries.

MERCHANT SHIPPING (STEVEDORES AND TRIMMERS) ACT, 1911.

Power to arrest ship on claim for work done in stowing cargo, etc.

1.—(1) If it is claimed that any sum is due to any person from the owners of a ship for work done at any place in the United Kingdom by that person in connection with the stowing or discharging of cargoes on board or from that ship, or the trimming of coal on board that ship, and that ship is at any time found in any place in England or Ireland or within three miles of the coast thereof, a judge of any court of record in England or Ireland may, upon its being shown to him by any person applying in accordance with rules of court that primâ facie the claim against the owners is a good claim and that none of the owners reside in the United Kingdom, issue an order for the arrest of the ship.

(2) An order under this Act shall be directed to some officer of customs and excise, or some other officer named in the order, and shall require him to detain the ship until such time as satisfaction has been made by the owners, agent, master, or consignee thereof in respect of the claim, or until security, to be approved by the judge, has been given by them or him, to abide the event of any action, suit, or other legal proceeding that may be instituted in respect of the claim, and to pay all costs and damages that may be awarded thereon, and where any such order is made, the officer to whom the order is directed shall detain the ship accordingly.

(3) In any legal proceedings in relation to any such claim as aforesaid, the person giving security shall be made defendant, and shall be stated to be the owner of the ship, in respect of which the work giving rise to the claim was done, and the production of the order of the judge, made in relation to the security, shall be conclusive evidence of the liability of the defendant to the proceedings.

(4) Where a complaint is made to the Board of Trade that, before an application can be made under this section, the ship in respect of which the application is to be made will have departed from the limits of England or Ireland or three miles from the coast thereof, the ship shall, if the Board so direct, be detained for such time as will allow the application to be made and the result thereof to be communicated to the officer detaining the ship, and that officer shall not be liable for any costs or damages in respect of the detention if made in accordance with the directions of the Board.

(5) Section six hundred and ninety-two of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, shall apply to the detention of a ship under this Act as it applies to the detention of a ship under that Act.

Proceedings in Admiralty.

3. Any person having a claim to which this Act applies may, if he so desires, instead of proceeding under the foregoing provisions of this Act institute proceedings in Admiralty for enforcing the claim, and all courts having jurisdiction in Admiralty shall, if proceedings are so instituted, have the same jurisdiction for the purpose of enforcing the claim as if the claim were a claim for necessaries supplied to the ship.

[NECESSARIES.—See sect. 3, sub-s. 2, of the County Courts Admiralty Jurisdiction Act, 1868, ante, p. 1200.]

Saving.

4. Nothing in this Act shall affect the power of any person to enforce any claim to which this Act applies otherwise than in accordance with the provisions of this Act.

MARITIME CONVENTIONS ACT, 1911.

[1 & 2 Geo. V. c. 57.]

Provisions as to Collisions, &c.

Rule as to division of loss.

1.—(1) Where, by the fault of two or more vessels, damage or loss is caused to one or more of those vessels, to their cargoes or freight, or to any property on board, the liability to make good the damage or loss shall be in proportion to the degree in which each vessel was in fault:

Provided that—

(a) if, having regard to all the circumstances of the case, it is not possible to establish different degrees of fault, the liability shall be apportioned equally; and

(b) nothing in this section shall operate so as to render any vessel liable for any loss or damage to which her fault has not contributed; and

(c) nothing in this section shall affect the liability of any person under a contract of carriage or any contract, or shall be construed as imposing any liability upon any person from which he is exempted by any contract or by any provision of law, or as affecting the right of any person to limit his liability in the manner provided by law.

(2) For the purposes of this Act, the expression "freight" includes passage money and hire, and references to damage or loss caused by the fault of a vessel shall be construed as including references to any salvage or other expenses, consequent upon that fault, recoverable at law by way of damages.

[Note.—This section alters the old Admiralty rule in the case of both vessels being to blame for a collision.]

Damages for personal injuries.

2. Where loss of life or personal injuries are suffered by any person on board a vessel owing to the fault of that vessel and of any other vessel or vessels, the liability of the owners of the vessels shall be joint and several:

Provided that nothing in this section shall be construed as depriving any person of any right of defence on which, independently of this section, he might have relied in an action brought against him by the person injured, or any person or persons entitled to sue in respect of such loss of life, or shall affect the right of any person to limit his liability in cases to which this section relates in the manner provided by law.

3.—(1) Where loss of life or personal injuries are suffered by any person on board a vessel owing to the fault of that vessel and any other vessel or vessels, and a proportion of the damages is recovered against the owners of one of the vessels which exceeds the proportion in which she was in fault, they may recover by way of contribution the amount of the excess from the owners of the other vessel or vessels to the extent to which those vessels were respectively in fault:

Provided that no amount shall be so recovered which could not, by reason of any statutory or contractual limitation of, or exemption from, liability, or which could not for any other reason, have been recovered in the first instance as damages by the persons entitled to sue therefor.

(2) In addition to any other remedy provided by law, the persons entitled to any such contribution as aforesaid shall, for the purpose of recovering the same, have, subject to the provisions of this Act, the same rights and powers as the persons entitled to sue for damages in the first instance.

57 & 58 Vict. c. 60.

4.—(1) Sub-section (4) of section four hundred and nineteen of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894 (which provides that a ship shall be deemed in fault in a case of collision where any of the collision regulations have been infringed by that ship), is hereby repealed.

(2) The failure of the master or person in charge of a vessel to comply with the provisions of section four hundred and twenty-two of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, (which imposes a duty upon masters and persons in charge of vessels after a collision to stand by and assist the other vessel) shall not raise any presumption of law that the collision was caused by his wrongful act, neglect, or default, and accordingly sub-section (2) of that section shall be repealed.

Jurisdiction in cases of loss of life or personal injury.

5. Any enactment which confers on any court Admiralty jurisdiction in respect of damage shall have effect as though references to such damage included references to damages for loss of life or personal injury, and accordingly proceedings in respect of such damages may be brought in rem or in personam.

Provisions as to Salvage.

General duty to render assistance to persons in danger at sea.

6.—(1) The master or person in charge of a vessel shall, so far as he can do so without serious danger to his own vessel, her crew and passengers (if any), render assistance to every person, even if such person be a subject of a foreign State at war with His

Majesty, who is found at sea in danger of being lost, and, if he fails to do so, he shall be guilty of a misdemeanour.

(2) Compliance by the master or person in charge of a vessel with the provisions of this section shall not affect his right or the right of any other person to salvage.

Apportionment of salvage amongst owners, &c., of foreign ship.

7. Where any dispute arises as to the apportionment of any amount of salvage among the owners, master, pilot, crew, and other persons in the service of any foreign vessel, the amount shall be apportioned by the court or person making the apportionment in accordance with the law of the country to which the vessel belongs.

Limitation of actions.

8. No action shall be maintainable to enforce any claim or lien against a vessel or her owners in respect of any damage or loss to another vessel, her cargo or freight, or any property on board her, or damages for loss of life or personal injuries suffered by any person on board her, caused by the fault of the former vessel, whether such vessel be wholly or partly in fault, or in respect of any salvage services, unless proceedings therein are commenced within two years from the date when the damage or loss or injury was caused or the salvage services were rendered, and an action shall not be maintainable under this Act to enforce any contribution in respect of an overpaid proportion of any damages for loss of life or personal injuries unless proceedings therein are commenced within one year from the date of payment:

Provided that any court having jurisdiction to deal with an action to which this section relates may, in accordance with the rules of court, extend any such period, to such extent and on such conditions as it thinks fit, and shall, if satisfied that there has not during such period been any reasonable opportunity of arresting the defendant vessel within the jurisdiction of the court, or within the territorial waters of the country to which the plaintiff's ship belongs or in which the plaintiff resides or has his principal place of business, extend any such period to an extent sufficient to give such reasonable opportunity.

"Within two years."—As to loss of life or personal injury see The Caliph, (1912) P. 213.

Application of Act.

9.—(1) This Act shall extend throughout His Majesty's dominions and to any territories under his protection, and to Cyprus:

Provided that it shall not extend to the Dominion of Canada the Commonwealth of Australia, the Dominion of New Zealand the Union of South Africa, and Newfoundland.

(2) This Act shall not apply in any case in which proceedings have been taken before the passing thereof and all such cases shall be determined as though this Act had not been passed. Section 9.

(3) The provisions of this Act shall be applied in all cases heard and determined in any court having jurisdiction to deal with the case and in whatever waters the damage or loss in question was caused or the salvage services in question were rendered, and sub-section (9) of section twenty-five of the Supreme Court of Judicature Act, 1873, shall cease to have effect. 36 & 37 Vict. c. 66.

(4) This Act shall apply to any persons other than the owners responsible for the fault of the vessel as though the expression "owners" included such persons, and in any case where, by virtue of any charter or demise, or for any other reason, the owners are not responsible for the navigation and management of the vessel, this Act shall be read as though for references to the owners there were substituted references to the charterers or other persons for the time being so responsible.

10. This Act may be cited as the Maritime Conventions Act, 1911, and shall be construed as one with the Merchant Shipping Acts, 1894 to 1907. Short title and construction.

(c) imposed conditions on the granting of a pilot's licence or a pilotage certificate which they have no power to impose or which are unreasonable; or

(2) For the purpose of hearing the appeal, the judge or magistrate shall sit with an assessor of nautical and pilotage experience selected and summoned by the judge or magistrate.

(3) Objection may be taken to any person proposed to be summoned as an assessor, either personally or in respect of his qualification, and by either party to the appeal.

(4) The judge or magistrate may confirm or reverse the suspension or revocation of the licence, or make such order in the case as may seem just, and his decision shall be final, unless special leave to appeal from the same to the High Court on a question of law or a question of mixed law and fact is given by the judge or magistrate, or by the High Court, and in such case the decision of the High Court shall be final.

(5) The costs incurred by a pilotage authority under this section shall be payable out of any fund applicable to the general expenses of the pilotage authority.

(6) Rules with respect to the procedure under this section (including costs and the remuneration of assessors) may be made, as respects county court judges, by the authority having power to make rules of practice under the County Courts Act, 1888, and as respects metropolitan police and stipendiary magistrates by a Secretary of State, but in either case with the concurrence of the Treasury as to fees.

Manning of passenger steamers.

8.—(1) Every passenger steamer which is registered in the United Kingdom shall be manned with a crew sufficient and efficient from the point of view of safety of life at sea for the purpose of her intended voyage, and shall during her voyage be kept so manned.

(2) If any of the provisions of this section are not complied with in the case of any steamer, sections four hundred and fifty-nine and four hundred and sixty of the principal Act shall apply to the steamer as it applies to ships which are, by reason of undermanning, unfit to proceed to sea without serious danger to human life, having regard to the nature of the service for which they were intended, and the owner of the ship (if in fault) shall be liable in respect of each offence to a fine not exceeding one hundred pounds, and the master of the ship (if in fault) shall be liable in respect of each offence to a fine not exceeding fifty pounds.

(3) The Board of Trade shall make rules with respect to the manning of passenger steamers for the purposes of this section from the point of view of safety of life at sea, and where those rules apply to a ship the ship shall for the purposes of this section be deemed to be manned with a sufficient and efficient crew if she is manned in accordance with those rules, and not to be manned with a sufficient and efficient crew if she is not manned in accordance with those rules.

Power of Board of Trade to exempt passenger steamers going on short voyages.

13. Any passenger steamer proceeding on a voyage within the home trade limits shall be exempt from the provisions of this part of this Act, and the Board of Trade may by order exempt any passenger steamers proceeding on any other voyage specified in the order from all or any of the provisions of this part of this Act according to the voyage on which they are proceeding, if the Board are of opinion that, having regard to the nature of the voyage, it is unnecessary or unreasonable that the provisions from which the steamers are exempted should be applied to the steamers during the voyage; but no such exemption shall be given in relation to any voyage in the course of which the steamer goes more than two hundred sea miles from the nearest coast.

14. For the purposes of this part of this Act—

A passenger steamer means a steamer which carries more than twelve passengers.

Persons who are on board a steamer by reason of force majeure or as the result of any obligation on the part of a master to carry shipwrecked persons or persons in like circumstances, shall not be deemed to be passengers and shall not be counted when reckoning the number of persons on board a ship.

Safety Certificate.

Certificate of safety.

18.—(1) Where any provisions of Parts II. and III. of this Act are applicable to a British ship registered in the United Kingdom, that ship shall not proceed to sea from a port in the United Kingdom unless a certificate (in this Act referred to as a safety certificate) has been granted in respect of the ship, and is for the time being in force, and shall be provided with a safety certificate when coming into such a port.

Section 18.

(2) If the provisions of this section are not complied with in the case of any ship, the master of the ship shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one hundred pounds.

(3) The master of any ship to which this section applies shall produce the safety certificate on being required by any officer authorised by the Board of Trade to require the production of the certificate; and if the certificate is not produced the ship may be detained.

(4) The safety certificate shall certify, in the form set out in the fourth schedule to this Act, that the provisions of the Convention therein referred to have been complied with, and shall be a certificate granted by or under the authority of the Board of Trade under this part of this Act.

Granting of safety certificates for British ships.

19.—(1) The Board of Trade shall not grant a safety certificate or allow a safety certificate to be granted unless they are satisfied, on the report of a wireless telegraphy inspector, as respects provisions relating to wireless telegraphy, and on the report of a surveyor of ships appointed under section seven hundred and twenty-four of the principal Act as respects other matters, that the certificate can be properly granted, and if they are so satisfied, shall grant the certificate.

(2) A copy of any report of a wireless telegraphy inspector or surveyor of ships for the purposes of this section shall be sent to the owner of the ship, and if the owner feels aggrieved by the report he may appeal to the court of survey for the port or the district where the ship for the time being is, in manner provided by the rules of that court.

On any such appeal the judge of the court of survey shall report to the Board of Trade on the question raised by the appeal, and for the purposes of deciding the question whether the certificate of safety is to be granted or not, the report from the judge of the court of survey shall be substituted by the Board of Trade for the report which has been the subject of appeal.

(3) A safety certificate shall not be in force for more than one year from the date of its issue, nor after notice is given by the Board of Trade to the owner, agent, or master of the ship in respect of which it has been granted, that the Board of Trade have cancelled the certificate.

(4) If a ship in respect which a safety certificate has been granted is absent from the United Kingdom at the time when the certificate expires, the Board of Trade, or any person authorised by them for the purpose, may, if it appears proper and reasonable so to do, grant such an extension of the certificate as will allow the ship to complete the return voyage to the United Kingdom, but no such extension shall have effect for a period exceeding five months from the date of the expiration of the certificate.

(5) Sections two hundred and seventy-six, two hundred and seventy-seven, two hundred and seventy-nine, two hundred and eighty, two hundred and eighty-one, and two hundred and eighty-two o the principal Act (which in connection with passenger steamer certificates relate to the transmission of a certificate, fees for certificate, the cancellation, delivery up, posting up, and penalties for the forgery of, a certificate) shall apply with respect to a safety certificate as they apply with respect to a passenger steamer's certificate, with the substitution of the report of the surveyor or inspector under this section for the declaration of survey.

Effect of safety certificate.

21. Where a safety certificate has been granted in respect of a ship and is in force, any of the provisions of this Act or the rules made thereunder relating to the manning, construction or equipment of the ship, or the provision of wireless telegraphy and wireless telegraphy operators and watchers on the ship, which are applicable to the ship, shall be deemed to have been complied with unless it appears that the ship cannot proceed to sea without danger to the passengers or crew, owing to the fact that the actual condition of the ship does not correspond in substantial particulars with the certificate.

PART V.

Application of Act to Foreign Ships and to British Ships not Registered in the United Kingdom.

Application of Act to foreign ships and ships not registered in the United Kingdom.

23.—(1) Compliance with the provisions of Parts II. and III. relating to the manning, construction, or equipment of passenger steamers or relating to the provision of wireless telegraphy and wireless telegraph operators and watchers on a ship, and representing provisions of the Convention of this Act, shall be required in the case of a foreign ship or a British ship not registered in the United Kingdom which comes into or proceeds to sea from a port in the United Kingdom, in the same manner as compliance with those provisions would be required it the ship were registered in the United Kingdom, and the provisions of this Act shall apply to such a ship accordingly.

(2) A safety certificate granted by or under the authority of the Government of the country to which a foreign ship or a British ship not registered in the United Kingdom belongs and recognised by the Board of Trade as granted in accordance with and for the purposes of the Convention, shall have the same effect as regards that ship as a safety certificate granted under this Act has as respects a ship registered in the United Kingdom. Section 23.

(3) A foreign ship, and a British ship not registered in the United Kingdom, coming into or proceeding to sea from a port in the United Kingdom—

(a) shall, if entitled to a total or partial exemption from the provisions of the Convention under a certificate of exemption recognised by the Board of Trade as granted in accordance with and for the purposes of the Convention, be exempted to the same extent from the corresponding provisions of this Act; and

(b) shall, if on a voyage on which a British ship registered in the United Kingdom would be entitled to a total or partial exemption from the provisions of Parts II., III., or IV. of this Act, be exempted to the same extent as a British ship registered in the United Kingdom would be exempted.

PART VI.

General.

26. Nothing in this Act shall subject any ship which, not being bound to a port in the United Kingdom, has been compelled to take refuge in such a port by stress of weather or force majeure to any provisions of this Act from which the ship would have been exempt in the ordinary course of the ship's voyage. Exception for ships compelled to take refuge by stress of weather, &c.

CHAPTER I.

INTRODUCTORY REMARKS ON THE RELATION OF MASTERS AND SERVANTS AT COMMON LAW.

The relations between master and servant to-day, whatever may have been the case in the past, are purely founded on contract. Nor is there any reason why such contract should not be exactly what the parties choose to make it. So, further, as far as express terms are concerned, it is (saving statutory enactment) entirely as made. As regards implied terms, these have to be sought in the transitional periods and in the dim past of history, and some of them, no doubt, owe their origin to villenage, feudal tenures, and other ancient usages where the relationship was far from being one of contract.

Broadly speaking, a man is responsible for his own acts and own acts only. The great exception even more broadly stated, is that he is also responsible for those who act for him by his authority. But in the case of those employed as his servants, there is always the implied term in their contract of service that he shall not be answerable to them for the acts of their fellow servants. Put another way, the implied term is that where a man enters an employment, he takes all the risks incident to it, of which the risk of the negligence of a fellow servant is always one (Priestly v. Fowler, (1837) 3 M. & W. 1 ; 7 L. J. (N. S.) Ex. 42 ; 49 R. R. 495). But this in no way modifies an employer's responsibility for his own acts.

To his servant, as to any member of the public, he owes a duty to take reasonable care in all that he does. He must not lay a trap for him. If the service involve hidden, or secret, or unusual dangers, he must point them out. As regards such secret dangers, the servant is in the position of the public, as no man can be presumed to take a risk of the existence of which he is rightly ignorant. In all their relations together, the master must be reasonably careful, and however he carry on his business, whether in person or otherwise, he must conduct it on a system reasonably safe to all concerned, and in work of a dangerous character must take all reasonable precautions for the safety of his men ; for instance, he should not permit fuses to be used which do not give the men sufficient time to get into cover (Sword v. Cameron (1839) 1 D. 439 ; Paterson v. Wallace, 1 Macqueen, 748 ; Smith v. Baker, (1891) A. C. 325 ; 60 L. J. Q. B. 683). Whether a master conducts his business in person or not will soon transpire, but if he does not, the servant has a right to assume that he has done his best to select a competent man to act in his place (Wilson v. Merry, (1868) L. R. 1 H. L. Sc. 326). If he does act in person, it will be a question of fact for a jury whether the act of which his workman has reason to complain, was or was not negligent. E.g., Are fellow servants incompetent ? Tools or appliances defective ? To which he may answer, he has taken all reasonable care in their selection, or as regards tools, that he has obtained them from responsible makers. He is not bound to provide the latest appliance, he must simply act with reasonable care, it might not be reasonable for a master after making inquiries about safety appliances which would have prevented the accident to fail to adopt any of them (Toronto Power Co., Ltd. v. Kate Paskwan, (1915) A. C. 734; 84 L. J. P. C. 148 ; [1915] W. C. & Ins. Rep. 444). So with similar questions. But however dangerous or perilous a service, a man may choose to face it for the sake of the extra earnings he presumably makes. So on discovering risks he had not anticipated he may still prefer to run them rather than close the engagement. In case of accident through want of care on the part of the master, the rights of the parties are well shown by the course taken by the pleadings. Thus, suppose a driver injured by a defective kecker to a cart supplied for his use by the defendant. His statement of claim shows a good cause of action when it alleges that by want of care, and in breach of a duty to him by the defendant, he has been injured. The defendant should have taken all reasonable care to supply a proper cart. The defence is complete when it alleges the plaintiff was a servant in the employ of the defendant, and was injured by a risk of such employment. The reply again is an answer when it states that he was ignorant of the risk, and it was not one contemplated by the contract. Such, the strict course of the common law. From time to time the legislature have seen fit to protect a man against his own improvidence, e.g., as where it insists on the fencing of machinery. Apart from such statute, the parties might bargain the machinery should or should not be fenced, and that the man should or should not take the risk. Again, if he did, presumably he would get higher wages, and the difference might more than pay for his insuring himself. But the statute says he shall not so contract. Hence the man's statement of claim, showing a complete cause of action, is met by a defence which the statute says shall be no defence. Therefore he is entitled to judgment

(Baddeley v. Granville, (1887) 19 Q. B. D. 423; 56 L. J. Q. B. 501; Britton v. Great Western Cotton Co., (1872) L. R. 7 Ex. 130; 41 L. J. Ex. 99; Groves v. Wimborne, (1898) 2 Q. B. 402; 67 L. J., Q. B. 862). We now come to injuries caused him by the negligence of fellow servants. This we have seen is a risk he impliedly contracts to take. There is no reason the implied contract should not be varied by express contract. Probably but for the intervention of the legislature, with the growing power of the men's unions, the implied terms would have been modified by an express term in every case, and by one far better suited to the needs of each industry than the cast-iron rule of an inflexible Act. The implied term that a man takes the risk of the negligence of his fellow servants whatever their rank, is now general, though in Scotland the rule once prevailed that a master should be responsible for a man who was in his place and acted for him. But as regards such high officials, there is little need for any exception on their account; they will be usually good for damages themselves. The general rule holds in their case that every man is responsible for his own act, and it is no defence to an action for negligence that the injured man was a fellow servant (Lees and Sykes v. Dunkerley Bros., (1911) A. C. 5; 80 L. J., K. B. 135).

Where a master is negligent and otherwise responsible, and relies on the implied term the man took the risk, we have to inquire: Was the risk contemplated? This will depend on the facts in each case, but generally we find that the implied term narrows down to where there is a common work and a common master (Williams v. Linotype and Machinery, Ltd., (1915) 84 L. J., K. B. 1620. A man employed as a clerk, say, does not usually take the risk of being shot by a gamekeeper employed by the same master, and, of course, if men are employed on the same job by different masters, and one is hurt by the other's man, there is no contract whatever, express or implied, between them, and he will have the usual rights of a stranger (Johnson v. Lindsay, (1891) A. C. 371). One of the merits of the common law is its power of adapting itself to the varying needs of contemporary life. Thus we find that a gradual change was coming (I don't say had come) over this implied term, and it was being modified to suit actual facts. It was becoming more clear that men did not willingly contract to relieve their master of all consequences of his negligence because they happened to know as much about the facts as he did, and hence the implied term was coming rather to be that whilst a man took all the risks really incident to his employment—e.g., a seaman the perils of the sea; a collier the perils of the mine; a driver the perils of the road—he did not take any risk which could have been reasonably avoided by the proper care and attention of a fairly considerate master (a). However, the natural development and modification of the implied contract between the parties, has been arrested first by the Employers' Liability Act, 1880, which made statutory what public opinion was beginning to require, and which, if left to itself, it would probably have effected in a far better way, and next by the Workmen's Compensation Act, of which the less said the better. Whether it is worse in principle, drafting or practice, we will not venture to decide, but the net result is that fraud and malingering have much increased, and that the honest workman, not his master, not the public even, as is vainly taught, but the honest workman himself, has to pay four shillings to insure a shilling risk, which is surely a triumph of legislative achievement.

An Act for compensating the Families of Persons killed by Accidents.

Whereas no action at law is now maintainable against a person who by his wrongful act, neglect, or default may have caused the death of another person, and it is oftentimes right and expedient that the wrongdoer in such case should be answerable in damages for the injury so caused by him: Be it therefore enacted by the Queen's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, that whensoever the death of a person shall be caused by wrongful act, neglect, or default, and the act, neglect, or default is such as would (if death had not ensued) have entitled the party injured to maintain an action and recover damages in respect thereof, then and in every such case the person who would have been liable if death had not ensued shall be liable to an action for damages, notwithstanding the death of the person injured, and although the death shall have been caused under such circumstances as amount in law to felony.

2. And be it enacted, that every such action shall be for the benefit of the wife, husband, parent, and child of the person whose death shall have been so caused, and shall be brought by and in the name of the executor or administrator of the person deceased; and in every such action the jury may give such damages as they may think proportioned to the injury resulting from such death to the parties respectively for whom and for whose benefit such action shall be brought; and the amount so recovered, after deducting the costs not recovered from the defendant, shall be divided amongst the before-mentioned parties in such shares as the jury by their verdict shall find and direct.

3. Provided always, and be it enacted, that not more than one action shall lie for and in respect of the same subject-matter of complaint; and that every such action shall be commenced within twelve calendar months after the death of such deceased person.

4. And be it enacted, that in every such action the plaintiff on the record shall be required, together with the declaration, to deliver to the defendant or his attorney a full particular of the person or persons for whom and on whose behalf such action shall be brought, and of the nature of the claim in respect of which damages shall be sought to be recovered.

5. And be it enacted, that the following words and expressions are intended to have the meanings hereby assigned to them respectively, so far as such meanings are not excluded by the context or by the nature of the subject-matter; that is to say, words denoting the singular number are to be understood to apply also to a plurality of persons or things; and words denoting the masculine gender are to be understood to apply also to persons of the feminine gender; and the word "person" shall apply to bodies politic and corporate; and the word "parent" shall include father and mother, and grandfather and grandmother, and stepfather and stepmother; and the word "child" shall include son and daughter, and grandson and granddaughter, and stepson and stepdaughter.

6. And be it enacted, that this Act shall come into operation from and immediately after the passing thereof, and that nothing therein contained shall apply to that part of the United Kingdom called Scotland.

7. And be it enacted, that this Act may be amended or repealed by any Act to be passed in this Session of Parliament.

An Act to amend the Act 9 & 10 Vict. c. 93, for compensating the Families of Persons killed by Accident.

By this Act the following provisions were added:

1. If and so often as it shall happen at any time or times hereafter in any of the cases intended and provided for by the said Act that there shall be no executor or administrator of the person deceased, or that there being such executor or administrator no such action as in the said Act mentioned shall within six calendar months after the death of such deceased person as therein mentioned have been brought by and in the name of his or her executor or administrator, then and in every such case such action may be brought by and in the name or names of all or any of the persons (if more than one) for whose benefit such action would have been, if it had been brought by and in the name of such executor or administrator; and every action so to be brought shall be for the benefit of the same person or persons, and shall be subject to the same regulations and procedure as nearly as may be, as if it were brought by and in the name of such executor or administrator.

2. And whereas by the second section of the said Act it is provided that the jury may give such damages as they may think proportioned to the injury resulting from such death to the parties respectively for whom and whose benefit such action shall be brought, and the amount so recovered, after deducting the costs not recovered from the defendant, shall be divided between the before-mentioned parties in such shares as the jury shall by their verdict direct: Be it enacted and declared, that it shall be sufficient, if the defendant is advised to pay money into court, that he pay it as a compensation in one sum to all persons entitled under the said Act for his wrongful act, neglect, or default, without specifying the shares into which it is to be divided by the jury; and if the said sum be not accepted, and an issue is taken by the plaintiff as to its sufficiency, and the jury shall think the same sufficient, the defendant shall be entitled to the verdict upon that issue.

3. This Act and the said Act shall be read together as one Act.

Before this Act if a person was killed by the negligence of another his representatives had no right of action on the principle Actio personalis moritur cum personâ. As to the case of the wrongdoer dying before verdict given, the law is unaffected by the Act. So the statute only applies to death caused by the wrongful act. If death takes place from an independent cause before judgment obtained, the axiom applies, and the right of action is gone entirely.

The measure of damages where the claim is for a person killed is not the same as where a man is injured and claims for himself. In this case those entitled can only recover compensation for the actual pecuniary loss suffered by them, and not for mental suffering, nor loss of companionship (Blake v. Mid. Ry. (1852) 21 L. J. Q. B. 233), and damages cannot be recovered for funeral expenses or mourning (Dalton v. S. E. R., (1858) 27 L. J. C. P. 227; 114 R. R. 726). But though the estate of the deceased may not have suffered, yet if a person has suffered damage himself he is entitled to recover as where property remains in the family, but he gets less advantage from it (Pym v. G. N. R., (1863) 32 L. J. Q. B. 377). A reasonable expectation of pecuniary advantage from the deceased having remained alive may be taken into account by the jury, e.g., the future earnings of a child (Taff Vale Rail. Co. v. Jenkins, [1913] A. C. 1; 82 L. J., K. B. 49); or the superior education children would have received if their father had lived (Pym v. G. N. R., (1863) 32 L. J. Q. B. 377), and legal liability is not the test in respect of which damages may be recovered under this statute. In Hetherington v. N. E. R., (1882) 10 Q. B. D. 160; 51 L. J. Q. B. 495, a son might have helped his father who was fifty-nine and blind, and it was held there was some evidence of such expectation (see also Franklin v. S. E. R., (1858) 4 Jur. N. S. 565), but where it was admitted that the cost of maintenance exceeded a girl's wages and no evidence of expectation of future benefit was given, it was held that no action was maintainable (Meddan v. Minnis, (1893) 37 S. J. 253). In a case where the dependants might have proceeded alternatively under the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1906, the judge should not in directing the jury refer to the amount of compensation which might have been recovered had such proceedings been taken (Price v. Glynea and Castle Coal and Brick Co., (1916) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 93.

If no pecuniary damage be proved the action fails, and the defendants are entitled to a verdict (Duckworth v. Johnstone, 29 L. J. Ex. 25); and on the principle of compensation being only given for actual pecuniary loss sustained. In Grand Trunk Railway of Canada v. Jennings, (1889) 13 Ap. C. 800; 58 L. J. P. C. 1, it was held that any money received from an insurance on the life of the deceased has to be taken into account in assessing the damages. This has now been altered by the Fatal Accidents (Damages) Act, 1908. Action under the Act will only lie in those cases where the deceased would himself have been entitled to recover if he had remained alive; and if he has settled his claim in his lifetime no further action can be brought on his dying through the same injuries (Read v. G. E. R., (1868) L. R. 3 Q. B. 355; 37 L. J. Q. B. 278). If, however, he has been induced by fraud, or through a mistake has given a discharge for an inadequate compensation, such discharge will not be conclusive against him if he lives, nor against his representatives in case of his death (Stewart v. G. W. R., (1865) 2 D. J. & S. 319; Hirschfield v. L. B. & S. C. R., (1877) L. R. 2 Q. B. D. 1; 46 L. J. Q. B. 94; Lee v. L. & Y. R., (1877) L. R. 6 Ch. 527; McDonagh v. MacLellan, (1886) 13 R. 1000).

THE EMPLOYERS' LIABILITY ACT, 1880.

An Act to extend and regulate the Liability of Employers to make Compensation for Personal Injuries suffered by Workmen in their Service.

(7th September, 1880.)

Be it enacted by the Queen's most Excellent Majesty by and with the advice and consent of the Lords spiritual and temporal and Commons in this present Parliament assembled and by the authority of the same as follows :

Amendment of law.

1. Where after the commencement of this Act personal injury is caused to a workman

(1) By reason of any defect in the condition of the ways, works, machinery, or plant connected with or used in the business of the employer ; or

(2) By reason of the negligence of any person in the service of the employer who has any superintendence entrusted to him whilst in the exercise of such superintendence ; or

(3) By reason of the negligence of any person in the service of the employer to whose orders or directions the workman at the time of the injury was bound to conform, and did conform, where such injury resulted from his having so conformed ; or

(4) By reason of the act or omission of any person in the service of the employer done or made in obedience to the rules or bye-laws of the employer, or in obedience to particular instructions given by any person delegated with the authority of the employer in that behalf ; or the workman, or in case the injury results in death, the legal personal representatives of the workman, and any persons entitled in case of death, shall have the same right of compensation and remedies against the employer as if the workman had not been a workman of nor in the service of the employer nor engaged in his work. Section 1.

(5) By reason of the negligence of any person in the service of the employer who has the charge or control of any signal, points, locomotive engine, or train upon a railway ;

2. A workman shall not be entitled under this Act to any right of compensation or remedy against the employer in any of the following cases; that is to say, Exceptions to amendment of law.

(1) Under sub-section 1 of section 1, unless the defect therein mentioned arose from, or had not been discovered or remedied owing to the negligence of the employer, or of some person in the service of the employer, and entrusted by him with the duty of seeing that the ways, works, machinery, or plant were in proper condition.

(2) Under sub-section 4 of section 1, unless the injury resulted from some impropriety or defect in the rules, bye-laws, or instructions therein mentioned; provided that where a rule or bye-law has been approved or has been accepted as a proper rule or bye-law by one of Her Majesty's principal Secretaries of State, or by the Board of Trade or any other department of the Government under or by virtue of any Act of Parliament, it shall not be deemed for the purposes of this Act to be an improper or defective rule or bye-law.

(3) In any case where the workman knew of the defect or negligence which caused his injury, and failed within a reasonable time to give or cause to be given information thereof to the employer or some person superior to himself in the service of the employer, unless he was aware that the employer or such superior already knew of the said defect or negligence.

Generally.]—The effect of this sect. 1, as qualified by sect. 2, is to negative to a certain extent the implied contract on the part of the servant to take the known risks of the employment. It does not apply to express contracts to the contrary, nor to contracting out of the Act (Griffiths v. Dudley (Earl of), (1882) 9 Q. B. D. 357; 51 L. J. Q. B. 543), which may be done expressly or by implication or from notices posted about the building if brought to the workman's knowledge before engagement (Carus v. Eastwood, (1875) 32 L. T. N. S. 855). If a workman so contracts out, his representatives will be bound (Griffiths v. Dudley, supra). In the case of an infant there will be the further question, was it for his benefit (Clements v. L. & N. W. R., (1894) 2 Q. B. 482).

By sub-s. 1 of sect. 1 as qualified by sect. 2, sub-s. 1, a master is made liable for defects, etc., due to his own negligence as at common law, or due to the negligence of some one entrusted by him with the duty of seeing such ways, etc., were in proper condition.

A master is made further liable by sub-s. 2, as qualified by sect. 8, for any one entrusted by him with superintendence, as stated by sub-s. 3 for any one authorised by him to give orders, and by sub-s. 4 for any act, etc., the result of an authorised instruction or of defective rules, unless as qualified by sect. 2, sub-s. 2, the rules have been certified as proper as there mentioned, Sub-s. 5 deals with railway signals, etc.

When a workman brings himself within the Act, his rights are precisely stated at the end of sect. 1. He is to have the same rights as if he were not a workman, in other words, he is to have the rights of a stranger.

Section 2 Notes.

Defences to Action.]—In addition to traversing the workman's statements which bring him within the Act, a master has the special defences under the Act itself, viz., under sect. 2, sub-s. 3, as to the giving of notice of any defect, and under sect. 4, as to the giving of notice of injury and the bringing of an action within the time there limited. But in addition, an employer has the defences he would have had if sued by an actual stranger. These are traverse of the negligence alleged and the plea of contributory negligence. This latter is too well understood to need further comment, but under the traverse of negligence grew up a defence which threatened to shipwreck the Act, viz., the defence known as volentia, a useful but inaccurate word. The defence is quite independent of sect. 2, sub-s. 3, which requires a man to give notice of any defect of which he is aware. This defence goes to making the Act not apply at all: Volentia only arises where the Act has been found to apply and the workman has been given the rights of a stranger. Such rights are founded in tort and can be in no way modified or altered by contract. They exist or they do not exist. In our civic relations with one another, the underlying principle of our mutual responsibilities is found in the maxim, sic utere tuum ut alienum non laedas. So in Heaven v. Pender, (1883) 11 Q. B. D. 507; 52 L. J. Q. B. 702, Brett, M.R., well tells us "actionable negligence consists in the neglect of the use of ordinary care or skill towards a person to whom the defendant owes the duty of observing ordinary care or skill, by which neglect the plaintiff, without contributory negligence on his part, has suffered injury to his person or property." But a person may waive such duty. A person knowing such duty is not discharged, and still acting as if it were, does waive it. Injuria non fit volenti. If there is a danger, and you know it is there, you should not run into it, and then seek to make another liable if you are injured. Thus a man having established a case against his master under the Act finds he is to have the same rights as a stranger, and as a stranger he finds that, as he knew of the danger, knew of the neglect of duty, and yet willingly faced it, he has waived such duty being discharged to himself, and therefore has no claim. The logic is unanswerable, but it threatened to repeal the Act. In ninety-nine cases out of a hundred, a workman knows as much or more about defects than his master, and in each case he willingly faces them and waives his right to his master discharging his duty to him. Then what rights has he under the Act of any value? Thus the fine judgment of Bowen, L.J., in Thomas v. Quartermaine, (1887) 8 Q. B. D. 685; 56 L. J. Q. B. 340. But Esher, M.R., was against him on broad principles, and in the Divisional Court—overruling (sic) the Court of Appeal—in Yarmouth v. France, (1888) 19 Q. B. D. 647; 57 L. J. Q. B. 7, the distinction was made between accepting a risk and simply knowing of it. A man was told to drive a vicious beast of a horse and much objected, but in the end grumblingly obeyed. Then he had his leg broken in consequence, and the court held he might have known of the risk—it was evident he did, he had grumbled so much—but he had not agreed to take it. The good sense of the decision was as manifest as the logic was doubtful, and finds a modified confirmation in the House of Lords in the great case of Smith v. Baker, (1891) A. C. 325; 60 L. J. Q. B. 683, where the logic was unimpeachable, but the facts found somewhat amazing and startling. Here a man in a quarry was exposed to danger by stones being slung over him on a crane. In the end one slipped and injured him, and the Lords found in his favour. To appreciate the judgments of the majority it must be carefully remembered that the masters not having taken the point below that there was no evidence of negligence, the Lords would not there hear them to deny it before themselves.

The jury's findings in the county court were most jury-like, but the verdict had been challenged on the one point only, that the man had knowingly taken the risk. The law is most unexceptionable, and entirely agrees with that laid down by Bowen, L.J. The way the facts were viewed is alone debateable. As viewed by the majority, they came to this: The man knew stones were being slung over him, and had been for months. Therefore he could not be taken to say he was not volens so far. But he did not know that the employers were swinging them over him with machinery that was not reasonably fit for the purpose (the first finding of the jury) and which was admittedly negligence on their part. Thus the defence of volentia must always be narrowly scrutinized to see exactly how far a man is volens or is not. As a rule, in the case of all the ordinary and known risks of his employment, he is volens, but when risks are superadded by negligence, it must be further shown that he also knew of such superadded risks, and also took them.

In contract a man's position may be more favourable than under the Act. In contract a man may say to his master, "My implied contract is to take all the risks of my employment, equally yours is to take all reasonable care. I know you are not doing so, but nevertheless, I will continue working for you; but note, if anything happens to me through your want of care, I shall look to you for damages." This was said and assented to in Yarmouth v. France, and on such lines would have abundantly satisfied that decision, and in general, very little evidence would be required to establish this modified term instead of the agreement to take all risks as the true contract between the parties, so the obiter in Smith v. Baker almost go to the length of saying that this really now is the term to be implied. But under the Employers' Liability Act, a workman's rights are rigid and are to be those of a stranger only and are purely in tort, and as such, no modification can be implied. Therefore so far as you can bring home to him knowledge that a duty owed to him is not being discharged, then so far he must be taken to waive its discharge. I am in the streets of London. I take all the perils of crossing —very serious nowadays—but I do not take the superadded perils of negligent driving. But a motor cab is being wildly, madly driven and I choose to try to run past it, then I know of the added risk, and in taking it, clearly am volens. In tort the distinction between sciens followed by action and volens reduces to nothing. In contract sciens may be quite consistent with a master still remaining responsible for his own negligence. That he does, we may take it is very nearly the law, and it will take little to make the courts say that it actually is so in fact.

Sect. 1 in Detail.]—Note the overriding conditions in sect. 2, sub-s. 3.

Sub-s. 1.—By reason of a defect in the condition of the ways.]—This means a defect of a permanent or quasi-permanent nature, not merely an obstacle carelessly left in a roadway (McGriffin v. Palmer's Ship Building Co., (1883) 10 Q. B. D. 5; 52 L. J. Q. B. 25), but the way itself may be of a temporary character, e.g., a plank for mill hands to use (Bromley v. Cavendish, (1886) 2 T. L. R. 881). "In a shop where workmen are employed, any part of the shop which a workman is required, or it is his duty to traverse in the course of his employment, is a way" (Willetts v. Watts, (1892) 2 Q. B. 92; 61 L. J. Q. B. 540).

If a man is permitted to use a dangerous way, but an alternative safe way is provided, he may be debarred from recovering (Prichard v. Lang, (1889) 5 T. L. R. 639).

A hatchway on a ship left open by a fellow servant did not constitute a defect within this section (M'Carthy v. Bristol Shipowners' Co., (1883) 10 L. R. Ir. 384). Work being naturally dangerous, as when a ship is being built, may involve ways being dangerous without being defective (Forsyth v. Ramage, (1891) 18 R. 21). A ladder close to an open tank to be used when dark and without a light might be a defective way (Jamieson v. Russell, (1892) 19 R. 898).

Defect in the condition of the works, machinery, or plant.]—By works completed works, not those in course of construction, are to be understood (Howe v. Finch, (1887) 17 Q. B. D. 187). But a servant injured by a wall falling down, which was in the course of being pulled down was held entitled (Brannigan v. Robinson, (1892) 1 Q. B. 344; 61 L. J. Q. B. 202), as similarly where a rotten floor in a building also being pulled down, gave way. A machine, not out of order, but constructively unfit for the purpose, may be defective (Heske v. Samuelson, (1884) 12 Q. B. D. 30; 53 L. J. Q. B. 45; Paley v. Garnett, (1886) 16 Q. B. D. 52), or being used for a purpose foreign to its intention, e.g., a ladder used to support a scaffold, or a ladder supported against a piece of pipe instead of a wall (Cripps v. Judge, (1884) 13 Q. B. D. 583: 53 L. J. Q. B. 517, and Weblin v. Ballard, (1886) 17 Q. B. D. 122; 55 L. J. Q. B. 395).

A master is not bound to have the most up-to-date machine on the market if the one he has is reasonably fit for the purpose (Walsh v. Whiteley, (1888) 21 Q. B. D. 371; 57 L. J. Q. B. 586; Butler v. Birbaum, 7 T. L. R. 287); but he must not expose his servants to unnecessary risks as by not fencing (Morgan v. Hutchings, (1890) 59 L. J. Q. B. 197); on the other hand, neither must a servant wilfully run into danger and then seek to make his employer liable (Martin v. Connah's Quay Alkali Co., (1884) 33 W. R. 216). A man has a right to assume his employer's tackle is sound, and is not bound to provide against possible defects, e.g., as by taking shelter if he might think a chain defective (Rooney v Allen, (1883) 10 R. 1224). Machinery in itself not defective, but liable to be used by unskilled men, becomes constructively defective if they are likely to use it in such a way as to make it prove dangerous (Staunton v. Scrutton, (1893) 62 L. J. Q. B. 405). Of course, if a machine properly fit in itself becomes dangerous through the negligent user of a fellow servant, it will not be defective within the Act (Robbins v. Cubbitt, (1882) 46 L. T. 535, where a man was injured through a pail falling on him, due to the absence of the man who ought to have steadied it).

In this class of case the defence of volentia to which we have referred became one of increasing importance, but this we have discussed in defences to an action.

Along with the defect must also be proved the negligence as specified in the qualifying sect. 2, sub-s. 1, and when a wall was swaying dangerously, and the foreman at once stopped work, called in a proper contractor to make it secure, and when, after he had left it safe as he thought, the men returned and it fell on the plaintiff, it was held the master had been guilty of no negligence, either in person or by his foreman (Moore v. Gimson, (1889) 58 L. J. Q. B. 169). As a rule, the employment of a competent contractor to do work for an employer negatives negligence on his part, even if it proves defective (Kiddle v. Lovett, (1885) 16 Q. B. D. 605), and even if a master borrow plant, say a ladder, there is no presumption of negligence if it proves defective (Perry v. Brass, (1889) 5 T. L. R. 253). Note, this is the general rule as regards servants. As regards the general public it is subject to qualifications; e.g., an owner pulling down a dangerous building cannot escape all responsibility by simply employing someone else to do it for him (Hughes v. Percival, (1883) 8 Ap. Cas. 443; 52 L. J. Q. B. 719).

Sect. 1, sub-s. 2.—By reason of the negligence of any person in the service of the employer who has superintendence entrusted to him whilst in the exercise of such superintendence.]—This sub-section must be read with sect. 8 as follows: The expression "person who has superintendence entrusted to him" means a person whose sole or principal duty is that of superintendence and who is not ordinarily engaged in manual labour. This qualification does not apply to where a superintendent voluntarily and temporarily engages in manual labour (Ray v. Wallis, (1887) 3 T. L. R. 777); nor need the superintendent of a necessity have actual superintendence over the workman injured. Thus in Osborne v. Jackson, (1883) 11 Q. B. D. 619, a bricklayer was at work near a scaffold which was being taken down by other men. The foreman helping them, handed a plank to a labourer, but owing to his being too far off he could not hold it, and through its falling the plaintiff was injured.

As a rule, one of a gang who himself works will not be a person within this section, even if he be the one to give directions (Shaffers v. General Steam Navigation Co., (1883) 10 Q. B. D. 356 ; 52 L. J. Q. B. 260, and Kellard v. Rooke, (1888) 21 Q. B. D. 367 ; 57 L. J. Q. B. 599) ; otherwise if he be a foreman (M'Monagee v. Baird, (1881) 9 R. 364). In Race v. Harrison, (1893) 10 T. L. R. 92, a boy lost his fingers when cleaning a machine which the foreman told him to do, at the same time providing him with no proper scraper, and was held entitled.

1.—(3) By reason of the negligence of any person in the service of the employer to whose orders or directions the workman at the time of the injury was bound to conform, and did conform, where such injury resulted from his having so conformed.

The negligence is not confined to the order itself, nor is it necessary that conformity to the order should be the causa causans, but there must be an intimate connection between the negligence, the injury, and the conformity to the order (Wild v. Waygood, (1892) 1 Q. B. 783 ; 61 L. J. Q. B. 391). An order not given in a particular case may be presumed from a course of action where in similar cases orders have been given previously ; as where a vanman has usually told a boy to help him to untie packages, and on one occasion he has been hurt through doing so, though without then receiving particular instructions (Millward v. M. R. Co., (1885) 14 Q. B. D. 68 ; 54 L. J. Q. B. 202). Where men of the same standing and when working at a job, one tells the other to do something, such order does not come within the section (Howard v. Bennett, (1889) 58 L. J. Q. B. 129). Orders to do a forbidden thing, obviously do not come within the section. A man knows his duty is rather to disobey than to conform to them (Bunker v. M. R. Co., (1883) 47 L. T. 476). A man may be used merely as a medium to convey orders from the master. This does not constitute him one to whose own orders a man is bound to conform (Snowden v. Baynes, (1890) 25 Q. B. D. 193 ; 59 L. J. Q. B. 325).

1.—(4) By reason of the act or omission of any person in the service of the employer done or made in obedience to the rules or bye-laws of the employer, or in obedience to particular instructions given by any person delegated with the authority of the employer in that behalf.

Note this is to be read as qualified by sect. 2, sub-s. 2. This is a section that has not been largely used. Whatley v. Holloway, (1890) 62 L. T. 639, seems to be the only case where it has been relied upon, and then hopelessly.

1.—(5) By reason of the negligence of any person in the service of the employer who has the charge or control of any signal, points, locomotive engine, or train upon a railway.

The term railway applies to a temporary railway laid down by a contractor for the purposes of construction of works (Doughty v. Firbank, (1883) 10 Q. B. D. 358 ; 52 L. J. Q. B. 480) ; but a steam crane fixed in a trolley and propelled by steam on a set of rails is not a locomotive (Murphy v. Wilson, (1883) 52 L. J. Q. B. 524).

In Gibbs v. G. W. R., (1884) 12 Q. B. D. 208 ; 53 L. J. Q. B. 543, where it was the duty of "F" to clean and adjust the points, etc., of the defendants' line, and he did it negligently, it was held there was no evidence of control.

In Cox v. G. W. R., (1883) 9 Q. B. D. 106, a man in charge of a capstan worked by hydraulic power, set it in motion and, without giving the usual warning, sent some trucks along a line in a goods station and injured the plaintiff. Held, he had charge or control of a train (see also Robinson v. Watson, (1893) 20 R. 144, where a brake on a wagon was defective, but no duty to test was proved against the defendant, and the pursuer failed. In M'Cord v. Cammell, (1896) A. C. 57 ; 65 L. J. Q. B. 202, the question of fact as to control of a train was also involved.

Limit of sum recoverable as compensation.

3. The amount of compensation recoverable under this Act shall not exceed such sum as may be found to be equivalent to the estimated earnings during the three years preceding the injury, of a person in the same grade employed during those years in the like employment and in the district in which the workman is employed at the time of the injury.

This section prescribes a limit, not a measure of damages recoverable, and these have to be assessed once and for all (Mitchell v. Darley Main Colliery Co., (1886) 11 A. C. 127; 55 L. J. Q. B. 529). Up to this limit a workman is entitled to receive compensation for all loss sustained as if he were a stranger. Thus in Bortick v. Head, (1886) 53 L. T. 909, the plaintiff belonged to a class of workman whose average earnings in three years would have amounted to 169*l.* Anything up to 169*l.* the court held he would have been entitled to, and therefore when the jury gave 69*l.* as damages—60*l.* for loss sustained in the service of his employer, and 9*l.* for loss of overtime worked for someone else—he was held entitled to both.

Nor may the limit thus ascertained be exceeded. In Noel v. Redruth Foundry Co., (1896) 1 Q. B. 453; 65 L. J. Q. B. 330, the county court judge held that the 5*s.* a week which an apprentice received was nominal and gave 80*l.* compensation. The Divisional Court held this wrong, and decided that adventitious advantages such as tuition could not be included.

The principles on which the loss sustained is to be estimated are fully discussed in Phillips v. L. & S. W. R., (1879) 4 Q. B. D. 406, affirmed (1880) 5 Q. B. D. 78; 49 L. J. Q. B. 233. They include: Damages for loss of time and the expense of his cure; for pain and suffering; and for the loss of future profit or earnings; of these the measure is the difference between what the plaintiff might have earned and was likely to have earned if he had not been injured, and what he might earn and was likely to earn in his injured state. The injured man's own damages are not to be lessened on account of any insurance he holds (Bradburn v. G. W. R., (1875) L. R. 10 Ex. 1; 44 L. J. Ex. 9), though a different rule governs in case of death.

In case of death, the rights are provided for by the latter part of sect. 1, and are to be those of a stranger (see ante, under Lord Campbell's Act).

Limit of time for recovery of compensation.

4. An action for the recovery under this Act of compensation for an injury shall not be maintainable unless notice that injury has been sustained is given within six weeks and the action is commenced within six months from the occurrence of the accident causing the injury, or in case of death, within twelve months from the time of death: provided always that in case of death the want of such notice shall be no bar to the maintenance of such action if the judge shall be of opinion that there was reasonable excuse for such want of notice.

See under sect. 7.

Money payable under penalty to be deducted from compensation under Act.

5. There shall be deducted from any compensation awarded to any workman, or representatives of a workman, or persons claiming by, under, or through a workman in respect of any cause of action arising under this Act, any penalty or part of a penalty which may have been paid in pursuance of any other Act of Parliament to such workman, representatives, or persons in respect of the same cause of action; and where an action has been brought under this Act by any workman, or the representatives of any workman, or any persons claiming by, under, or through such workman, for compensation in respect of any cause of action arising under this Act, and payment has not previously been made of any penalty or part of a penalty under any other Act of Parliament in respect of the same cause of action, such workman, representatives, or persons shall not be entitled thereafter to receive any penalty or part of a penalty under any other Act of Parliament in respect of the same cause of action.

If a man has recovered penalties they are simply to be deducted under this section, but where a man has a remedy against two or more wrongdoers, and recovers against one, he cannot recover anything more from anyone else, whether he sues such other for the same cause of action or a different cause, but arising out of the same wrongful act. In Wright v. London Omnibus Co., (1877) 2 Q. B. D. 271; 46 L. J. Q. B. 429, a cabman was injured through two 'bus drivers racing. They were summoned and fined, and had to pay him 10*l.* compensation. Afterwards, when he obtained a verdict against the 'bus company for nearly 200*l.*, judgment was entered for the defendants on the ground he had been already compensated. Following a dictum of Manisty, J., in Munday v. Thames Iron Works Co., (1883) 10 Q. B. D. 62; 52 L. J. Q. B. 119, a practice has grown up in county courts of not allowing any other cause of action to be joined with that under the Act. But Yarmouth v. France, (1888) 19 Q. B. D. 647; 57 L. J. Q. B. 7, as law is only intelligible on the basis that rights both at common law as well as under the Act were taken into consideration.

Trial of actions.

6.—(1) Every action for recovery of compensation under this Act shall be brought in a county court, but may upon the application of either plaintiff or defendant, be removed into a superior court in like manner and upon the same conditions as an action commenced in a county court may by law be removed.

(2) Upon the trial of any such action in a county court before the judge without a jury one or more assessors may be appointed for the purpose of ascertaining the amount of compensation.

(3) For the purpose of regulating the conditions and mode of appointment and remuneration of such assessors, and all matters of procedure relating to their duties, and also for the purpose of consolidating any actions under this Act in a county court, and otherwise preventing multiplicity of such actions, rules and regulations may be made, varied and repealed from time to time in the same manner as rules and regulations for regulating the practice and procedure in other actions in county courts.

"County court" shall with respect to Scotland mean the "Sheriff's Court" and shall, with respect to Ireland mean "Civil Bill Court."

In Scotland any action under this Act may be removed to the Court of Session at the instance of either party in the manner provided by, and subject to, the conditions prescribed by section 9 of the Sheriff Courts (Scotland) Act, 1877.

40 & 41 Vict. c. 50.

In Scotland the sheriff may conjoin actions arising out of the same occurrence or cause of action, though at the instance of different parties and in respect of different injuries.

Sub-s. 1.]—In Munday v. Thames Iron Works Co., (1883) 10 Q. B. D. 59; 52 L. J. Q. B. 119, it was held no reason for removal that the plaintiff had given a defective notice and wished to consolidate his action under the Act with one he had commenced in the High Court on his master's common law liability. Nor is it a reason for removal that more than 50*l.* is likely to be recovered (McEvoy v. Waterford S. S. Co., (1885) 16 L. R. Ir. 291). Sect. 62 of the County Courts Act, 1888, entitles the defendant in any action of tort, when the claim exceeds a certain amount, and on certain conditions as to giving security for costs, etc., to remove the case to the High Court. Held by the Court of Appeal this section did not apply to actions under the Act (Claxton v. Lucas, 14 Q. B. D. 905). Application for certiorari is to a master in chambers on affidavit (Order LIV. r. 12).

In Bates v. Warner, (1889) 5 T. L. R. 582 (C. A.), where the defendant alleged he would not get a fair trial in the county court, and undertook to pay all extra costs incurred whether he won or lost, and after Lord Coleridge had been communicated with and had expressed his willingness to hear the case at the Chelmsford Assizes, he was allowed to have it removed.

Practice special to the Act.]—Order XLIV. deals with the practice special to the Act subject to which the procedure is that of the county court. (See Order LIII. r. 8 (1) as to certain special allowances authorised under the Act.)

Practitioners should remember that no appeal can be brought on any point unless it has been taken at the trial in the county court, and a note to that effect made by the judge (Smith v. Baker, (1891) A. C. 325; 60 L. J. Q. B. 683), as this somewhat differentiates from the more familiar procedure under the Workmen's Compensation Acts.

In case of death the above form can be readily altered, but this further clause must be added :—

Particulars under Lord Campbell's Act (9 & 10 Vict. c. 93), s. 4, should be attached, and should give the facts as to the names, ages, and relationship to the deceased of those claiming, as well as the pecuniary advantage they received, or were likely to receive, from him had he not been killed.

It will be observed that the above form only covers a master's statutory liability. If the draughtsman likes to allege personal negligence throughout, in addition, no harm will be done.

Mode of serving notice of injury.

7. Notice in respect of an injury under this Act shall give the name and address of the person injured, and shall state in ordinary language the cause of the injury and the date at which it was sustained, and shall be served on the employer, or if there is more than one employer, upon one of such employers.

The notice may be served by delivering the same to or at the residence or place of business of the person on whom it is to be served.

The notice may also be served by post by a registered letter addressed to the person on whom it is to be served at his last known place of residence or place of business; and if served by post, shall be deemed to have been served at the time when a letter containing the same would be delivered in the ordinary course of post; and in proving the service of such notice, it shall be sufficient to prove that the notice was properly addressed and registered.

Where the employer is a body of persons corporate or unincorporate, the notice shall be served by delivering the same at or by sending it by post in a registered letter addressed to the office, or if there be more than one office, any one of the offices of such body.

A notice under this section shall not be deemed invalid by reason of any defect or inaccuracy therein, unless the judge who tries the action arising from the injury mentioned in the notice shall be of opinion that the defendant in the action is prejudiced in his defence by such defect or inaccuracy and that the defect or inaccuracy was for the purpose of misleading.

Also read with this section, sect. 4.

Notice under the Act, except in case of death, is a condition precedent to recovering (Clarkson v. Musgrave, (1882) 9 Q. B. D. 386; 51 L. J. Q. B. 525), and it must be in writing, and the courts cannot waive its being given, even where, as in Moyle v. Jenkins, (1881) 8 Q. B. D. 116; 51 L. J. Q. B. 112, the defendant visited the injured man when in hospital, and the matron wrote as to his condition. More, a notice should conform to the requirements of sect. 7, and where a notice by the plaintiff's solicitor referred to particulars, given verbally, it was held insufficient (Keen v. Millwall Dock Co., (1882) 8 Q. B. D. 482; 51 L. J. Q. B. 277).

But the notice is enough if it substantially gives the name and address of the person injured, and the cause and date of the injury. In Stone v. Hyde, (1882) 9 Q. B. D. 76; 51 L. J. Q. B. 452, the notice only gave the date of the injury, and stated that the plaintiff was and had been for some time under treatment at a hospital for injury to his leg. Held, having regard to the saving clause it might pass. So in Clarkson v. Musgrave, (1882) 9 Q. B. D. 396; 51 L. J. Q. B. 525, the notice stated as the cause the defendants' negligence in leaving a certain hoist in their warehouse unprotected, whilst the jury found it was their negligence in allowing the plaintiff, a young girl, to go into the hoist alone. Held notice sufficiently stated the cause of the injury.

In Carter v. Drysdale, (1883) 12 Q. B. D. 91; 53 L. J. Q. B. 557, the date was omitted, but the judge at the trial found it was not for the purpose of misleading, and it was held a defect that could be cured. So in Beckett v. Manchester Corporation, (1888) 52 J. P. 346, the omission of address and date was not held fatal; and in Previdi v. Gatti, (1888) 58 L. T. 762, where the letter was not registered but was acknowledged, and where the date of the accident was stated as August 8th instead of August 9th, and the address and cause of injury omitted, it was also held good as a notice for the same reason. More, the court held its having been posted on August 19th was evidence of its having been received on the 20th. As regards delivery, this is in accordance with the Scotch case (McGovan v. Tancred, (1886) 13 R. 1033), where it was held if a notice be de facto received its mode of delivery is not material. But if sent by post on such a day that it could not possibly be received in time it will be bad (McDonagh v. McLellan, (1886) 13 R. 1800). In another case (Rathbone v. Ross, 35 S. J. 208), a workman who had been injured gave a notice addressed to Mr. Wm. Ross, but who in fact had been dead six months, his business being carried on by his trustee. Held it was sufficient. In case of death of the plaintiff, reasonable excuse for not sending notice is a question for the judge (Trail v. Kelman, (1887) 15 R. 4).

On the other hand, if the defendant wishes to avail himself of the want of notice, it being a special defence, he must file the usual five days' notice required by Order X. r. 10, County Court Rules, 1889 (Conroy v. Peacock, (1897) 2 Q. B. 6; 66 L. J. Q. B. 425).

Again, the action must be commenced within six months from the occurrence of the accident. This condition cannot be waived. In Clark v. Adams, (1885) 12 R. 1092, notice had been given by a former agent who had died. A new agent was ignorant of the notice, and brought action at common law and failed. Then he learnt notice had been given, and asked leave to amend the claim so as to bring it under the statute. Six months having elapsed it was held not competent to allow the amendment.

8. For the purposes of this Act unless the context otherwise requires— Definitions.

The expression "person who has superintendence entrusted to him" means a person whose sole or principal duty is that of superintendence, and who is not ordinarily engaged in manual labour;

The expression "employer" includes a body of persons corporate or unincorporate.

A company acts by its directors acting in their capacity of directors, but their manager is only their servant and fellow-servant with the other employees of the company. It does not change the position that such manager has been appointed in pursuance of an Act of Parliament to that effect (Howells v. Landore Steel Co., (1874) L. R. 10 Q. B. 62; 44 L. J. Q. B. 25). It does not include a mine owner where a workman is employed by an independent contractor, merely because he has a statutory control over his mine (Marrow v. Flimby Coal Co., (1898) 2 Q. B. 588; 67 L. J. Q. B. 976; and Fitzpatrick v. Evans, (1902) 1 K. B. 505; 71 L. J. K. B. 302).

The expression "workman" means a railway servant and any person to whom the Employers' and Workmen Act, 1875, applies. 38 & 39 Vict. c. 90.

In the Employers' and Workmen Act, 1875 (38 & 39 Vict. c. 90), s. 10, a workman is thus defined:—

"The expression 'workman' does not include a domestic or menial servant but save as aforesaid means any person who being a labourer servant in husbandry journeyman artificer handicraftsman miner or otherwise engaged in manual labour whether under the age of twenty-one years or above that age has entered into or works under a contract with an employer whether the contract be made before or after the passing of this Act be expressed or implied oral or in writing and be a contract of service or a contract personally to execute any work or labour."

And sect. 13 of the same Act enacts :—

"This Act shall not apply to seamen or to Apprentices to the sea service."

Nor does it apply to apprentices paying a premium of more than 25*l.*, nor to servants of the Crown, as the Crown is never included unless specifically named (Attorney-General v. Hill, 2 M. & W. 160; 6 L. J. Ex. 105; 46 R. R. 542).

It is a question of fact for the jury whether a man is a workman or not within the definition (Pearce v. Lansdowne, (1893) 62 L. J. Q. B. 441), though perhaps the court in some cases may find a difficulty in explaining to them the meaning to be applied to the word "menial." In Dr. Johnson's Dictionary we find "menial" defined as "Belonging to the retinue or train of servants"; and it is derived from the Saxon "meiny," "many," or "mani," or the old French "mesnie."

Other definitions have been attempted, but this seems to most harmonize with the decisions in some early cases where its meaning was involved. Thus a gardener has been held to be a menial servant (Johnson v. Blenkinsop, (1841) 5 Jur. 870; 62 R. R. 865); so also a head gardener, receiving a salary of 100*l.* a year, with the right to take apprentices (Nowlan v. Ablett, (1826) 2 Cr. M. & R. 5; 4 L. J. Ex. 155); and a huntsman (Nicoll v. Greaves, (1864) 33 L. J. C. P. 259); and in a recent case a potman in a public-house has also been so held (Pearce v. Lansdowne, supra).

Again, the following, not being workmen as specified, and not being engaged in manual labour were held not within the Act:—A grocer's assistant (Bound v. Laurance, (1892) L. R., 1 Q. B. 226; 61 L. J. M. C. 21); the driver of a tramcar (Cook v. North Metropolitan Tramways Co., (1887) 18 Q. B. D. 683; 56 L. J. Q. B. 309); and the conductor of an omnibus (Morgan v. London General Omnibus Co. (C. A.), (1883) 13 Q. B. D. 832; 53 L. J. Q. B. 352); but the driver of a cart and horse used by wharfingers is a workman within the Act (Yarmouth v. France, (1888) 19 Q. B. D. 647; 57 L. J. Q. B. 7).

The following have been held to be workmen within the Act: A potter's printer, paid by the piece, and employing and paying assistants (Grainger v. Aynsley, (1881) 6 Q. B. D. 182; 50 L. J. M. C. 48); a slater, paid by the piece, using his own tools and the materials of his master (Stuart v. Evans, (1882) 49 L. T. 138); and a fireman on a steam canal barge is not a seaman within the excepting clause 13, and is within the meaning of the section (Oates v. Monkland Steam Iron Co., (1884) 11 R. 579).

Commencement of Act.

9. This Act shall not come into operation until the first day of January one thousand eight hundred and eighty-one, which date is in this Act referred to as the commencement of this Act.

Short title.

10. This Act may be cited as the Employers' Liability Act, 1880, and shall continue in force till the thirty-first day of December one thousand eight hundred and eighty-seven, and to the end of the then next session of Parliament, and no longer, unless Parliament shall otherwise determine, and all actions commenced under this Act before that period shall be continued as if the said Act had not expired.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT, 1906.

[6 Edw. VII. c. 58.]

An Act to Consolidate and Amend the Law with Respect to Compensation to Workmen for Injuries suffered in the Course of their Employment.

(21st December, 1906.)

Be it enacted by the King's most Excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords spiritual and temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows :—

SECTION 1.

Liability of Employers to Workmen for Injuries.

Liability of employers to workmen for injuries.

1.—(1) If in any employment personal injury by accident arising out of and in the course of the employment is caused to a workman, his employer shall, subject as herein-after mentioned, be liable to pay compensation in accordance with the first schedule to this Act.

Any Employment.—Jurisdiction.]—This Act is limited to the ambit of the United Kingdom, e.g., it does not apply to a contractor employing a workman in Malta (Tomalin v. Pearson, (1909) 2 K. B. 61), nor to a workman lost on a ship when on his way to do work for his English employers abroad (Schwartz v. Indiarubber, etc., Telegraph Works, (1912) 2 K. B. 299), and in Kyzus v. Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co., (1913) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 38, an alien widow living in Austria, of a workman (also an alien) killed in Canada, was held entitled under an Act with similar provisions (see also Baird v. Savage, 43 S. L. R. 370).

Personal Injury.]—This is not limited to physical results, and nervous shock, etc., is included (Brown v. John Watson, Ltd., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 228, at p. 232) ; e.g., where a man became incapacitated through seeing a fellow workman killed (Yates v. South Kirby, etc., Collieries, 3 B. 418).

Accident.]—Onus of proof on applicant (Maxwell v. Ruabon Coal and Coke Co., Ltd., (1917) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 36). When accident is admitted the arbitrator has no jurisdiction to inquire into the question whether there has been an accident or not (Rudge v. G. Young and Son, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 374). It has long been settled that an accident may be either external to the subject, e.g., a man injured by an explosion ; or be purely subjective, as where a man unintentionally injures himself, e.g., by a strain. But whichever it is it must be traceable to a definite act at a definite time. In Alloa Co. v. Drylie, (1913) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 213, a pump in a coal mine broke down, water accumulated, the men quitted work, it rose to their knees, one of them got pneumonia and died, and it was held through accident (compare Barbeary v. Chugg, (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 174). In Brown v. John Watson, Ltd., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 228, reversing Watson v. Brown, (1913) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 225, it was held that where an accident in a neighbouring shaft resulted in a delay in getting out of the mine, with the result a man had to stand waiting for the cage in a draught, and also got pneumonia and died, there was evidence of an accident directly affecting the man. See also Glasgow Coal Co., Ltd. v. Welsh, (1916) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 79. Contrast Lyons v. Woodilee Coal and Coke Co., (1916) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 235. It does not follow that the accident must be held to arise out of the employment (Lyons v. Woodilee Coal and Coke Co., (1916) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 235). Injury from disease not traceable to a definite act at a definite time is not injury from accident (Eke v. Hart-Dyke, (1910) 2 K. B. 677; Coe v. Fife Coal Co., (1909) S. C. 393; Martin v. Manchester Corporation, (1912) W. C. Rep. 289; Finlay v. Tullamore Union (Guardians), (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 222). The circumstances in which disease may be deemed an injury by accident was discussed in Scott v. Pearson, (1916) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 128 (the cattle ringworm case). Anthrax, according to facts, may or may not be traceable to such definite act (Sherwood v. Johnson, (1913) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 57); as also an injury from frost bite (Warner v. Couchman, (1912) A. C. 35); or injury from heat stroke; or disease caused by inhaling poisonous gases (Broderick v. L. C. C., (1908) 2 K. B. 807; Finlay v. Tullamore Union (Guardians), supra). In Morgan v. Zenaida, 2 B. 19, the "definite act" was due to exposed position; in Ismay v. Williamson, (1908) A. C. 437, to the suddenness of attack. See also M'Millan v. Singer Sewing Machine Co., (1913) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 70 (workman heated, chill, pleurisy; application dismissed); Martin v. Manchester Corporation, (1912) W. C. Rep. (there must be a definite time and place); Swinbank v. Bell Bros., (1911) 5 B. W. C. C. 48 (the disease must be shown to be caused by the accident); Ritchie v. Kerr, (1913) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 297; Coe v. Fife Coal Co., (1909) S. C. 393; Spence v. William Baird & Co., (1912) W. C. Rep. 18; Black v. New Zealand Shipping Co., (1913) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 480 (heart strain); Lewis v. Port of London Authority, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 299; Walker v. Hockney Bros., (1909) 2 B. 20; Clarkson v. Charente S. Co., (1913) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 422; Evans v. Dodd, (1912) 5 B. 305; White v. Sheepwash, (1910) 3 B. 382; Walker v. Murrays, (1911) Sc. 825; Hayward v. West Leigh Colliery Co., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 21; (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 235 (disease caused by an accumulation of facts); Maskery v. Lancs. Shipping Co., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 290 (delicate stoker's death in the tropics due to heat stroke). Contrast Pyper v. Manchester Liners, Ltd., (1916) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 301 (stoker's death from heat-stroke no "accident"). See per Pickford, L.J., at p. 306, for a short explanation of the cases.

Intentional or Felonious Assault.]—A free worker injured by strikers is not injured by accident (Murray v. Denholm, 48 S. L. R. 896); though a cashier murdered when travelling is (Nisbet v. Rayne and Burn, (1910) 2 K. B. 689). It was also held in Blake v. Head, (1912) W. C. Rep. 198, that a boy injured by a madman (his employer) was not entitled, though this decision seems doubtful. In Anderson v. Balfour, (1910) 2 Ir. R. 497, a gamekeeper while acting as such was attacked by poachers. Held that he had been injured by accident. In Low v. Port of London Authority, (1913) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 324, the appeal was formally dismissed with a view to an appeal to the House of Lords. The matter has now been settled by Trim Joint District School, etc. v. Kelly, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 359, which decided that accident includes premeditated injury intended by others, but not by the workman. But the "accident" must, of course, be incidental to the employment, and in most cases of premeditated injury the consequent incapacity through "injury by accident" would not be "injury by accident arising out of, etc." See, e.g.,

Section 1 Notes.

Clayton v. Hardwick Colliery Co., Ltd., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 343 (reversed on appeal to the House of Lords on the ground that there was some evidence to support the arbitrator's finding, (1916) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 33); Weekes v. Wm. Stead, Ltd., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 434. This distinction, however, does not appear to have been made in MacFarlane v. Shaw (Glasgow), Ltd., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 32.

Suicide.]—Suicide while insane where the insanity is induced by the accident may be held to be an injury by accident arising out of, etc. But it would be necessary to give evidence of insanity. See, e.g., Grime v. Fletcher, (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 250. Suicide will not be presumed (Furnivall v. Johnson's Iron and Steel Co., 5 B. 45). Of course all the links in the chain connecting injury with death must be proved (see, e.g., Withers v. L. B. & S. E. Ry., (1916) W. C. & I. 317).

Consequent Results due to Unreasonable Conduct or other Intervening Cause.]—The law is easier to state than to apply. Whatever a man's condition and to whatever that condition is due, a man must act reasonably, having regard to that condition. A man has typhoid—is he to eat a beefsteak? Or bronchitis—is he to sleep in a damp bed? The answer is no, and in each case he must do all that he reasonably can to perfect his recovery, and this whether his condition is due to accident or other cause. If he does so act reasonably—irrespective of whether the result proves he acted for the best or not—it is clear that the final consequence is as much due to the accident as if it had at once manifested itself. On the other hand, if he acts unreasonably, takes no care, the consequences are not due to the accident, but to his own folly. Of course the court may find as a fact that notwithstanding his want of care the same result would have taken place even had he been reasonable and careful, as that the typhoid or bronchitis instanced would have proved mortal in any event, and then the accident may still be held the cause of consequences apparently most remote (Dunnigan v. Cavan; Thorburn v. Bedlington Coal Co., 5 B. 128). Where surgical appliances and first aid are provided, arbitrators may well find serious injuries developed from neglected trifling hurts to be due, not to the accident, but the neglect (see remarks, Court of Appeal, in Brady v. Can. Pac. R., (1913) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 479). An arbitrator need not necessarily give no compensation. Thus refusing to undergo a reasonable operation or treatment may debar the workman from recovering, but a suspensory or nominal award may in certain circumstances be made in case the treatment proves ineffective. See Wright v. Sneyd Collieries, Ltd., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 354. The arbitrator can award so much as he finds due to the accident (Harwood v. Wyken, (1913) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 317). In M'Nally v. Furness, Withy & Co., (1913) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 717, where an injured man was sent to gaol for highway robbery, the court held that, since had he been at liberty to work he would be partially incapacitated, the mere fact that a collateral cause (viz., imprisonment) also prevented him working did not prevent him recovering compensation; and see Harwood v. Wyken Colliery, (1913) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 317.

But of course there must be incapacity due to the accident. If there is an intervening cause between accident and injury, e.g., workman's own carelessness, refusal to undergo operation, etc., the incapacity is not due to the accident (see further under Schedule I. (3), "Physical Incapacity").

It may happen that a supervening cause may be the cause of the incapacity, as where a man broke his arm and it was set so badly by an unqualified man he could not use it. It was held that such bad setting was in no way a necessary result of the accident, and he failed to recover (Humber Towing Co. v. Barclay, 5 B. 142).

But when a lad hurt his knee, and went to a hospital, and there caught scarlet fever which attacked his knee, it was decided: "If the incapacity is the result of the accident, the chain of causation remains unbroken, although a fresh cause arising casually or uninvited by any special conditions of the workman may have aggravated the original injury (Brown v. Kent, (1913)

Section 1 Notes.

W. C. & Ins. Rep. 639). Note, in the first case, the man acted unreasonably, or as may be said, invited the further injury by going to an unqualified man. In Brown's case the boy did the very best he could. Had he deliberately gone to a friend's room sick with the fever, he also might have been said to have invited his own misfortune. A man's own conduct usually differentiates the two classes of cases; e.g., a seaman hurt his wrist, it was getting well. He went on shore, returned the worse for liquor, had a fight, it was hurt again, and he could not recover (Nelson v. Allan Bros., (1913) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 532). Submitted that the test is, did the workman act reasonably ? (see Molamphy v. Sheridan and Others, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 19; Walsh v. Locke & Co., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 95).

If the result of an accident remain it is no answer that a concurrent cause by disease or a second accident would have caused the incapacity. For even if true, the result of the first accident would still be found in diminished earning capacity; e.g., a man might be earning 40*s.* a week and be entitled to 20*s.* a week compensation. Partially incapacitated, he might only be able to earn 20*s.* a week, when if again injured, he would only be entitled to 10*s.* a week compensation. Thus the result of his first accident is still found in his being reduced from a 40*s.* to a 20*s.* a week man (Harwood v Wyken, and M'Nally's case, supra).

Results due to Prior Accident or Diseased Condition.]—A subsequent incapacity is not necessarily to be regarded as due to an antecedent accident, the question is not whether the antecedent accident is a contributing cause of the later incapacity but whether the later incapacity was caused by an accident (Noden v. Galloways, Ltd., (1912) 1 K. B. 46). An accident is no less an accident because it would not have happened or there would have been no ill results had there been no prior accident or diseased condition (Borland v. Watson Gow, 49 Sc. L. R. 10; see also analogous cases under "Arising out of.—Questions Involved, IV."). Of course the incapacity must be due to the accident and not solely to the diseased condition. Which is the cause is a question of fact, and if there is evidence to support the arbitrator's finding it cannot be reversed. See e.g., Legge v. Nixon's Navigation Co., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 306; M'Ardle v. Swansea Harbour Trust, (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 448; Beane v. Garrod, (1915) ibid. 438.

"Arising out of and in the course of."—Introductory.]—A double condition is in these words. The applicant must prove both that the accident arose out of, and in the course of the employment. The words are used conjunctively, not disjunctively, not as meaning out of, that is to say, in the course of. An applicant fails if no evidence be given or if it be as consistent with one view of the facts as another (Pomfret v. L. & Y. Rail. Co., (1903) 2 K. B. 718).

Evidence that Compensation has been paid.]—Such evidence is admissible on the issue whether the injury was due to an accident arising out of, etc. See Harley v. Walsall Wood Collierg Co., Ltd., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 9.

Evidence of Workman's Habits.—This also is admissible if it throws light on the cause of death (Joy v. Phillips, Mills & Co., Ltd., (1916) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 47).

Inference from Facts.]—Every material fact is rarely proved direct. It is often only inferred from other facts. Such inference is a question of law, and is the subject of appeal. Facts found are not the subject of appeal, and a finding of fact can only be set aside if there be no evidence in support.

Questions Involved.]—These mostly come under four heads:—

I. Was there an accident in fact, and if so, where?

Accident, when presumed]—There are cases where, direct proof being wanting, an accident has to be inferred (Proctor v. "Serbino" (Owners), (1915 W. C. & Ins. Rep. 425; (1916) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 30). The leading case is

Section 1 Notes.

Mitchell v. Glamorgan Coal Co., 9 W. C. C. 16. Here a miner injured his finger, and died from blood poisoning. It was unexplained how he injured it. He may have told his wife or doctor, but their evidence would not be admissible (see Schedule II. (4)). But it was proved he left home and reached the mine with it all right, and that when he again reached home it was crushed. From these facts was inferred that he had been (1) injured by accident, and (2) when at work, as the nature of his injuries was more consistent with what might have happened to him then rather than when on his way home. But note this case does not justify mere guessing nor mere deciding on probabilities. Facts must be proved from which the alleged accident may be inferred (Howe v. Fernhill Collieries, (1912) W. C. Rep. 408). "For inference, there is a fact which leads to the inference; in guessing, there is no fact to lead" (Buckley, L.J., in Fleet v. Johnson, (1913) W. C. Rep. 149).

Stapleton v. The Dinnington Main Colliery Co., (1912) W. C. Rep. 376, is a valuable illustration of the kind of evidence agreed to warrant such inference. Here a miner complained of having been hurt, a thing the witness could see was the case, who then went to the place where he had been working and saw that a piece of coal three or four pounds in weight had fallen there, and the doctor agreed from what she saw that such a piece of coal falling on a man's foot would cause the injury complained of. Again in Bateman v. Albion Combing Co., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 18, a workman was injured by the fall of a lid of a barrel from a window, no evidence was adduced to show why the lid fell. It did not merely fall perpendicularly, but must have had a considerable horizontal movement when it left the window. Held, that the workman had failed to show that it was an accident arising out of, etc.

Questions Involved.—II. Was the man substantially doing what he was employed to do: or as otherwise put, was he acting within the sphere of his employment when he was injured?

This proposition almost answers itself. Thus, if a man was doing what he was employed to do, even though in a wrong, negligent or forbidden way, the accident still arises out of the employment; on the other hand, if he was even meritoriously doing something he was not employed to do, the accident does not arise out of his employment.

The principle involved cannot be better shown than in Harding v. Brynddu Colliery Co., (1911) 2 K. B. 747. Here a collier was set to drill a hole from above a seam in order to draw off dangerous gases which rendered the seam unsafe. He asked if he might go into the seam to see if his drill was running straight and was told, No! But he went all the same and was suffocated in consequence. Here, though disobedient, he was still about the work he was employed to do, viz., drilling the hole. The accident arose out of his trying to do such work, and as disobedience was no defence, his employers were held liable.

The contrary is shown in Kerr v. Baird, 48 S. L. R. 646, where a miner was injured through firing a shot which it was no part of his business to do. As the Lord President said, "He was arrogating to himself duties which he was neither engaged nor entitled to perform." See also Pugh v. Dudley (Earl), (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 265; Anderson v. Sir W. G. Armstrong, Whitworth Co. Ltd., (1917) W. C. & I. 71.

So in Plumb v. Cobden Flour Mills, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 48, a man employed to stack bags, for his own convenience, improvised a revolving shaft as a pulley to raise them with and was injured. Held, he was employed to work in a specified way; if he chose to work in another, he was not doing what he was employed to do. Compare Brinckman v. Harris, (1916) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 45; Chinnock v. Potter & Clark, Ltd., ibid., 55; Payne v. Curtis & Son, (1915) W. C. & Ins, Rep. 501; Leggett v. Gibbons, (1916) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 154. A fortiori, where a man through idleness chose such other dangerous way (Burns v. Summerlee Iron Co., (1913) W. C.

Section 1 Notes.

Rep. 45). But the mere fact that he is doing his work in a dangerous manner does not debar him from recovering (Bullworthy v. Glanfield, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 221; Partridge v. Whiteley, Ltd., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 56). Contrast Russell v. A. & G. Murray, Ltd., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 532. Consider also Lancashire and Yorkshire Ry. v. Highley, (1917) W. C. & I. 179. But if disobedience to an order extends the scope of the employment, i.e. adds a risk, and not merely a danger, and it is that risk which induces the accident, it may be held as in Herbert v. Samuel Fox & Co., Ltd., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 154, (1916) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 1, that the resulting injury was not caused by an accident arising out of, etc. These cases of added risk should be very narrowly viewed. They generally resolve themselves into cases of a workman doing something quite apart and distinct from what he was employed to do. See e.g. Hopley v. Pool, Lorrimer and Tabberer, (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 280; Palmer v. Harrods, Ltd., (1916) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 213 (where a man used a parcels lift to go from floor to floor). Phillimore L.J. in the latter case (at p. 215) suggested a useful distinction when he differentiated between incurred risks and added risks. Contrast Sexton v. Hosford, (1916) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 216. If he be merely doing his work in a wrong way he can recover (Corbett v. H. S. Pitt & Co., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 295). Entering a train while in motion has recently been held to add a risk (Jibb v. Chadwick, (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 342). Compare Baker v. Bradford (Earl), (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 576; affirmed, (1916) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 177. The tendency appears to be to extend the borders of this defence. (See further infra, sub-tit. Rule disregarded).

In exceptional cases a man may do a thing not within the letter of his contract of service, but within the spirit of it as in cases of emergency, e.g., stopping a runaway horse in his master's interest (Rees v. Thomas, (1899) 1 Q. B. 1015); but still he can only recover on the principle: he was doing what he was employed expressly or impliedly to do.

A general direction "to find a job" might, of course, considerably extend the scope of the employment (Lane v. W. Lusty & Son, (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 326). The scope would also probably be extended by a foreman saying that the workman would be dismissed if something happened, and the workman took the risk to prevent that thing happening or being discovered. See McNally v. Bootle Jute Factory Co., Ltd., (1916) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 64.

Difficult questions arise when a man, doing what he is employed to do, is injured by an act not material to the employment. Still the true question seems to be, Was he injured through doing something he was substantially employed to do. An unsettling case and somewhat doubtful one is M'Laughlin v. Anderson, 48 S. L. R. 349, where a driver of a traction engine dropped his pipe, and jumping down to recover it, fell, and was killed, and his widow recovered. Had he dropped a tool it would have been clear. Compare Evans v. Holloway, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 75, where a driver was injured while altering a seat to give a fellow-workman a lift. Held, that the accident arose out of and in the course of, etc. Watkins v. Guest, Keen and Nettlefold, (1912) W. C. Rep. 150, raises a similar difficult point. Here employers provided a train for their men. Fifty yards before it arrived at a platfrom one got on the footboard, fell, and was injured. The court held, substantially he was doing what he was employed to do, viz., being carried by the train. Buckley, L.J., held he was not, viz., he was riding on the footboard. Contrast, Price v. Tredegar Iron and Coal Co., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 295. A man may be within the "margin" of his employment while on his way to work along his employer's private road if such road be open to workmen. See Nicol v. Young's Paraffin Light, etc., Co., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 72. Where a man is employed to do work in place A. he is still entitled to compensation if injured in place B. if there is evidence to show that he went to place B. in connection with his work at place A. (Robert v. Geo. Trollope, etc., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 269). But such an act must be reasonably incidental to the employment. Thus where a carter went along a railway line where he had no business to be in order to get a loading permit it was held in Morris v. Rowbottom, ibid., p. 67, that the accident did not arise out of, etc. Where a man is employed to do work A. but it is the practice to also do occasionally work B. and there is no rule against it, and if it were not done the works generally would be inconvenienced and the workman is injured while doing work B. he can recover (Robson v. Wm. Baird & Co., Ltd., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 402).

Cases of men injured going to or from work turn frequently on the following principle laid down by the Master of the Rolls in Whittall v. Staveley Iron and Coal Co., Ltd., (1917) W. C. & I. Rep. at p. 205. "If the circumstances are such that, either expressly or by implication, you must hold that the workman was entitled, as against his employer, to use a particular way over his employer's land, or over somebody else's land, in respect of which the employer has for the purpose of the contract of service obtained a right, then it is an implied term of the contract that the man should be there, and being there is part of his employment, and an accident happening there arises out of and in the course of the employment." See further, as to such cases, infra, p. 1386.

Where a commercial traveller went on a journey to a town on his route for his own convenience and was found dead on the rails and it appeared that shortly before he was drunk, it was held that the accident did not arise out of, etc. (Renfrew v. R. & J. M'Crae, Ltd., (1914), W. C. & Ins. Rep. 195). So where a man was knocked down by a train when crossing the line by walking over the rails instead of crossing by the bridge (Pritchard v. Torkington, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 271). Compare L. & Y. Ry. v. Highley, (1917) W. C. & I. 179, a decision of the House of Lords which renders Fox v. Rees and Kirby, (1916) W. C. & I. 339 doubtful Where a scene shifter at a theatre was injured whilst doing the work of a baggage man for his own profit, it was held that that accident did not arise out of his employment as scene shifter (Huscroft v. Bennett, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 9). Where a boots, whose duty it was to await trains, fell on the rails it was held that the accident arose "out of" (Blake v. Ramsay, (1917) W. C. & I. 84).

Modification by Conduct.]—Saving as to statutory requirements, parties may make any contract of service they please. In many cases, material terms are found in notices, rules, etc., but even these may be modified by conduct. If a rule says one thing, and the accepted practice is another, it is some evidence the contract has been varied. Of course, as regards statutory rules and requirements, all parties know that these cannot be varied, and ignorance of them is of no avail (Dobson v. United Collieries, 43 S. L. R. 260). No doubt difficult questions arise whether a contract has thus been varied, but they are questions of fact and not of law.

Rule disregarded.]—If a rule is disregarded, it is primâ facie strong evidence a man was doing what he was not employed to do, e.g., a colliery boy riding in a tub when not allowed to (Barnes v. Nunnery Colliery Co., (1912) A. C. 44); but doing a thing in breach of a rule or carelessly or negligently or even disobediently does not necessarily debar the workman from recovering (Blair & Co., Ltd. v. Chilton, (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 283; M'Guire v. Gabbott, (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 363). If the disobedience adds a risk, distinct from those arising from the employment, which leads directly to the injury the man may not recover (Herbert v. Samuel Fox & Co., Ltd., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 154; (1916) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 1). A man may, however, still be doing what he was employed to do, though most outrageously careless or stupid (Bullworthy v. Glanfield, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 221). Where there is a breach of a rule the workman may still recover (Sanderson v. H. Wright, Ltd., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 177). It largely (perhaps entirely) depends on whether the rule limits the ambit of employment or merely defines the modus operandi, ibid. See also M'William v. G. N. of Scotland Ry. (1914), W. C. & Ins. Rep. 135; Jackson v. Denton Colliery Co., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 91; Hopley v. Pool, Lorrimer and Tabberer, (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 280; Corbett v. H. S. Pitt & Co., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 295; Wardle v. H. G. Enthoven & Sons, Ltd., (1917) W. C. & I. 18.

As regards statutory rules properly posted, a man cannot be heard to say he did not know of them (Dobson v. United Collieries, 43 S. L. R. 260).

Larking obviously is foreign to the employment altogether, and even an innocent workman so injured by another cannot recover (Armitage v. L. & Y. Rail. Co., (1902) 2 K. B. 178) (note, however, the case of Clayton v. Hardwick Coll. Co., Ltd., (1916) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 33); but if a workman properly doing his work is injured by the larking of a stranger, and his employment lends itself to such larking, e.g., an engine driver going through a bridge from which little boys like to drop stones, he can recover (Challis v. L. & S. W. Rail. Co., (1905) 2 K. B. 154). Whether the injury was caused by larking or arose out of and in the course of the employment is a question of fact and the arbitrator's decision will not be upset if there be evidence to support it (Durrant v. Smith, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 282; Sambrook v. New Sharlton Colliery, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 284). Payment of compensation in ignorance that the injury was caused by larking does not estopp the employer from raising this defence (Harrison v. Featherstone, (1917) W. C. & I. 74). See infra, IN THE COURSE OF.

Questions Involved.—II. (continued). As to Seamen.—Difficult questions arise where seamen are missing or found drowned, and no direct evidence of the accident is available. To entitle dependants to recover, they must prove (1) facts from which it can be inferred that at the time of his death, the deceased was doing what he was employed to do; and (2) facts from which it can be inferred that such employment would take him into the danger from which his death resulted. Both propositions must be proved. A seaman's contract of employment covers periods of leisure as well as periods of active duty, but during the former there is usually nothing to take him into a danger area. In Swansea Vale v. Rice (1912) A. C. 238, the inferred facts were that a mate on duty fell overboard through being giddy, and his dependants recovered; but in Bender v. Zent, (1909) 2 K. B. 41, it was only proved deceased went on deck for air, and they failed. In Lee v. Stag Line, (1912) W. C. Rep. 3, it was well held that in the tropics a fireman rightly went on deck for air, but the weak part of the case was its not being shown that this necessarily took him into danger; whilst in Burwash v. Leyland, (1912) W. C. Rep. 400, it was held a cook's employment at his galley could not have taken him into danger. But against this was the fact that the ship was rolling and the weather bad, and it might well have been held in such a case a seaman's contract of employment, even during the leisure period, took him into danger. The point, however, was not argued, and remains open for decision. The cases on the question of disappearance of seamen at sea were reviewed in Lendrum v. Ayr S.S. Co., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. p. 438; Proctor v. "Serbino" (Owners), (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 425; (1916) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 30. As regards seamen on shore, see, further, IN THE COURSE OF.

Mines.]—The risk due to these engines of destruction has resulted in several accidents, accidents which in some cases could have been avoided had the master followed Admiralty instructions. Even in such a case, however, injury suffered by a seaman, at any rate, other than the master, would be injury by accident arising out of, etc. See Risdale v. Kilmarnock (Owners), (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 141.

Questions Involved.—II. (continued). Presumptions when not provable what deceased was actually doing.

A man found dead within the ambit of his employment is a fact from which may (not must) be inferred he met his death when doing what he was employed to do, e.g., a man whose duty it was to start machinery and who was found dead under revolving shafting (McNicholas v. Dawson, (1899) 1 Q. B. 773); a man who was being carried from his work and who fell out of a carriage when apparently putting a basket on a rack (Pomfret v. L. & Y. Rail. Co., (1903) 2 K. B. 718); a policeman whose duties took him all over the company's premises and who was killed on a siding (Grant v. Glasgow and S. W. Rail. Co., 45 S. L. R. 128); a carpenter employed at work on a barge who fell into the water on a dark night while crossing a dock quay not open to the public (Longhurst v. J. Stewart & Son (1912), Ltd., (1916) W. C. & I. 292), compare Armstrong v. Gregson & Co., ibid., p. 226; and a mate who lived on board ship when in dock and was found drowned, and near his body on a jetty was some food he had obviously been obtaining (Richardson v. Avonmore, 5 B. 34). Contrast Renfrew v. R. & J. M'Crae, Ltd., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 195; Booth v. Leeds and Liverpool Canal Co., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 310. The evidence must lead to something more than a mere surmise or guess. It must go to prove definite connection between employment and accident (Kettle v. McKay and Ryland, (1916) W. C. & I. 297). If a seaman is drowned by falling from a quay when returning to his ship his dependants must show that he was running a risk not common to everybody (Craig v. Cormack, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 394).

Questions Involved.—III. Was there a causal relation between his employment and his accident, i.e., was it to his employment, and not to something outside of it, that his accident was ultimately due?

Causal Relation.]—A man is doing what he was employed to do and is injured. Still he must prove the accident arose out of the employment. The murder of a colliery cashier travelling with wages (Nisbet v. Rayne, (1910) 2 K. B. 689), and a gamekeeper injured by poachers (Anderson v. Balfour, 3 B. 588), have been held to arise out of the employment (these cases rather turn, however, on the meaning of the term "injury by accident"); but otherwise a free worker or so-termed blackleg attacked by strikers (Murray v. Denholme, 48 S. L. R. 896; see, however, now Trim Joint District School v. Kelly, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 359), or a carter attacked by a drunken rowdy (Mitchinson v. Day Bros., (1913) W. C. Rep. 324), doubted in Simpson v. Sinclair, (1917) W. C. & I., at p. 169. Absence of causal relation, may prevent an innocent workman injured by his fellows from recovering. For example, a maid injured by a ball playfully thrown at her by the nurse in the same house failed to recover (Wilson v. Laing, 2 B. 118). Then there is the well known case of a cockchafer flying into the face of a sempstress sitting at an open window (Craske v. Wigan, (1909) 2 K. B. 635). Compare Griffiths v. Robins, (1917) W. C. & I. 44. More recently there occurred the case of a sailor who drank a solution of caustic soda which he thought was water put out to cool. It was held in the House of Lords that the resulting injury was not the result of an accident arising out of the employment (Hutchison v. M'Kinnon, (1916) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 17. Equally failed a sailor who injured himself through his drunken state (Frith v. Louisianian, (1912) 2 K. B. 155; Murphy and Sandwith v. Cooney, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 44; Nash v. "Rangatira" (Owners), (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 490; 83 L. J. K. B. 1496; compare Fraser v. John Riddell & Co., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 125). Frith's Case, Murphy's Case, Nash's Case, and the Scotch decision in Renfrew v. R. & J. M'Crae, Ltd., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 195, were distinguished, however, in Williams v. Llandudno Coaching and Carriage Co., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 91, which follows Fraser's case, and where the Master of the Rolls laid down the following principle: "A workman who, while doing an act which it was part of his duty to do, meets with an accident to which he is more exposed than persons not so engaged, is—or in case of death his dependants are—entitled to compensation from the employer, although the act is done negligently or contrary to rules." Of course, if serious and wilful misconduct be available as a defence the case is different. In Cook v. Manvers Main Colliery, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 278, a man went for his own convenience to a dangerous part of the mine, it was held that a consequent accident did not arise out of his employment or rather that his dependants had failed to discharge the onus of proving that it did. Contrast Fearnley v. Bates and Northcliff, Ltd., (1917) W. C. & I. 207.

An important question always is, Was the accident due to a danger special to the employment or to one common to the public in general?

The leading cases on either side of the line are Andrew v. Failsworth, (1904) 2 K. B. 32, and Warner v. Couchman, (1912) A. C. 35. In the former case a workman while employed upon a building some thirty feet high was struck by lightning. It was held that there was evidence upon which the arbitrator could find that the accident arose out of the employment. In the latter case a journeyman baker was injured by frost bite while on his rounds. The arbitrator held that the accident did not arise out of the employment and the House of Lords held that he was justified in so finding. Both cases proceed on the principle enunciated by Cozens-Hardy, M.R., "it is not enough for the applicant to say the 'accident would not have happened if I had not been engaged in that employment, nor if I had not been in that particular place.' He must go further, and must say, 'The accident arose because of something I was doing in the course of my employment, or because I was exposed by the nature of my employment to some peculiar danger.'" Consider, however, Simpson v. Sinclair, (1917) W. C. & I. p. 164, at p. 169, where it was held that an accident due to a peril peculiar to the locality of employment though unconnected with the nature of the employment may be injury arising "out of." The same point was made in the Scotch case of Robson v. Blakey, (1912) W. C. Rep. 86, where a plumber in low health was laying pipes in a trench on a hot day and succumbed to the heat. Lord Kinnear summed up the position excellently as follows: "I only say in a word that I do not think that this man was exposed by his employment to any special risk to which other people were not liable, provided they happened to be working in the open air on July 26th, 1911." See also Karemaker v. Corsican, 4 B. 295.

On the other hand a result similar to that arrived at in Andrew v. Failsworth was attained in Davies v. Gillespie, 5 B. 64. See also Pierce v. The Provident Clothing Co., (1911) S. C. 12, and McNiece v. Singer, (1911) 1 K. B. 997 (both of which cases were discussed in Hughes v. Bett, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 614), where collectors used bicycles to visit customers, and such use was contemplated by their employment, and where they had to continually ride through narrow and crowded streets and were injured by the traffic, it was there held that, though such danger was common to all users of the streets, yet it was a danger incident to their particular calling and arose out of their doing what they were employed to do. It is different where the cycling is only occasional (Slade v. Taylor, (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 53; Dennis v. A. J. White & Co., (1916) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 106; Read v. Baker, ibid., 133; Ince v. Reigate Education Committee, ibid., 278). And why not frost bite caused when delivering bread? Because, to quote Collins, M.R., in Andrew v. Failsworth, "If there is, under particular circumstances in a particular vocation, something appreciably and substantially beyond the ordinary normal risk which ordinary people run, and which is a necessary concomitant of the occupation the man is engaged in, then I am entitled to say that the extra danger to which the man is exposed is something arising out of his employment," a dictum quoted in Slade v. Taylor, supra. In Martin v. John Lovibond, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 76, where a drayman who had left his horse to get beer was injured while crossing the street on the return it was held that he could recover, as did the taxi-cab man who was wounded by a sentry while driving an officer to a fort (Thorn v. Humm &

Co., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 224). In Symmonds v. King, (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 282, a painter's assistant who crossed the road to fetch whitening and was knocked down was held not entitled to recover; he was running no risk qua painter's assistant. Compare Harder v. A. E. Ganis & Sons, (1916) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 99; Hadwin v. Shepherd, (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 503 (where, however, had the arbitrator found differently, his finding would certainly not have been upset). Contrast Mullinger v. Bidewell, (1917) W. C. & I. 51, there a man was travelling on a cart on which he had been given a lift, the horse took fright, bolted. Result: Accident and injury. The man took the lift to get on his way with a heavy parcel. Held "out of" because the man had need of a lift to convey the parcel. The case raises some very nice points. Pierce v. The Provident Clothing Co., supra, was discussed in Sheldon v. Needham, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 274, where a charwoman sent to post a letter stepped on a banana skin and was injured and it was held that the accident did not arise out of the employment. Compare Chapman v. "John W. Pearn" (Owners), (1916) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 47. In Cooper v. North Eastern Ry., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 572, where an engine driver was killed by a shell fired by German warships near the Hartlepools, it was held that the "accident" did not arise "out of" the employment—it was a risk common to all in the locality. The Irish case (Aldridge v. Merry, (1913) W. C. Rep. 97) is a valuable decision. Here a servant slept in a room where plaster from the ceiling was continually falling. A piece struck her in the eye. The continual falling made it a special risk.

Questions Involved.—IV. Was the personal injury due to an accident, or to some other existent cause, e.g., disease?

See also notes to Sched. I. (1) "Incapacity."

In the first place it is to be observed that whether accident or disease caused the injury is a question of fact, and the arbitrator's finding, if reasonable, will not be upset (Woods v. Wilson, Sons & Co., Ltd., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 285). The arbitrator has no right to examine the man privately (Earle's, etc. v. Walker, (1917) W. C. & I. 54).

In many cases the disease is really the cause of the so-called accident, as but for it no accident of any sort would have happened. This has occurred again and again when heart disease, and not the employment, has been the cause of the misadventure. Hence this class of case divides into two: (a) where there has been an undoubted accident, and (b) where there has been what we can only term a "fictional" accident.

As regards (a) there is little difficulty. An accident is no less an accident because, owing to diseased tissues, the consequences are most serious and unexpected. Thus in Hensey v. White, (1900) 1 Q. B. 481, a man, trying to start a wheel which stuck, strained himself. Owing to his diseased condition this caused a rupture of blood vessels which killed him. Other men who helped and exerted themselves were not even hurt, but this did not affect the fact he had been clearly injured by an accidental strain. But cases under (b) are full of doubt. Of these the leading case is Clover and Clayton v. Hughes, (1910) A. C. 242, where anything like an accident never happened. Here a man in the last stage of heart disease fell dead when screwing a nut on a bolt. He was doing an ordinary act in an ordinary way, and yet was found to have met his death by accident. The logic of this decision was preserved by the finding that the screwing on the nut caused an extra strain, which extra strain ruptured an artery, which rupture caused the death. This case having passed the House of Lords, mainly that they would not disturb an arbitrator's finding of fact, is unexceptional as regards its law. It really does not say more than in the case of a real accident, viz., a man brings his disability with him and his employer shall not be heard to say, "But for the diseased condition, no ill results would have happened from the accident relied on." For note, the fiction of an accident neither is, nor can be dispensed with, nor is it established by a man merely falling dead (Barnabas v.

Section 1 Notes.

Bersham, 4 B. 119). And further, if an interval of time elapses between the "fictional" accident and the death, as in Hawkins v. Powell's Tillery S. C. Co., (1911) 1 K. B. 988, where an old man, who might have strained himself in the morning, died of angina pectoris in the evening, the court may hold the connection between the accident and the death not proved. And even when death takes place after what has been an undoubted accident, still it must be proved that it was due to such accident and not to the disease. E.g., a driver fell from his bus, and it could not be shown whether heart disease caused the fall or whether the fall aggravated the disease. Here was such failure of proof (Thackway v. Conelly, 3 B. 37). But an accident that starts into active malignity ills from which a man suffers falls within the ordinary rule. Where a man died from apoplexy brought on by the exertion of running to telephone for a doctor (it being his duty so to telephone), it was held in Aitken v. Finlayson, Bousfield & Co., Ltd., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 398, that his dependants could recover.

In the Course of.]—In the course of the employment is entirely a question of what is the contract of service in every case a question of fact. What the contract really means may be a question of law, but this determined, whether an act does or does not fall within its provisions will be a question of fact. In the course of is an overriding condition, for whilst arising out of involves in the course of as well, the contrary proposition does not hold good.

Where there is no express contract, or no contract to be presumed from the conduct of the parties, decisions on similar cases are gradually becoming a code as to terms to be implied. Difficult questions usually arise where a man is injured before or after his actual work has commenced or ended, or when it has been suspended or been intermittent. Few contracts of service contemplate only steady unintermittent work, and certain cessations are customary and usual and provided for as well. For example, a man may want to relieve nature. This generally is recognized as in the course of the employment if he acts as mutually agreed (expressly or impliedly) but not otherwise. Periods for rest and eating may or may not be in the course of the employment also as agreed, though in the vast majority of cases where nothing to the contrary is provided such periods usually are regarded as in the course of the employment, the usual practice being complied with.

So employers may agree to employ men in one place and to take them to their actual work in another when such period of carriage with all its incidents would probably be in the course of the employment, or they may employ men to work in a certain place and provide facilities for getting there with or without such facilities when availed of being in the course of the employment, or they may agree that the employment shall begin and end with being on actual premises, even though they permit private paths and short cuts to be used. But the variety of possible agreements is infinite, as the Act nowhere says a man must employ a servant in only such a manner. So as regards decided cases it may be that the practice adopted has been for the very purpose of avoiding a particular decision.

Illustrative Cases.—General Rule. "It is well established that a man is not within the protection of the Act when he goes from his master's place—from the factory or wherever it may be—to his home" (per Cozens-Hardy, M.R., in Poulton v. Kelsall, (1912) 2 K. B. 131). But compare the Master of the Rolls' dictum in Whittall's Case, quoted supra, p. 1381. A reasonable margin is many times an implied term (Fitzpatrick v. Hindley Field Col. Co., 4 W. C. C. 7, waiting at pit brow; Sharp v. Johnson, (1905) 2 K. B. 139, early train; Mackenzie v. Coltness Iron Co., 41 S. L. R. 6, slipping just before starting work). The use of employers' paths, etc., rarely extends period of employment (Gilmour v. Dorman, 4 B. 279; Holness v. Mackay, (1899) 2 Q. B. 319; Waters v. Staveley Coal and Iron Co., 4 B. 89 and Williams v. Smith, (1913) W. C. Rep. 146). But see the case of Nicol v. Young's Paraffin Light, etc. Co., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 72, where the authorities are considered. Carriage to or from work will depend on exact terms of contract (Cremins v. Guest, (1908) 1 K. B. 469, and Watkins v. Guest, (1912) W. C. Rep. 150; Holmes v. G. N., (1900) 2 Q. B. 409; and Walton v. Tredegar, (1913) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 457, held within course of employment; whilst Davies v. Rhymney Iron Co., 2 W. C. C. 22, is contra). In Richards v. Morris, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 112, a labourer working on an island lived on the mainland. It was held that there was an implied term in the contract of service that he might cross over in his employer's boat. In Whitfield v. Lambert, (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 48, no such implied term existed and the workman did not recover. Interruptions usually within course of employment are: getting meals as arranged (Carinduff v. Gilmore, (1914)) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 247; Blovelt v. Sawyer, 6 W. C. C. 16; Morris v. Lambeth Council, 8 W. C. C. 1; and Rowland v. Wright, 1 B. 192, the stable cat case); so also getting a drink (Keenan v. Flemington Coal Co., 40 S. L. R. 144); and relieving nature (Lawless v. Wigan Coal Co., 124 L. J. C. C.). This will not extend to going to a distance (Thomson v. Flemington Coal Co., 48 S. L. R. 740); or to an unreasonable place (Rose v. Morrison, 4 B. 277; Cook v. Manvers Main Colliery, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 278). In these cases though the accident arose in the course of, it may not arise out of the employment (Keen v. St. Clement's Press, Ltd., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 292). Then there are acts perfectly justifiable but yet not in course of employment, being for a man's own purposes only (Smith v. L. & Y. Rail., (1899) 1 Q. B. 141, a guard having a chat with a friend; Reed v. G. W. Rail., 99 L. T. 781, an engine driver crossing lines to get a book), etc., all of which cause a break in the employment.

Further, a contract may be to work on certain days, and to be paid on another. This latter will still be in the course of the employment, though the service be otherwise terminated (Molloy v. South Wales Anthracite Colliery Co., 4 B. 65).

Volunteers.]—It well may happen that an act meritorious in itself is yet altogether outside the contract of service. Then an accident cannot happen in the course of the employment, but the workman will be in the position of a volunteer, e.g., a hospital doctor who, in the interest of a patient, allowed himself to be experimented upon with X-rays (Curtis v. Talbot, 5 B. 41). So a workman told to do a thing one way and doing it another may also act as a volunteer, as masters are entitled to have work done in their own way (Smith v. Morrison, 5 B. 161, an unsatisfactory case on the actual facts).

As regards Seamen it has been decided that the contract of service, unless otherwise agreed, covers the periods when men go on shore with leave so that they still remain in the course of their employment (Kitchenham v. S.S. Johannesburg, (1911) A. C. 417), though at the same time as they will then be exposed to no more risk than any other member of the public, an accident then happening to them is not likely to arise out of the employment. When they encounter and suffer from a risk peculiar to their employment will be a question of fact in each case. The risk will probably be deemed peculiar to their employment if it arises from the traversing of a means of egress or ingress peculiar to the employment or not common to the public at large (Webber v. Wansborough Paper Co., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 313). If a man falls from the quay waiting for a boat to take him to his ship his dependants would probably fail to recover (Hewitt v. S.S. Duchess, (1911) A. C. 671), if he was actually on a gangway they might be more successful. If a seaman goes on shore without leave (express or implied), so far he puts himself outside the contract of service entirely. When he again comes within it will be a question of fact. Probably the test of again coming within it will be when he is doing an act in his master's interest, and not as a result of or to further his own pleasure. Thus, if a seaman went ashore with leave, and returning fell from the gangway, he might well recover, but otherwise if he went without leave. Though the seaman goes ashore to buy provision he is not acting within the ambit of his employment if he deviates in order to go home, although permitted so to do (Lee v. "St. George" (Owners), (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 17). Where seamen have to buy their own provisions it is a question whether there is an implied term in the contract requiring the seamen to buy provisions. If not, the seaman is deemed to be on his own business while ashore to purchase, etc. (Parker v. "Black Rock" (Owners), (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 369). In Cook v. Montreal, (1913) W. C. Rep. 206, it has been held a sailor ceases to be in the course of his employment when ending his contract of service he has left the ship and got on the quay or works pertinent to the quay and not to the ship. Contrast Webber's Case, supra. On the question of "ambit of employment" reference may also be made to May v. Ison, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 40.

Disabled one week.

(2) Provided that—

(a) The employer shall not be liable under this Act in respect of any injury which does not disable the workman for a period of at least one week from earning full wages at the work at which he was employed :

This is also to be read with the proviso to par. (1) (b) of Schedule I.

Provided that (a) if the incapacity lasts less than two weeks no compensation shall be payable in respect of the first week.

If a workman is in fact disabled from earning full wages for more than a week he is entitled under the Act, even though his employer continues to pay him his full wages. But in this case, as no present weekly sum is payable, he can only ask for an agreement admitting liability, and this he is entitled to. The meaning of this sub-section was considered in Chandler v. Smith, (1899) 2 Q. B. 506.

(b) When the injury was caused by the personal negligence or wilful act of the employer or of some person for whose act or default the employer is responsible, nothing in this Act shall affect any civil liability of the employer, but in that case the workman may, at his option, either claim compensation under this Act or take proceedings independently of this Act; but the employer shall not be liable to pay compensation for injury to a workman by accident arising out of and in the course of the employment both independently of and also under this Act, and shall not be liable to any proceedings independently of this Act, except in case of such personal negligence or wilful act as aforesaid.

This provision reserves to a workman all rights against his employer other than under the Act. Sect. 4 provides for sub-contracting, and sect. 6 reserves his rights against a stranger. But such rights reserved are only alternative, not cumulative, and the Act is most clear. A workman shall not attempt to be paid twice for the same injury. He must elect which remedy he will enforce, and having elected will be bound by it. It may be that he may try to assert other rights against his employer and fail; in this case, sect. 1 (4) provides machinery—which must be adopted—by which he may fall back upon the Act for compensation. So it may be he may try to assert rights under the Act and fail, but if the Act in no way applies—to give him compensation, e.g., if he claims as a workman when he is not a workman—neither will it apply to deprive him of any rights he may have outside it. It will be otherwise, however, if a claim be made and dismissed on its merits, e.g., for wilful disobedience (Burton v. Chapel Coal Co., Ltd., 36 S. L. R. 375). There are many cases as to what is an effective exercise of an option, but none furnish a conclusive test. Such exercise is clearly a question of fact to be determined by evidence in every case. The filing a claim, withdrawn on receipt of respondent's answer and the initiation of legal proceedings, generally is only some evidence of the exercise of such option, and is by no means final. The one only test that emerges as at all general—and it is by no means of universal application—is, has the man deliberately taken money with the full knowledge it has been given him and only given in discharge of the payer's liability. If so, he has elected and can seek further payment from no one else and for no other cause. If the payment and receipt has been with a reservation, e.g., by a master making an allowance to a workman pending an action against a third party, there is no evidence of an election, rather the reverse (Oliver v. Nautilus S.S. Co., 5 W. C. C. 65; Wright v. Lindsay, 49 S. L. R. 210). In the case of Codling v. John Mowlem & Co. (No. 1), (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 579, where the workman died and the employers paid into court £300, the maximum sum due under the Act, and it was invested on behalf of his children with the knowledge and consent of his widow, the widow was held to have elected and an action by her at common law for negligence was held not maintainable.

So it has been held that an arbitrator rightly found there was no evidence of a bonâ fide election when the parties settled under the Employers' Liability Act to avoid coming under the Act. The man died, his dependants tried to reopen the matter and succeeded (Howell v. Bradford, 4 B. 203, also Hawkes v. Cole, 3 B. 163). As to independent rights of dependants, see Gill v. Fortescue (to be reported), under sect. 13, "Dependants."

(c) If it is proved that the injury to a workman is attributable to the serious and wilful misconduct of that workman, any compensation claimed in respect of that injury shall, unless the injury results in death or serious and permanent disablement, be disallowed.

Serious and wilful misconduct.

Serious and Wilful Misconduct is a question of fact, per Halsbury, L.C., in Bist v. L. & S. W. Rail. Co., (1907) A. C. 209, at p. 212; it must be proved by the employer; and to be a defence must be the cause of the accident. Effect must be given to the word "misconduct," though moral misconduct has not to be shown. It must be serious quite apart from whether the results are serious or slight, e.g., a servant injured while going out by the front door when told to use the back would not be guilty of serious misconduct; and it must be wilful or deliberate, intentional or the result of a reckless indifference to consequences as opposed to mere inattention, carelessness or negligence, however gross (Johnson v. Marshall, (1906) A. C. 409). Bist v. L. & S. W. Rail. Co., (1907) A. C. 209, is a valuable illustrative case. An engine driver, in breach of a rule, left the footplate of his engine whilst in motion to get coal from the tender, and on passing under a bridge was killed. He was held guilty of serious and wilful misconduct. It was misconduct, being disobedience of a rule. It was serious misconduct, as the rule was to protect life—the breach of a rule as to trivial matters might only be trifling misconduct—and it was wilful, being deliberate. As nothing was shown requiring disregard of the rule, the House of Lords approved the finding of the arbitrator, and being under the old

Section 1 Notes.

Act the dependants failed to recover. It may be serious and wilful misconduct to cross a railway line contrary to rules (Sanderson v. Henry Wright, Ltd., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 177, at p. 179). Getting drunk may amount to serious and wilful misconduct (Fraser v. John Riddell & Co., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 125, at p. 127). Under this Act the defence does not apply where the injury results in death or in serious and permanent disablement. Effect here also must be given to the words serious and permanent. In Hopwood v. Olive and Partington, Ltd., 3 B. 357, a boy had the top joint of his first and third fingers torn off, and was held so disabled.

In addition to being guilty of serious and wilful misconduct a workman's act may be one not arising out of his employment, when, of course, he will not be entitled in any event (Weighill v. South Heaton Coal Co., (1911) 2 K. B. 757, n.).

If any question.

(3) If any question arises in any proceedings under this Act as to the liability to pay compensation under this Act (including any question as to whether the person injured is a workman to whom this Act applies), or as to the amount or duration of compensation under this Act, the question, if not settled by agreement, shall, subject to the provisions of the first schedule to this Act, be settled by arbitration, in accordance with the second schedule to this Act.

Question must be specified in application for arbitration (Rule 8).

If any Question.]—Some question is a condition precedent to arbitration and must be existent on the launching of the application (Wooder v. Lush, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 328; Higgins v. Poulson (No. 1), 5 B. 66). To what must an employer agree if he would avoid litigation and "any question"? His attitude is, "I will give everything the Act requires of me." The workman on his part asks for an agreement in terms expressing this, so that he may register it. Then what does the Act give?

This we find in sect. 1, sub-s. 1, read with Schedule I. par. (1) (i.) (b) of the Act. Read together shortly we get—his employer shall be liable to pay compensation where total or partial incapacity results, which shall be a weekly payment during the incapacity not exceeding so much.

Here it is clear that whatever the amount, the payment is to be during the incapacity however long it continues. And therefore, at the outset a workman has a right to an unqualified agreement by the master to pay him compensation during such incapacity. A master cannot say, "Yes, you are incapacitated this week and I will pay you," and then go on admitting liability from week to week only. The man's right is a vested right to compensation for the whole period of the incapacity, and a master must admit this or a question will arise (Shaddick v. Palmer's Shipbuilding and Iron Co., (1917) W. C. & I. 225). But the incapacity may vary. Certainly this is the very thing the Act contemplates, and the compensation should automatically vary with it. A master must admit liability to pay compensation, i.e., some compensation, during the whole term of the incapacity, but this does not mean he must admit liability to pay any specific amount the whole time. The amount, as we have said, must vary as the incapacity varies. So a test of any proffered agreement in this respect is: Suppose the employer at any time stops payment, will the workman be able to enforce his rights or have to take proceedings to have his rights declared (see judgment, Haldane, L.C., in Freeland v. Summerlee Iron Co., (1913) W. C. Rep. 302). Thus for an employer to make an agreement beyond cavil, it should be to pay the agreed amount during the total incapacity, and thereafter during partial incapacity such amount as might from time to time be agreed, or failing agreement as might be determined by arbitration. Agreement to pay the full compensation during total incapacity only does not preclude a question arising (Cooper v. Wales Ltd., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 307; Round v. Wathen & Son, (1917) W. C. & I. 134).

The position is somewhat different where compensation is being actually paid and received for then, if an employer thus admits amount and liability the fact that he further intimates that he thinks the man almost well, or that when he does think he is well, or that when his doctor certifies he is well he will stop payment does not raise a question, certainly not a present one. And so where a memorandum of agreement is filed providing for payment of an agreed sum during total disablement, but leaving future payments, when disablement has ceased to be total, open for future agreement. it was held in Sampson v. G. S. N. Co., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 36, that no question had arisen. Again, where the employers did not deny liability but asked for and obtained medical examination, and no further correspondence passed, and thirteen days later the workman commenced proceedings, it was held that no question had arisen (Crone v. Donaldson Line, Ltd., (1916) W. C. & I. 233). See also Bedwell v. London Electric Rail. Co., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 408, where employers expressed willingness to pay full compensation until in their opinion workman was fit to resume but declined to make an unqualified admission and it was held that no question had arisen. A question may arise when for any reason he says the incapacity is ended or altered and the workman says it is not (Payne v. Fortescue, (1912) W. C. R. 386). If the workman desires the more exact agreement to which he is entitled, he must demand it before accepting compensation, the giving and receiving of which without reservation goes far to establishing a present agreement between the parties. If he does so insist, he will be entitled to an agreement to be paid during the incapacity, and not during the pleasure of his employer's doctor.

Form 24 gives the form of award made on arbitration proceedings. It has been approved in Higgins v. Poulsom (No. 2), (1912) W. C. Rep. 244. After first stating the weekly sum to be paid, it then says—but which the Act does not—that it, the particular amount, is to be continued during the total or partial incapacity of the workman, or until ended, diminished, etc., as provided. This hitherto has proved highly favourable to the workman, who gets the full amount between the application and the hearing of the review, even if totally recovered. True, by Morton v. Woodward, 4 W. C. C. 143 an employer may get an order dating from the application, though not earlier, but virtually it is useless, as he cannot set off the over-payments against current compensation (Hosegood v. Wilson, (1911) 1 K. B. 30). So an arbitrator may have regard to them under Schedule I. (3) in fixing a new weekly sum, but this does not help when the amount should be ended. In Workmen's Compensation Appeals, 1910–12, p. 143, the author suggested employers should have the right to reduce payments when applying for review, and that there would be no danger of the right being abused, as the danger of being heavily mulcted in costs would be too great. In the Rules of April, 1913, now Rule 59 (4), this has been given effect to subject to the employer applying to the court for leave.

If not Settled by Agreement.]—It is almost needless to observe that for an agreement to hold it must have been made with a full appreciation of its terms (Brown v. Hunter, 49 S. L. R. 695); and an arbitrator must inquire into its validity so as to determine how far he has jurisdiction. Such validity will, of course, be governed by the common law applicable to all agreements (Ellis v. Lochgelly Iron, etc., Co., 46 S. L. R. 960). This is, of course, independent of the special matters dealt with in Schedule II. (9), (10).

When a claim is made, an employer is entitled to a reasonable time in which to admit or deny liability, and proceedings must not be rushed (Caledon, etc. v. Kennedy, 43 S. L. R. 637).

An infant's agreement, apart from the Act of 1906, needs the consent of the court to make it binding (Bates v. John Holding & Co., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 6). As to the need to register the agreement, see Schedule II. (10).

Section 1 Notes.

If a point be agreed, e.g., that the applicant is a "workman" the arbitrator has no jurisdiction, either on an original application for compensation and on an application to record a memorandum of agreement, to open up the point agreed (Goodsell v. "Lloyds" (Owners), (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 585).

When action dismissed.

(4) If, within the time herein-after in this Act limited for taking proceedings, an action is brought to recover damages independently of this Act for injury caused by any accident, and it is determined in such action that the injury is one for which the employer is not liable in such action, but that he would have been liable to pay compensation under the provisions of this Act, the action shall be dismissed; but the court in which the action is tried shall, if the plaintiff so choose, proceed to assess such compensation, but may deduct from such compensation all or part of the costs which, in its judgment, had been caused by the plaintiff bringing the action instead of proceeding under this Act. In any proceeding under this sub-section, when the court assesses the compensation it shall give a certificate of the compensation it has awarded and the directions it has given as to the deduction for costs, and such certificate shall have the force and effect of an award under this Act.

Practice, Rule 54.

The prosecution of an action—certainly to its conclusion—is an election under sect. 1, sub-s. 2 (b). On failing, a workman has no further rights under the Act save what are given by this sub-section, and, therefore, its provisions must be strictly complied with. No independent application for compensation can be made. On dismissal application must be made then and there (as in Potter v. John Welch & Sons, Ltd., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 607) to the court having seisin of the action, or the right will be lost. On such application further evidence may be given (Baxter v. Norris, 9 W. C. C. 33), and the judge will hear it as an arbitrator would (Slavin v. Train, 49 S. L. R. 93).

If an appeal is contemplated, the application must still be made pro formâ, but not as an election (Isaacson v. New Grand, etc., (1903) 1 K. B. 539). If so made no appeal is open (Neale v. Electric, etc., Co., (1906) 2 K. B. 558). If a defendant appeal successfully, application under this sub-section must be made to the appellate court, which, however, will remit the action for assessment of compensation to the original court (Greenwood v. Greenwood, 1 B. 247). Rights under this sub-section are limited to the actual parties in the action, and do not enure for the benefit of other dependants (Kyle v. M'Gintys, 4 B. 389).

As to costs, see infra, Schedule II. (7).

(5) Nothing in this Act shall affect any proceeding for a fine under the enactments relating to mines, factories, or workshops, or the application of any such fine.

So, contrariwise, being fined is no defence to an action for damages by an injured man (Lees and Sykes (third parties) v. Dunkerley Bros., (1911) A. C. 5).

TIME FOR TAKING PROCEEDINGS.

Time for taking proceedings.

2.—(1) Proceedings for the recovery under this Act of compensation for an injury shall not be maintainable unless notice of the accident has been given as soon as practicable after the happening thereof and before the workman has voluntarily left the employment in which he was injured, and unless the claim for compensation with respect to such accident has been made within six months from the occurrence of the accident causing the injury, or, in case of death, within six months from the time of death :

Provided always that—

(a) the want of or any defect or inaccuracy in such notice shall not be a bar to the maintenance of such proceedings if it is found in the proceedings for settling the claim that the employer is not, or would not, if a notice or an amended notice were then given and the hearing postponed, be prejudiced in his defence by the want, defect, or inaccuracy, or that such want, defect, or inaccuracy was occasioned by mistake, absence from the United Kingdom, or other reasonable cause ; and

(b) the failure to make a claim within the period above specified shall not be a bar to the maintenance of such proceedings if it is found that the failure was occasioned by mistake, absence from the United Kingdom, or other reasonable cause.

(2) Notice in respect of an injury under this Act shall give the name and address of the person injured, and shall state in ordinary language the cause of the injury and the date at which the accident happened, and shall be served on the employer, or, if there is more than one employer, upon one of such employers.

(3) The notice may be served by delivering the same at, or sending it by post in a registered letter addressed to, the residence or place of business of the person on whom it is to be served.

(4) Where the employer is a body of persons, corporate or unincorporate, the notice may also be served by delivering the same at, or by sending it by post in a registered letter addressed to, the employer at the office, or if there be more than one office, any one of the offices of such body.

Notice.

The giving of notice as soon as practicable, and the making a claim within six months are conditions precedent to recovering. The notice of accident must probably be in writing (Hughes v. Coed Talon Colliery Co., (1907)

Section 2. Notes.

1 K. B. 957 (and see infra)), though the claim need not be (Lowe v. Myers, 8 W. C. C. 22). If the arbitrator leaves undecided the question of want of notice a new trial may be ordered (Silk v. Isle of Thanet Rural Council, (1913) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 647). Weekly payments made are usually conclusive evidence of a claim made and recognised, and certainly furnish a reasonable cause for its want under proviso (b). Whether a notice has been given "as soon as practicable" is a question of fact. When a letter making a claim is posted a presumption arises that it has been delivered (Watts v. Vickers, Ltd., (1917) W. C. & I. 24).

As to Notice.]—The giving of it and complying with the formalities are questions of fact, as also the giving it as soon as possible. If a workman fails in giving a proper notice he may be excused if he prove either that his employer has not been prejudiced in his defence, or that he has not done so through mistake, etc. The conditions are disjunctive. If a workman proves mistake a master will be liable, even if prejudiced to an extent of losing an insurance indemnity, and, if he proves he is not prejudiced, it is not material how the defect or non-giving came about.

Prejudiced.]—Formerly it was considered that like every other fact, no prejudice must be proved by evidence, though "no specific evidence of 'no prejudice' is required; it is an inference to be drawn from the whole facts of the case" (Farwell, L.J., in Eaton v. Evans, 5 B. 82). In the absence of any evidence one way or another the workman's claim was held to be barred (Ing v. Higgs, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 84; Lacey v. John Mowlem & Co., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 63; Hodgson v. Robins, Hay, Walters and Hay, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 65). Slight evidence is sufficient to shift the onus (Shearer v. Miller, (1899) 2 F. 114). It is probable, however, that since the House of Lords decision in Eydmann v. Premier Accumulator Co., Ltd., (1916) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 167, that the earlier cases will have to be limited in application, since that case decides that there is no onus on the applicants of establishing the negative proposition that the respondents were not prejudiced and that the question of prejudice or no prejudice must be answered from a consideration of the evidence generally, and if the evidence is negative either way, the respondents must give positive evidence of prejudice. In other words, the burden is upon the respondents of establishing prejudice and not upon the applicant of establishing no prejudice, but the judge may find that the respondent was prejudiced from the general facts of the case. Certainly, in the words of Scrutton, L.J., in Mills v. Donnington Main Coal Co., (1917) W. C. & I. at p. 17, "under the present decisions of the House of Lords, employers will always run great risks who do not try and give some positive evidence of prejudice [in doubtful cases]." Compare and considered, Selkirk v. National Radiator Co., (1917) W. C. & I. 99. Reference may also be made as to what time will not be deemed as soon as practicable to Hunt v. Highly Mining Co., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 406; Dalgleish v. J. H. Gartside & Co., Ltd., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 319. But note, an employer must be prejudiced in his defence, not merely in his pocket; Butt v. Gellyceidrim Colliery Co., Ltd., (1909) 3 B. 44; Snelling v. Norton Hill Colliery Co., (1913) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 497. The words "in his defence" are not confined to cases where owing to absence of notice the employers cannot ascertain the true facts or set up the proper defences. See per Phillimore, L.J., in Wassall v. James Russell & Sons, Ltd., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 88, at p. 90. If the injury is fatal in any event it would probably be held, apart from exceptional circumstances, that the employer was not prejudiced, Lochgelly Iron & Coal Co., Ltd. v. Kirk, (1916) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 3 2; Burvil v. Vickers, Ltd., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 563. Contrast Jones v. Arnold, (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 513; Jones v. Thomas & Co., Ltd., (1916) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 761. Compare the case of cancer induced by a fall, Howard v. Rowsell and Matthews, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 314.

By this section an employer is entitled to the earliest possible notice, that he may at once investigate all the circumstances attending the accident. If want of notice prevents this, unless it can be shown it would have been useless in any event, it is strong evidence he is prejudiced (Leach v. Hickson, 4 B. 153). For the workman to recover in such a case the arbitrator must find specifically that there has been no prejudice. Thus in Hayward v. West Leigh Colliery Co., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 21, where workman died of septic poisoning due to a scratch and no notice was given for a week (and then was verbal), i.e., two days before death, the master was held by the Court of Appeal to have been prejudiced. The House of Lords, however, reversed the court below, (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 233, largely on the ground that knowledge would have been useless in any event and that there was evidence to support the arbitrator's finding of "no prejudice." See also Miller v. Richardson, (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 381; contrast Unger v. Howell, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 58); on the other hand, if knowledge of the accident in fact can be brought home to him, it will be strong evidence of no prejudice. But if a workman gives an informal notice, or a verbal notice, to a wrong person, as to a kind of foreman, he does it at his own risk, and if it does not come to the employer's knowledge in fact, he will fail (Jackson v. Vickers, Maxim & Co., (1912) W. C. Rep. 274; Griffiths v. Atkinson, (1912) W. C. Rep. 277). Evidence of a conversation between the wife of the injured workman and the employer's book keeper was apparently held admissible in Eydmann v. Premier Accumulator Co., Ltd. (supra). Coltman v. Morrison and Mason, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 43, suggests a doubt as to whether (apart from waiver) verbal notice is sufficient. See Coltman's Case, supra, and Hughes v. Coed Talon Colliery Co., (1907) 1 K. B. 957; Brady v. Can. Pac. Rail., (1913) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 479. But the employer may waive (Davies v. Point Ayr Collieries, (1909) 2 B. 157). Entry by a manager of the particulars of the accident in a special book supplied for the purpose will be sufficient written notice (Stevens v. Insoles, Ltd., (1912) W. C. Rep. 111). If verbal notice is given and the employer sends a messenger to enquire after the health of the workman this would probably constitute waiver, but not if the employer was in the habit of paying wages to sick workmen quite apart from accidents (Ford v. Gaiety Theatre, Ltd., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 53).

Mistake, Absence or other Reasonable Cause.]—These words equally refer to claims not made in time. Mistakes may be mistakes of law, or mistakes of fact. Ignorance of law, or that the law exists, is not a mistake (Bramley v. Evans, 3 B. 34; Roles v. Pascall, (1911) 1 K. B. 982). But it is possible that ignorance in the case of an infant may be an excuse. (See per Judge Mullingan in Mason v. King's Lynn Docks Co., L. J. C. C. Rep., April 14th, 1917, p. 27.) A mistake in law may be taking a wrong view, or wrongly construing an Act of Parliament. A mistaken belief is not a mistake of fact (Clapp v. Carter, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 80). A mistake of fact must be a mistake of an existing fact (Roles v. Pascall, (1911) 1 K. B. 982). It is questionable how far, if a man does not realise he is injured, that is such a mistake (Coulson v. South Moor Colliery Co., Ltd., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 161; Flood v. Smith and Leishman, (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 212; Clapp v. Carter, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 80; contrast Fox v. Barrow Hematite Steel Co., Ltd., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 321; Haward v. Rowsell and Matthews, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 314; Hoare v. Arding and Hobbs, 5 B. 36; Millar v. Refuge Ass. Co., (1912) S. C. 37; Breakwell v. Cleehill Granite Co., 5 B. 133. The determining question probably is, Is the injury latent or trivial—or patent or serious?) See Potter v. John Welch & Sons, Ltd., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 607. If he does so realise he must at once give notice and make his claim (Edgerton v. Moore, (1912) 2 K. B. 308; Webster v. Cohen, (1913) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 268; distinguished in Thompson v. N. E. Marine Engineering Co., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 13). In Griffiths v. Atkinson, (1912) W. C. Rep. 277, a plumber gave notice to his employer, a sub-contractor, in the expectation he would pass it on to the principal. The expectation was not realised, but it was held not a mistake as to an existing fact, and so not within the proviso. See also Pimm v. Clement Talbot, Ltd., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 350.

There have been innumerable cases of fact decided, but an arbitrator can find no better guide than that given by Cozens-Hardy, M.R., in Eaton v. Evans, 5 B. p. 83, "I have said more than once that where there is a possible doubt of an accident at all, the court should be astute to require notice speedily, and should also be astute on the question whether the employer has been prejudiced. . . . That must not be taken to lay down any principle of law applicable to a case where the bona fides of the claim is absolutely beyond dispute, where the fact of there having been an accident has been proved to the satisfaction of the county court judge, and where the ailment from which the applicant is suffering is one which does not make itself manifest immediately."

Similarly, his lordship expressed a still stronger opinion on the duty of men to at once report slight hurts where first aid was provided, and which, if used, might prevent serious developments (Brady v. Can. P. Rail., (1913) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 479).

The following cases may also be referred to : Thompson v. N. E. Marine Eng. Co., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 13 (workman thought accident trivial for some time when he saw doctor, held reasonable cause), compare the similar case of Zillwood v. Winch, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 87 ; Rankine v. Alloa Coal Co. (1904), 6 F. 375 ; Ellis v. Fairfield S. & E. Co., (1913) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 88 ; Brown v. Lochgelly Iron and Coal Co., (1907) S. C. 198. If the injury were not apparent at the time it was received the court would probably hold it a reason for want of notice. See cases, supra, and Tibbs v. Watts Blake, Bearne & Co., (1909) 2 B. 164 ; Fry v. Cheltenham Corp., 81 L. J. K. B. 41. Contrast Webster v. Cohen, (1913) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 268 ; Clapp v. Carter, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 80. Receipt of ex gratia payments made by the employer after notice of accident may form a reasonable excuse for not making a claim (Harper v. Harper, (1916) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 260).

Absence.—In Dight v. S.S. Craster Hall (Owners), (1913) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 714, a sailor suffered severe injuries, he reached a port in U.S.A. There he spent a considerable time in hospitals and convalescent homes, eventually reaching England two years later as a distressed seaman. He might have returned earlier as a distressed seaman. Held, want of notice due to absence, and absence due to accident, not to another cause, e.g., settling down abroad.

Claim.

As to Claim (As to failure to make claim in consequence of Mistake, Absence or other Reasonable Cause, see supra).—Claim for compensation means, not initiation of proceedings, but a notice of claim for compensation (Powell v. Main Colliery Co., (1909) A. C. 366). Since Thompson v. Goold & Co., [1910] A. C. 409, mere notice of intention to claim is probably sufficient (compare In re Allen and Hoey Arbitration, (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 193, and contrast Bennett v. Wordie & Co., (1899), 1 F. 855 ; Marno v. Workman Clark & Co., (1900) 2 Q. B. 149, n.). It is not necessary to state amount claimed (Thompson v. Goold, supra). It need not be in writing (Lowe v. Myers, (1906) 2 K. B. 265). A conversation between the applicant's wife and respondent in which the latter is asked by her whether he will compensate is apparently insufficient (Johnson v. Woolton, (1911) 27 T. L. R. 487). But conversations which showed the employer clearly that the workman intended to seek legal aid unless payments which had been stopped were continued is sufficient (In re Allen and Hoey Arbitration, supra). Mere notice of accident is not a claim (Perry v. Clements, (1901) 49 W. R. 669 ; Abbott v. Biggleswade Joint Hospital Bd., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 533). An application for arbitration is a claim (Fraser v. G. N. of Scotland Rail., (1901) 3 F. 908). The onus that claim is made within time is upon the applicant (Roberts v. Crystal Palace Football Club, (1909) 3 B. 51). Section 2 Notes.

As to whether an absolute bar.—The fact that claim is not made within the six months is not an absolute bar. The employer may be estopped (Turnbull v. Vickers, Ltd., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 323; Wright v. Bagnall, (1900) 2 Q. B. 240; Heaton v. Tomlinson & Son, (1904) 117 L. T. Jo. 3). The question is whether the workman has been lulled into security (Heaton v. Tomlinson & Son, supra); or he may have waived (Linklater v. Webster & Son, (1904) 117 L. T. Jo. 3). Where it was doubtful whether there was estoppel or waiver owing to state of the evidence the case was sent back in Lee v. Cortonwood Colliery Co., (1901) Times Newspaper, November 11th. Payment by the employer of maximum compensation may not constitute waiver (Rendall v. Hill's Dry Dock, etc., Co., (1900) 2 Q. B. 245; O'Neill v. Motherwell, (1907) S. C. 1076; Healey v. Galloway, (1907) 41 Ir. L. T. 5; Lynch v. Lansdowne (Marquis), (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 244). But payment of full wages is in all cases "reasonable cause" for not making a claim (Luckie v. Merry, (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 395).

Six Months.—Where the accident happened at 11.30 a.m. on November 24th, and claim was lodged at 5.30 p.m. on May 24th following, it was held to be within the six months in Peggie v. Wemyss Coal Co., (1909) S. C. 93.

Acquiescence in Stoppage of Payments.—See Rankine v. Fife Coal Co., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 207.

Contracting Out.

3.—(1) If the Registrar of Friendly Societies, after taking steps to ascertain the views of the employer and workmen, certifies that any scheme of compensation, benefit, or insurance for the workmen of an employer in any employment, whether or not such scheme includes other employers and their workmen, provides scales of compensation not less favourable to the workmen and their dependants than the corresponding scales contained in this Act, and that, where the scheme provides for contributions by the workmen, the scheme confers benefits at least equivalent to those contributions, in addition to the benefits to which the workmen would have been entitled under this Act, and that a majority (to be ascertained by ballot) of the workmen to whom the scheme is applicable are in favour of such scheme, the employer may, whilst the certificate is in force, contract with any of his workmen that the provisions of the scheme shall be substituted for the provisions of this Act, and thereupon the employer shall be liable only in accordance with the scheme, but, save as aforesaid, this Act shall apply notwithstanding any contract to the contrary made after the commencement of this Act.

(2) The registrar may give a certificate to expire at the end of a limited period of not less than five years, and may from time to time renew with or without modifications such a certificate to expire at the end of the period for which it is renewed.

(3) No scheme shall be so certified which contains an obligation upon the workmen to join the scheme as a condition of their hiring, or which does not contain provisions enabling a workman to withdraw from the scheme.

(4) If complaint is made to the Registrar of Friendly Societies by or on behalf of the workmen of any employer that the benefits conferred by any scheme no longer conform to the conditions stated in sub-section (1) of this section, or that the provisions of such scheme are being violated, or that the scheme is not being fairly administered, or that satisfactory reasons exist for revoking the certificate, the registrar shall examine into the complaint and, if satisfied that good cause exist for such complaint, shall unless the cause of complaint is removed, revoke the certificate.

(5) When a certificate is revoked or expires, any moneys or securities held for the purpose of the scheme shall, after due provision has been made to discharge the liabilities already accrued, be distributed as may be arranged between the employer and workmen, or as may be determined by the Registrar of Friendly Societies in the event of a difference of opinion.

(6) Whenever a scheme has been certified as aforesaid, it shall be the duty of the employer to answer all such inquiries and to furnish all such accounts in regard to the scheme as may be made or required by the Registrar of Friendly Societies.

(7) The Chief Registrar of Friendly Societies shall include in his annual report the particulars of the proceedings of the Registrar under this Act.

(8) The Chief Registrar of Friendly Societies may make regulations for the purpose of carrying this section into effect.

See also Workmen's Compensation (War Addition) Act, 1917, sec. 2, infra, p. 1460.

By Horn v. The Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty, (1911) 1 K. B. 24, a valid scheme under this section is substituted for the provisions of the Act in its entirety. It is under this section only that contracting out of the Act is provided for, but when a workman does come within the scheme he is outside the Act altogether. This case was followed in Haworth v. Andrew Knowles, (No. 2) (1913) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 746, when a scheme came to an untimely end, and the man wanted to make the masters liable, but could not. He had contracted out of the Act. Horn's Case was distinguished in Leaf v. Furze, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 601, where the meaning of the word "accident" in a valid scheme was read according to the extended meaning given to it in the Act, i.e., so as to include industrial disease.

In Godwin v. Admiralty Commissioners, (1913) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 680 the same decision was given, and the objection to the recertifying of the scheme under the old Act of 1897 was disallowed (see also under sect. 15).

Where the rules are revised with the result that the compensation payable is increased a workman injured before the revision is entitled to compensation at the increased rate as from the date of revision (Beard v. Committee, etc. West Yorkshire Coll., (1917) W. C. & I. 222).

Section 3 Notes.

Sub-s. 1. This Act shall apply.]—Apart from this section contracting out is forbidden, but in Ryan v. Hartley, (1912) W. C. Rep. 236, it was decided that a disputed claim might be settled by payment of a lump sum, and that this did not constitute an agreement requiring registration under Schedule II. par. 10. Here a workman slipped from a ladder and injured the tendon of his leg. He commenced proceedings; the employers replied he had fully recovered within a fortnight of his accident, and that he had accepted 35*s.* in full satisfaction of his claim. The man tried to reopen the agreement and, certainly on a question of merits or honesty, rightly failed. The decision is wholly satisfactory on every point but this; the bearing of this section was in no way discussed, in fact the section does not even appear to have been considered. Here was a bonâ fide claim recognised and settled for a lump sum. So far it is clearly not a contracting out, but a recognition of the Act. But then, having recognised the Act, the parties proceed to make a contract of their own neither recognised by the Act nor allowed by it. The Act imperatively directs that in cases other than death the compensation payable is to be a weekly sum and only a weekly sum. Instead they bargain for a lump sum. Of course, had the claim been bonâ fide disputed in its entirety it would have been otherwise. If the employers had said, "You were well in a week," or "You have no claim at all, but here is 35*s.* to get rid of you," the decision would have been unimpeachable. Having regard to the form of receipt given, a dictum of Buckley, L.J.—with which the judgment of Cozens-Hardy, M.R., is in no way inconsistent—would almost seem to suggest the facts were so regarded. The whole claim and case was more or less doubtful. This being so it hardly seems that it will be safe for employers to compound genuine cases without as now obtaining the approval of the court. If they do they may some day find themselves fronted with the unpleasant dilemma: They could not settle under the Act save by a weekly payment (Mulholland v. Whitehaven Collieries, (1910) 2 K. B. 278), nor outside the Act by virtue of this section. To pay a sum for the Act not to apply if an accident does happen does not seem vastly different to paying a sum for the Act not to apply if an accident has happened.

To make an agreement beyond doubt, a weekly sum should be agreed; the incapacity estimated at so many weeks; compounded for under proviso, Schedule I. (17); registered under Schedule II. (9), when the requirements of Schedule II. (10) will be complied with.

Apart from this, the only protection a master has is, a "spent agreement" cannot be registered (Popple v. Frodingham Iron and Steel Co., (1912) 2 K. B 141)

In British and South A. S. N. Co. v. Neil, 3 B. 413, the parties agreed that if a dispute arose as to total incapacity the workman should join in an application for a reference to a referee under Schedule I. (15), and that if he refused compensation should be ended. This penal clause was held to be a contracting out of the Act, and therefore rendered the agreement void.

Where a scheme provided that any question with regard to what was an injury within the meaning of that term as used in the scheme should be determined by the committee, it was decided in Allen v. G. E. R., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 388, that the decision of the committee was final and ousted the jurisdiction of the courts.

Sub-Contracting.

Sub-contracting.

4.—(1) Where any person (in this section referred to as the principal), in the course of or for the purposes of his trade or business, contracts with any other person (in this section referred to as the contractor) for the execution by or under the contractor of the whole or any part of any work undertaken by the principal, the principal shall be liable to pay to any workman employed in the execution of the work any compensation under this Act which he would have been liable to pay if that workman had been immediately employed by him; and where compensation is claimed from or proceedings are taken against the principal, then, in the application of this Act, references to the principal shall be substituted for references to the employer, except that the amount of compensation shall be calculated with reference to the earnings of the workman under the employer by whom he is immediately employed.

Provided that, where the contract relates to threshing, ploughing, or other agricultural work, and the contractor provides and uses machinery driven by mechanical power for the purpose of such work, he and he alone shall be liable under this Act to pay compensation to any workman employed by him on such work.

(2) Where the principal is liable to pay compensation under this section, he shall be entitled to be indemnified by any person who would have been liable to pay compensation to the workman independently of this section, and all questions as to the right to and amount of any such indemnity shall in default of agreement be settled by arbitration under this Act.

(3) Nothing in this section shall be construed as preventing a workman recovering compensation under this Act from the contractor instead of the principal.

(4) This section shall not apply in any case where the accident occurred elsewhere than on, or in, or about premises on which the principal has undertaken to execute the work or which are otherwise under his control or management.

It will be observed this section does not apply unless the contract is in the course of or for the purposes of a person's trade or business (Brine v. May, (1913) W. C. Rep. 148), and unless it be for any work undertaken by him for such purposes. These latter words have been the occasion of much doubt which, however, has been considerably cleared up by the recent cases of Skates v. Jones, (1910) 2 K. B. 903; Luckwill v. Auchin Steam S. Co., (1913) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 167; and Hayes v. Thomson, ib. 161. In Zugg v. Cunningham, 45 S. L. R. 670, the Lord President construed the section as if it referred to sub-contracting only, almost as if the words "for another" were to be read into the provision. The English courts would not so limit the words. The section applied to all work undertaken by the principals in the course of their trade. The decisions were given in cases rather peculiar in their special facts and apparently wider than they really have proved to be. The words "undertaken by" are used in contradistinction to "undertaken for a principal." To enable a principal to carry on his trade or business, he may need to have many things done for him by outsiders. If a shipowner, boilers may need scaling; if a manufacturer, tanks may need taring; if a barge owner, barges may need overhauling; moulding manufacturers may need wood stacking. As to whether in the case of such contracts he is a principal to the men so employed to do the work, see Hockley v. West London Timber and Joinery Co., Ltd., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 504: 83 L. J. K. B. 1520; Bobbey v. W. M. Crosbie & Co., Ltd., (1916) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 36. But on the other hand, work may be undertaken by him as part of his regular trade or business, and through press of time or for other reason he may contract with others to do it for him, e.g., a speculative builder who sublets the mason work or the plumbing or the brick-setting; or a firm using lighters all over the world for the sale of coal, and wanting another lighter in another place (Dittmar v. Ship V. 593, (1909) 1 K. B. 389); then in such contracts he will be a principal to the men employed by the contractor. Owing to sect. 13, as to the exercise, etc., of their powers, the liability of corporations under this section is considerably extended (Mulrooney v. Todd and Bradford Corporation, (1909) 1 K. B. 165).

A man has no more rights against a principal than against his employer, e.g., Marks v. Carne, (1909) 2 K. B. 516; where a man being a member of the employer's family was not a "workman" within the Act. So notice given to an employer does not bind the principal who must be served (Griffiths v. Atkinson, (1912) W. C. Rep. 277); and a man having elected to make one liable cannot afterwards proceed against the other (Meier v. Dublin Corporation, ib. 30). Whether both can be rightfully joined together in the same proceedings was left in doubt in Mulrooney v. Todd, (1909) 1 K. B. 165.

Machinery driven by Mechanical Power.]—This was involved but not decided in Walsh v. Hayes, 43 Ir. L. T. 114, and it must be remembered cases under the old Act are misleading, as there the words were machinery driven by steam, water, or other mechanical power, i.e., other mechanical power ejusdem generis with steam and water. Here the words have no such restricted meaning.

Principals are to be indemnified. For extent of indemnity, see under sect. 6. For practice, see rr. 20—28.

Sub-s. 4.]—In Dittmar's Case, supra, work on the barge, it being still in English waters, was held to be on or in or about. In the numerous cases under the old Act, the idea of proximity was involved.

SECTION 5.

Provision as to Cases of Bankruptcy of Employer.

Provision as to cases of bankruptcy of employer.

5.—(1) Where any employer has entered into a contract with any insurers in respect of any liability under this Act to any workman, then, in the event of the employer becoming bankrupt, or making a composition or arrangement with his creditors, or if the employer is a company in the event of the company having commenced to be wound up, the rights of the employer against the insurers as respects that liability shall, notwithstanding anything in the enactments relating to bankruptcy and the winding up of companies, be transferred to and vest in the workman, and upon any such transfer the insurers shall have the same rights and remedies and be subject to the same liabilities as if they were the employer, so however that the insurers shall not be under any greater liability to the workman than they would have been under to the employer.

(2) If the liability of the insurers to the workman is less than the liability of the employer to the workman, the workman may prove for the balance in the bankruptcy or liquidation.

(3) There shall be included among the debts which under section one of the Preferential Payments in Bankruptcy Act, 1888, and section four of the Preferential Payments in Bankruptcy (Ireland) Act, 1889, are in the distribution of the property of a bankrupt and in the distribution of the assets of a company being wound up to be paid in priority to all other debts, the amount, not exceeding in any individual case one hundred pounds, due in respect of any compensation the liability wherefor accrued before the date of the receiving order or the date of the commencement of the winding up, and those Acts and the Preferential Payments in Bankruptcy Amendment Act, 1897, shall have effect accordingly. Where the compensation is a weekly payment, the amount due in respect thereof shall, for the purposes of this provision, be taken to be the amount of the lump sum for which the weekly payment could, if redeemable, be redeemed if the employer made an application for that purpose under the first schedule to this Act.

60 & 61 Vict. c. 19.

(4) In the case of the winding up of a company within the meaning of the Stannaries Act, 1887, such an amount as aforesaid, if the compensation is payable to a miner or the dependants of a miner, shall have the like priority as is conferred on wages of miners by section nine of that Act, and that section shall have effect accordingly.

50 & 51 Vict. c. 43.

(5) The provisions of this section with respect to preferences and priorities shall not apply where the bankrupt or the company being wound up has entered into such a contract with insurers as aforesaid.

(6) This section shall not apply where a company is wound up voluntarily merely for the purposes of reconstruction or of amalgamation with another company.

The rights of a workman against his employers' insurers are simply the rights of his employers, and nothing more, nothing less. See for an example of the extent of the workman's right against the employer's insurers where employer becomes bankrupt (Craig and Another v. Royal Insurance Co., Ltd., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 139). If arbitration be a condition precedent to their recovering, it will be equally a condition precedent to his recovering (King v. Phœnix Assurance Co., (1910) 2 K. B. 666); if the payment of calls in a mutual society is a condition of benefiting, but the employers through non-payment have not lost their rights, neither will the workman have lost his (Daff v. Mid. Coll., etc., 5 B. 671, and in H. L. to be reported). To ascertain his rights a workman may examine his bankrupt employer (Rule 37).

Preferential Claims.]—Sub-s. 3 provides how compensation is to be treated in bankruptcy, etc. The weekly payment and its lump sum value will be assessed in the usual way by arbitration proceedings. So assessed, it can be proved for in the bankruptcy proceedings, and to the extent of 100*l.* made a preferential charge (Re J., an arranging debtor, Ex parte Reid, 45 Ir. L. T. 247). When fixed, the sum will be paid into court to abide the order of the county court judge (ib.). An arbitrator has himself no power to order payment (Homer v. Gough, (1912) 2 K. B. 303). Section 5 Notes.

Where an employer company was insured and both the employer company and the insurance office became insolvent and the workman sought to prove in the liquidation of the employer company, it was held in In re Pethick, Dix & Co., Ltd., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 5, that there was no right in such a case of preferential payment, and the workman's only remedy was proof against the insurance office.

The effect of sub-s. 2 on sub-s. 1 is explained in Thrashbush Coal Co., Ltd. v. M'Inally, (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 267, which also considers the position where both employer and insurer are in liquidation.

For a consideration of the employer's position where he is insured, compromises a claim made by a workman, and then the insurance office goes into liquidation, see Empire Guarantee, &c. v. Owen & Sons, (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 270.

As regards companies in liquidation, these are now governed by the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, s. 209; whilst s. 240 is substituted for the provisions of sub-s. 4.

SECTION 6.

Remedies both Against Employer and Stranger.

Remedies both against employer and stranger.

6. Where the injury for which compensation is payable under this Act was caused under circumstances creating a legal liability in some person other than the employer to pay damages in respect thereof—

(1) The workman may take proceedings both against that person to recover damages and against any person liable to pay compensation under this Act for such compensation, but shall not be entitled to recover both damages and compensation; and

(2) If the workman has recovered compensation under this Act, the person by whom the compensation was paid, and any person who has been called on to pay an indemnity under the section of this Act relating to sub-contracting, shall be entitled to be indemnified by the person so liable to pay damages as aforesaid, and all questions as to the right to and amount of any such indemnity shall, in default of agreement, be settled by action, or, by consent of the parties, by arbitration under this Act.

Sub-s. 1. Workmen's Election.]—See under sect. 1, sub-s. 2 (b). Mr. Dawbarn suggested in a previous edition, "That taking proceedings in itself is not an election seems to follow from the words 'both against.' In the old Act the similar section distinctly stated 'a workman may at his option proceed . . . against that person or against his employee . . . but not against both.' Thus his election seems not final unless he both proceeds and recovers. He is to be paid once, but he is not to be paid nor try to be paid twice." This proposition is, however, very doubtful in view of the dicta of Rowlatt, J., in Woodcock v. L. & N. W. R., (1913) 3 K. B. 139; (1913) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 563. See also Long v. G. N. Rail. Co., (1902)

Section 6 Notes.

86 L. T. 802. Acceptance of compensation from an employer is probably a "recovery" (Aldin v. Stewart, (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 454; Gray v. N. B. Ry. Co., ibid., 458, 460). It is different, however, if the compensation is accepted with the reservation of all rights against third parties and on the terms that if damages are obtained the compensation will be refunded (Kelly v. N. B. Ry. Co., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 516). If a workman recovers under the Act and then dies his dependants cannot proceed at common law against the persons guilty of the negligence which caused the injury (Gray v. N. B. Rail. Co., (1915) S. C. 211).

Sub-s. 2. Employer's Indemnity.]—Where a workman would have a right of action against another for the injuries he has sustained, so far, and only so far, and no further has an employer a right to an indemnity.

If a workman would have a right against fellow workmen for negligence, and he has (Lees v. Dunkerley Brothers, (1911) A. C. 5), an employer has the same. His rights are simply co-extensive with those of his workman. And if such rights once become vested, so also do these of the employer, and even where death would have ended the workman's rights, his death does not end those of his employer. Under the definition, "workman" includes dependants, and in Smith's Dock v. Redhead, (1912) 2 K. B. 323, the employer on the workman's death had to compensate an illegitimate child with no rights against the third party; but as the injury was caused under circumstances creating a liability in some person other than the employer, and the workman, as defined, recovered compensation, therefore the employer was entitled to be indemnified.

If the employer's own negligence, equally with that of the third party, is the cause of the accident, he has no right over (Cory v. France, (1911) 1 K. B. 114).

In Dickson v. J. A. Scott, Ltd., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 67, it was decided that the occupiers of premises in which a workman was injured by falling down an unlighted unfenced hole some short time after working hours were liable to the employer who had paid compensation. The workman was regarded as a licensee to whom a duty to take care was owed.

What does the Indemnity cover?]—The whole matter is fully discussed in Nettleingham v. Powell, (1913) W. C. Rep. 22. On February 18th, 1911, a workman was injured and compensation 15*s.* a week paid. In August, the employer first found injuries due to negligence of defendants and wrote demanding indemnity, which was refused. December 2nd they reduced payments to 7*s.* 6*d.* January 1st, 1912, workman instituted proceedings. Hearing fixed for February 6th. February 5th, informed defendants, who did not attend. On hearing, settled for £52 10*s.* and costs, £22 10*s.* They claimed indemnity:—forty-one weeks' compensation at 15*s.*, £30 15*s.*; nine weeks at 7*s.* 6*d.*, £3 7*s.* 6*d.*; workman's fare to be medically examined, 14*s.* 6*d.*; as settled, £52 10*s.*; his costs, £22 10*s.*; own costs, £17 16*s.*; medical fee, £9 9*s.* 0*d.*; total £136 12*s.* They did not comply with r. 24, now r. 25 and modified to meet this case. It was held this did not forfeit their rights under this section, but put them to strict proof of every item. All were allowed.

Settled by Action.]—If third parties agree to settlement by arbitration, they seriously limit their right of appeal (Cutsforth v. Johnson, N. E. Rail. third parties, (1913) W. C. Rep. 131), as they can only object to a finding of fact if no evidence.

National Insurance Act, 1911.]—Though the rights and liabilities of the workman under this Act are not directly connected with section 6 of the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1906, the present is a convenient place to introduce the growing body of case law under sect. 11 of the National Insurance Act, 1911. That section provides for a reduction of benefits in the case of a workman receiving compensation, so that the employer pays in the first instance and the approved society is relieved to the extent of the compensation paid. In consequence of this it is manifestly to the interest of approved societies to see that their members enforce their rights under the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1906. But the workman has a right to free movement in the first instance. The approved society cannot dictate to him how he shall proceed, what solicitor he is to have, etc. The approved society can only take action or bring pressure to bear on the workman when the insured person, i.e., the workman "unreasonably refuses or neglects to take proceedings." If an approved society proceeds prematurely and before the workman has so refused or neglected the arbitrator may and should dismiss the application. The society cannot later turn round and say, "We were not proceeding as an approved society but simply as a trades union acting on behalf of a member." See Burnham v. Hardy, (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 146. If the workman starts proceedings and then funds fail and he decides not to go on, and then his approved society decides to help him and continues the proceedings, it must be remembered that notice of change of solicitors must be given, for the workman's solicitors as such may have no locus standi. As to this and the question of costs, see Doughty v. Altham Colliery Co., (1916) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 102, and cases there cited.

Trades Union.—A trades union may assist a workman in taking proceedings but may not take proceedings in his name (Bobbey v. W. M. Crosbie & Co., Ltd., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 258).

Application of Act to Seamen.

Application of Act to seamen.

7.—(1) This Act shall apply to masters, seamen, and apprentices to the sea service and apprentices in the sea-fishing service, provided that such persons are workmen within the meaning of this Act, and are members of the crew of any ship registered in the United Kingdom, or of any other British ship or vessel of which the owner, or (if there is more than one owner) the managing owner or manager resides or has his principal place of business in the United Kingdom, subject to the following modifications :—

As to meaning of "ship," "seamen," etc., see sect. 13 and Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, s. 742; ante, p. 1303. The Act does not seem strictly limited to services actually on board. In Dothie v. MacAndrew, (1908) 1 K. B. 803, a captain went on shore about deserting seamen and was injured when stepping into a tram and it seemed accepted he was within the Act.

"Manager" by sect. 13 means the ship's husband or other person to whom the management of the ship is entrusted by or on behalf of the owner.

Seamen must also be workmen. A master may still be a workman, though owner of shares in the ship. Such ownership does not necessarily make him a partner (Sharpe v. Carswell, (1910) S. C. 391; 47 S. L. R. 335). As to the position of members of a fishing vessel remunerated in the profit sharing plan, see sub-s. 2, infra.

Although s. 7 brings a seaman within the Act, it does not enable him to recover in respect of an industrial disease under s. 8 since he cannot get the necessary certificate. See Curtis v. Black & Co., (1909) 2 K. B. 529.

Members of the Crew.]—This may possibly limit "seamen" to regular hands as distinguished from temporary workers, though "signing on" may not be a necessary formality. Cattlemen employed by cargo owners to see after their animals on board have been held not part of the crew (Anglo-Argentine Co. v. Temperley S. Co., (1899) 2 Q. B. 403).

Registered.]—This section applies only to registered or British ships as specified (Mortimer v. Wisker, 83 L. J. K. B. 1245). A colonial sailor on a colonial ship belonging to a colonial owner had, therefore, no rights under this section, and though injured locally has no rights apart from it (Panagotis v. Pontiac, (1912) W. C. Rep. 74).

(a) The notice of accident and the claim for compensation may, except where the person injured is the master, be served on the master of the ship as if he were the employer, but where the accident happened and the incapacity commenced on board the ship it shall not be necessary to give any notice of the accident :

Practice, Rules 38—40.

(b) In the case of the death of the master, seaman, or apprentice, the claim for compensation shall be made within six months after news of the death has been received by the claimant :

(c) Where an injured master, seaman, or apprentice is discharged or left behind in a British possession or in a foreign country, depositions respecting the circumstances and nature of the injury may be taken by any judge or magistrate in the British possession, and by any British consular officer in the foreign country, and if so taken shall be transmitted by the person by whom they are taken to the Board of Trade, and such depositions or certified copies thereof shall in any proceedings for enforcing the claim be admissible in evidence as provided by sections six hundred and ninety-one and six hundred and ninety-five of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, and those sections shall apply accordingly :

Sect. 695 is printed ante, p. 1301.

(d) In the case of the death of a master, seaman, or apprentice, leaving no dependants, no compensation shall be payable, if the owner of the ship is under the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, liable to pay the expenses of burial :

This seems to be sect. 34, Merchant Shipping Act, 1906, substituted for sect. 207, Merchant Shipping Act, 1894 (see ante, p. 1322).

(e) The weekly payment shall not be payable in respect of the period during which the owner of the ship is, under the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, as amended by any subsequent enactment, or otherwise, liable to defray the expenses of maintenance of the injured master, seaman, or apprentice :

See above (d). This sub-section only means benefits must not overlap

Section 7 Notes.

(McDermott v. Tintoretto, (1911) A. C. 35). Thus the court has no jurisdiction to award compensation instead of wages under an apprenticeship deed (Turner v. "Haulwen" (Owners), (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 50). Nor will the usual general release signed at the end of the voyage apply to a claim under the Act (Buls v. Teutonic, (1913) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 752).

(f) Any sum payable by way of compensation by the owner of a ship under this Act shall be paid in full notwithstanding anything in section five hundred and three of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894 (which relates to the limitation of a shipowner's liability in certain cases of loss of life, injury, or damage), but the limitation on the owner's liability imposed by that section shall apply to the amount recoverable by way of indemnity under the section of this Act relating to remedies both against employer and stranger, as if the indemnity were damages for loss of life or personal injury :

(g) Sub-sections (2) and (3) of section one hundred and seventy-four of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894 (which relates to the recovery of wages of seamen lost with their ship), shall apply as respects proceedings for the recovery of compensation by dependants of masters, seamen, and apprentices lost with their ship as they apply with respect to proceedings for the recovery of wages due to seamen and apprentices ; and proceedings for the recovery of compensation shall in such a case be maintainable if the claim is made within eighteen months of the date at which the ship is deemed to have been lost with all hands.

Ante, p. 1272. The provisions are additional, not substitutive means of proof (Maginn v. Carlingford Lough S.S. Co., 43 Ir. L. T. R. 124), and application for arbitration may be brought at any time if other proof of death be available (Ib.).

(2) This Act shall not apply to such members of the crew of a fishing vessel as are remunerated by shares in the profits or the gross earnings of the working of such vessel.

A man employed on a fishing vessel who receives, in addition to his food and some other small perquisites, wages at a fixed rate per week, and also poundage on the net profits of the voyage, is a "member of the crew of a fishing vessel . . . remunerated by a share in the profits" (Costello v. Kelsall Bros., (1913) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 410). A man in receipt of a bonus varying with the catch, a bonus called "trip money," is not "remunerated by shares in the profits" Duck v. North Sea Steam Trawling Co., Ltd., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 527 ; Newstead v. "Labrador" (Owners), (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 519. This sub-section no less applies because a share fisherman is paid a wage for shore duty (Gill v. Aberdeen S. T. and F. Co., 45 S. L. R. 247), or receives payment in kind and a regular wage as well as his share (Costello v. S.S. Pigeon (Owners), (1913) A. C. 407 ; (1913) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 410), or does something incidental to his work as an optional extra (Whelan v. G. N. S.S. Co., 78 L. J. K. B. 860), or is guaranteed a minimum weekly amount (Admiral F. Co. v. Robinson, (1910) 1 K. B. 540), or receives a share and a weekly wage even if the share be a trifle, 3*d.* in the pound of net profits, and the weekly wage the substantial remuneration. Contrast Woolfe v. Colquhoun, (1912) W. C. Rep. 342. But a man is not a share fisherman, who, though remunerated by a share, does not fish, but simply carries fish from curing stations to vessels (Jamieson v. Clark, 1 B. 228). Men receiving "Stocker" and "Liver money" have been held to be remunerated by shares (Burman v. "Zodiac" Steam Fishing Co., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 520 ; 83 L J. K. B. 1683 : Stephenson v. Rossall S. F. Co., Ltd., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 121). It is to some extent a matter of degree. The failure to insert in a running agreement the correct remuneration of the crew as required by section 400 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, does not preclude proof of the actual remuneration (Burman v. "Zodiac" Steam Fishing Co., supra).

(3) This section shall extend to pilots to whom Part X. of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, applies, as if a pilot when employed on any such ship as aforesaid were a seaman and a member of the crew.

Application of Act to Industrial Diseases.

8.—(1) Where—

(i.) the certifying surgeon appointed under the Factory and Workshop Act, 1901, for the district in which a workman is employed certifies that the workman is suffering from a disease mentioned in the third schedule to this Act and is thereby disabled from earning full wages at the work at which he was employed ; or

(ii.) a workman is, in pursuance of any special rules or regulations made under the Factory and Workshop Act, 1901, suspended from his usual employment on account of having contracted any such disease ; or

and the disease is due to the nature of any employment in which the workman was employed at any time within the twelve months previous to the date of the disablement or suspension, whether under one or more employers, he or his dependants shall be entitled to compensation under this Act as if the disease or such suspension as aforesaid were a personal injury by accident arising out of and in the course of that employment, subject to the following modifications :—

(a) The disablement or suspension shall be treated as the happening of the accident ;

(b) If it is proved that the workman has at the time of entering the employment wilfully and falsely represented himself in writing as not having previously suffered from the disease, compensation shall not be payable ;

(c) The compensation shall be recoverable from the employer who last employed the workman during the said twelve months in the employment to the nature of which the disease was due : Section 8.

(i.) the workman or his dependants if so required shall furnish that employer with such information as to the names and addresses of all the other employers who employed him in the employment during the said twelve months as he or they may possess, and, if such information is not furnished, or is not sufficient to enable that employer to take proceedings under the next following proviso, that employer upon proving that the disease was not contracted whilst the workman was in his employment shall not be liable to pay compensation ; and Industrial diseases.

(ii.) if that employer alleges that the disease was in fact contracted whilst the workman was in the employment of some other employer, and not whilst in his employment, he may join such other employer as a party to the arbitration, and if the allegation is proved that other employer shall be the employer from whom the compensation is to be recoverable ; and

(iii.) if the disease is of such a nature as to be contracted by a gradual process, any other employers, who during the said twelve months employed the workman in the employment to the nature of which the disease was due, shall be liable to make to the employer from whom compensation is recoverable such contributions as, in default of agreement, may be determined in the arbitration under this Act for settling the amount of the compensation ;

(d) The amount of the compensation shall be calculated with reference to the earnings of the workman under the employer from whom the compensation is recoverable ;

(e) The employer to whom notice of the death, disablement, or suspension is to be given shall be the employer who last employed the workman during the said twelve months in the employment to the nature of which the disease was due, and the notice may be given notwithstanding that the workman has voluntarily left his employment ;

(f) If an employer or a workman is aggrieved by the action of a certifying or other surgeon in giving or refusing to give a certificate of disablement or in suspending or refusing to suspend a workman for the purposes of this section, the matter shall in accordance with regulations made by the Secretary of State be referred to a medical referee, whose decision shall be final.

(2) If the workman at or immediately before the date of the disablement or suspension was employed in any process mentioned in the second column of the third schedule to this Act, and the disease contracted is the disease in the first column of that schedule set opposite the description of the process, the disease, except where the certifying surgeon certifies that in his opinion the disease was not due to the nature of the employment, shall be deemed to have been due to the nature of that employment, unless the employer proves the contrary.

(3) The Secretary of State may make rules regulating the duties and fees of certifying and other surgeons (including dentists) under this section.

(4) For the purposes of this section the date of disablement shall be such date as the certifying surgeon certifies as the date on which the disablement commenced, or, if he is unable to certify such a date, the date on which the certificate is given :

(a) Where the medical referee allows an appeal against a refusal by a certifying surgeon to give a certificate of disablement, the date of disablement shall be such date as the medical referee may determine :

(b) Where a workman dies without having obtained a certificate of disablement, or is at the time of death not in receipt of a weekly payment on account of disablement, it shall be the date of death.

(5) In such cases, and subject to such conditions as the Secretary of State may direct, a medical practitioner appointed by the Secretary of State for the purpose shall have the powers and duties of a certifying surgeon under this section, and this section shall be construed accordingly.

(6) The Secretary of State may make Orders for extending the provisions of this section to other diseases and other processes, and to injuries due to the nature of any employment specified in the order not being injuries by accident, either without modification or subject to such modifications as may be contained in the order.

(7) Where, after inquiry held on the application of any employers or workmen engaged in any industry to which this section applies, it appears that a mutual trade insurance company or society for insuring against the risks under this section has been established for the industry, and that a majority of the employers engaged in that industry are insured against such risks in the company or society and that the company or society consents, the Secretary of State may, by Provisional Order, require all employers in that industry to insure in the company or society upon such terms and under such conditions and subject to such exceptions as may be set forth in the Order. Where such a company or society has been established, but is confined to employers in any particular locality or of any particular class, the Secretary of State may for the purposes of this provision treat the industry, as carried on by employers in that locality or of that class, as a separate industry.

(8) A Provisional Order made under this section shall be of no force whatever unless and until it is confirmed by Parliament, and if, while the Bill confirming any such Order is pending in either House of Parliament, a petition is presented against the Order, the Bill may be referred to a Select Committee, and the petitioner shall be allowed to appear and oppose as in the case of Private Bills, and any Act confirming any Provisional Order under this section may be repealed, altered, or amended by a Provisional Order made and confirmed in like manner.

(9) Any expenses incurred by the Secretary of State in respect of any such Order, Provisional Order, or confirming Bill shall be defrayed out of moneys provided by Parliament.

(10) Nothing in this section shall affect the rights of a workman to recover compensation in respect of a disease to which this section does not apply, if the disease is a personal injury by accident within the meaning of this Act.

Against whom to Proceed.]—The workman should in general proceed against the employer in whose service he was when the disability, in respect of which he is proceeding, occurred, not against an employer in whose employ he was when an earlier attack of the same disease disabled him (Timpson v. John Mowlem & Co., Ltd., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 219).

Sub-s. 1 (iii.). Death may result directly from the disease, or indirectly from its sequelæ, e.g., from granular kidney following lead poisoning. Whilst sub-s. 2 assumes a disease in certain cases to be due to the nature of the employment, it does not assume that sequelæ are the result of the disease. This the applicant must prove (Haylett v. Vigor, (1908) 2 K. B. 837). The defendants must prove in all cases (unless sub-s. 2 applies) that the disease was caused or aggravated by the employment under the respondent employer (Dean v. Rubian Art Pottery, Ltd., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 147). For the meaning of "at or immediately before" in sub-s. 2 see Dean's Case and M'Taggart v. William Barr & Sons, Ltd., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 335.

In M'Ginn v. Udston, (1912) W. C. Rep. 134, a miner suffered from nystagmus. He was certified under sub-s. 1 (1), and under (2) it was presumed due to his employment. This presumption was rebutted by the finding of the referee that it was ordinary, not miner's nystagmus. But this did not preclude his proving it was miner's nystagmus in the ordinary way. In Scullion v. Cadzow Coal Co., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 129, it was held that the work of a surface labourer was not mining within No. 407 of the Statutory Rules and Orders, 1907. See now, however, the new Statutory Rules and Orders (1913), p. 1462, infra.

Notice must be given and claim made as in general, but the nature of the disease may furnish a reasonable cause for delay (Moore v. Naval Colliery Co., (1912) 1 K. B. 28; Rule 41). The date of the certificate must not by analogy be deemed the date of the quasi-accident (Keary v. Archibald Russell, Ltd., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 201).

Sub-s. 1 (iii.), (c) (ii.), (iii.).—If an employer having to pay compensation can under (ii.) prove the disease was contracted with another employer, he may join such employer and have him substituted for himself, but under (iii.) without proving anything more than that the workman was with such employer during any part of the preceding twelve months he may recover contribution (Mallinder v. Moores, Booth and Moores third parties, (1912) 2 K. B. 124). In calculating contribution payable the arbitrator ought to take into consideration the working conditions in the various employments (Barron v. Seaton Burn Coal Co., Ltd., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 132.

Sub-s. 1 (iii.) (c).—In apportioning the respective liability of consecutive employers, other things being equal, Judge Parry took as his basis the respective length of time the workman had been in the several employments. The award was made against the last employer with right of contribution from a preceding one (Lees v. Waring and Gillow, 2 B. 471). The meaning of the term "employment" was considered by Lord Johnston in the Scots' case of M'Gowan v. Merry and Cunninghame, Ltd., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep., at p. 545).

Certificate.]—Condition precedent, but if procured only in time for hearing will be in order (Taylor v. Burnham, 46 S. L. R. 482). Sub-s. 1 (i.), (ii.), (iii.). A workman must bring his case within one of these three classes to recover. A seaman not within (ii.) or (iii.) suffered from lead poisoning. Though within the Act he failed to recover because there was no certifying surgeon to whom he could apply for a certificate (Curtis v. Black, (1909) 2 K. B. 529). Rule 88 now provides for this. The order of a medical referee allowing an appeal against the refusal of a certifying surgeon to give a certificate of disablement and fixing the date of the man's disablement is a sufficient certificate for the purpose of this section. (Chuter v. J. J. Ford & Sons, Ltd., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 104. If the party complaining does not appeal against the terms of the certificate he cannot impugn the certificate at a subsequent hearing of the workman's application for compensation (Bedford v. Cowtan & Sons, Ltd., (1916) W. C. & Ins. Rep., 158).

It is doubtful whether a refusal to grant a certificate is conclusive of the non-existence of the disease. In Bentley v. Major & Sons, Ltd. (unreported) His Honour Judge Fossett-Lock held that it was not conclusive. This was based on the words "not satisfied" in App. AA (3).

Appeal to Referee.]—Sub-s. 1 (iii.) (f). This limits the functions of the referee to allowing or disallowing the certificate of the certifying surgeon having regard to the facts then existing (Garrett v. Waddell, 48 S. L. R. 937; Winter v. Addie, ib. 940). If he adds a note to his finding, it must be read, but if inconsistent with the finding it must go back to him for a proper report (M'Ginn v. Udston Coal Co., (1912) W. C. Rep. 134). In Birks v. Stafford Coal Co., (1913) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 755, the date fixed by such surgeon was useless to the applicant. He appealed to the referee. The employer argued no such appeal lay, the finding of such surgeon as to date being final under sub-s. 4. Held not so. The medical referee may do anything that the certifying surgeon could have done (M'Ginn v. Udston Coal Co., (1912) W. C. Rep. 134). He may not make a finding on the evidence (Booth & Sons v. Carter, (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 59). If the certificate is ambiguous and contradictory the arbitrator may refuse compensation (Mapp v. A. Straker & Son, Smith Bros., Ltd., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 98).

Sub-s. 2.—As to what is necessary to rebut the statutory presumption created by this sub-section, see Glancy v. John Watson, Ltd., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 40.

Section 8. Notes.

Review.]—Where the employer applies to review on the ground that the workman is no longer suffering from the industrial disease, evidence showing that the workman is suffering from another disease caused by the industrial disease is relevant and should not be excluded (Westminster Brymbo Coal and Coke Co. v. Evans, (1916) W. C. & I. 241; consider also Chorley Colliery Co. v. Bolton, (1916) W. C. & I. 329.

As to practice, see infra, Appendix AA., Rule 41.

Application to Workmen in Employment of Crown.

Application to workmen in employment of Crown.

9.—(1) This Act shall not apply to persons in the naval or military service of the Crown, but otherwise shall apply to workmen employed by or under the Crown to whom this Act would apply if the employer were a private person:

Provided that in the case of a person employed in the private service of the Crown, the head of that department of the Royal Household in which he was employed at the time of the accident shall be deemed to be his employer.

50 & 51 Vict. c. 67.

(2) The Treasury may, by warrant laid before Parliament, modify for the purposes of this Act their warrant made under section one of the Superannuation Act, 1887, and notwithstanding anything in that Act, or any such warrant, may frame schemes with a view to their being certified by the Registrar of Friendly Societies under this Act.

Practice, Rule 95.

Concurrent Contracts.]—In Brandy v. S.S. Raphael, (1911) A. C. 413, a stoker on a merchant vessel was a member of the Naval Reserve, and received 6*l.* a year as a retainer. Held this was earnings under a concurrent contract of service under Schedule I. (2) (b). The Crown not being liable in certain cases did not mean no other employer should be.

SECTION 10.

Appointment and Remuneration of Medical Referees and Arbitrators.

Appointment and remuneration of medical referees and arbitrators.

10.—(1) The Secretary of State may appoint such legally qualified medical practitioners to be medical referees for the purposes of this Act as he may, with the sanction of the Treasury, determine, and the remuneration of, and other expenses incurred by, medical referees under this Act shall, subject to regulations made by the Treasury, be paid out of moneys provided by Parliament.

Where a medical referee has been employed as a medical practitioner in connection with any case by or on behalf of an

Section 10. employer or workman or by any insurers interested, he shall not act as medical referee in that case.

(2) The remuneration of an arbitrator appointed by a judge of county courts under the second schedule to this Act shall be paid out of moneys provided by Parliament in accordance with regulations made by the Treasury.

The referee under sect. 8 has an appellate jurisdiction from the certifying surgeon; under Schedule I. (15), in a reference by both parties, his certificate is final; under Schedule II. (15) he simply makes a report. By Schedule II. (5) he may be summoned as an assessor, and may state his opinion, but he cannot be examined, sworn or cross-examined. By leave of court he may be asked questions, but not as a witness, but as adviser (Hugo v. Larkins, 3 B. 228). For Special Regulations, see Appendix BB. So, further, he may there and then examine the applicant, and an arbitrator may act on his advice without disclosing to the parties what such advice is (Smith v. Foster, (1913) W. C. Rep. 420).

Detention of Ships.

Detention of ships. 11.—(1) If it is alleged that the owners of any ship are liable as such owners to pay compensation under this Act, and at any time that ship is found in any port or river of England or Ireland, or within three miles of the coast thereof, a judge of any court of record in England or Ireland may, upon its being shown to him by any person applying in accordance with the rules of the court that the owners are probably liable as such to pay such compensation, and that none of the owners reside in the United Kingdom, issue an order directed to any officer of customs or other officer named by the judge requiring him to detain the ship until such time as the owners, agent, master, or consignee thereof have paid such compensation, or have given security, to be approved by the judge, to abide the event of any proceedings that may be instituted to recover such compensation and to pay such compensation and costs as may be awarded thereon; and any officer of customs or other officer to whom the order is directed shall detain the ship accordingly.

(2) In any legal proceeding to recover such compensation, the person giving security shall be made defendant, and the production of the order of the judge, made in relation to the security, shall be conclusive evidence of the liability of the defendant to the proceeding.

57 & 58 Vict. c. 60. (3) Section six hundred and ninety-two of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, shall apply to the detention of a ship under this Act as it applies to the detention of a ship under that Act, and, if the owner of a ship is a corporation, it shall for the purposes of this section be deemed to reside in the United Kingdom if it has an office in the United Kingdom at which service of writs can be effected. Section 11.

Practice, Rules 39—40.

Suppose a "workman," not a member of the crew, was injured in a home port, when working on a foreign ship for a foreign owner, could he avail himself of the machinery of this section to secure compensation? As it contemplates foreign owners being so liable, probably if he could get over the initial difficulties of making a claim and giving notice—of course sect. 7 would not apply to help him—there seems no reason why he should not. For our courts to so interfere on behalf of a foreign seaman on a foreign ship belonging to a foreign owner merely because he happened to be within our territory would seem to be wanting in the courtesy which is due from one nation to another. We have no right to interfere in the relations of foreign masters with their own servants. The point is discussed in Panagotis v. Pontiac, (1912) 1 K. B. 74; see also The "M. Moxham," 1 P. D. 107.

Returns as to Compensation.

12.—(1) Every employer in any industry to which the Secretary of State may direct that this section shall apply shall, on or before such day in every year as the Secretary of State may direct, send to the Secretary of State a correct return specifying the number of injuries in respect of which compensation has been paid by him under this Act during the previous year, and the amount of such compensation, together with such other particulars as to the compensation as the Secretary of State may direct, and in default of complying with this section shall be liable on conviction under the Summary Jurisdiction Acts to a fine not exceeding five pounds. Returns as to compensation.

(2) Any regulations made by the Secretary of State containing such directions as aforesaid shall be laid before both Houses of Parliament as soon as may be after they are made.

13. In this Act, unless the context otherwise requires,— Definitions.

"Employer" includes any body of persons corporate or unincorporate and the legal personal representative of a deceased employer, and, where the services of a workman are temporarily lent or let on hire to another person by the person with whom the workman has entered into a contract of service or apprenticeship, the latter shall, for the purposes of this Act, be deemed to continue to be the employer of the workman whilst he is working for that other person;

Section 13. "Workman" does not include any person employed otherwise than by way of manual labour whose remuneration exceeds two hundred and fifty pounds a year, or a person whose employment is of a casual nature and who is employed otherwise than for the purposes of the employer's trade or business, or a member of a police force, or an outworker, or a member of the employer's family dwelling in his house, but, save as aforesaid, means any person who has entered into or works under a contract of service or apprenticeship with an employer, whether by way of manual labour, clerical work, or otherwise, and whether the contract is expressed or implied, is oral or in writing;

"Employer," "Workman."]—These are correlative terms. To establish the relationship there must be a contract of service as distinguished from a contract for service (Simmons v. Heath Laundry, (1910) 1 K. B. 543). The relationship is practically very much the old relationship of master and servant, not that of anyone doing work for another. An appointment, say, as a doctor in a hospital, is not such a contract of service (Murphy v. Enniscorthy Guardians, 2 B. 291), nor that of a lecturer about an airship (Waites v. Franco-British Exhibition, 2 B. 199). The relationship is a question of fact. It no less exists because a man is doing work for his own benefit (Tombs v. Bomford, (1912) W. C. Rep. 229 (always assuming the accident does not occur while the workman is so working for his own benefit (Huscroft v. Bennett, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 9)), nor is a man estopped from saying he is not an employer because he has made weekly payments, thinking he was liable (Standing v. Eastwood, (1912) W. C. Rep. 200).

Under the National Insurance Act, 1911, curates ((1913) W. C. Rep. 34), and poor law officials (Ib. p. 245), and the resident staff of a hospital (Scottish Insurance Commissioners v. Royal Infirmary, 50 S. L. R. 495), have been held not to work under contract of service. But where a workman under the control of a board of guardians was injured, it was held in Finlay v. Tullamore Union (Guardians), (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 222, that the relationship of employer and workman existed. The stamping of a card under the National Insurance Act, 1911, is not conclusive evidence that the insured person is a workman within the meaning of the Workman's Compensation Act, 1906 (Barnes v. Evans & Co., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 109).

Seamen, masters of ships, etc., must come within s. 13 as well as within s. 7. A master of a barge working on the thirds and fourths system is a co-adventurer and not a workman (Beck v. W. Hill & Sons (Carriers), Ltd., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 319).

The meaning of the term "contract for service" was discussed at length in Simmons v. Heath Laundry Co., (1910) 1 K. B. 543. Buckley, L.J., suggested the following tests: Was the workman employed upon terms that he should within the scope of his employment obey his master's orders, or was he employed to exercise his skill and achieve an indicated result in such a manner as in his judgment was most likely to ensure success? Was his contract a contract of service within the meaning which an ordinary person would give to the words? Was it a contract under which he could be appropriately described as the servant of the employer? With these hypothetical questions, compare the decisions in M'Nally v. Fitzgerald, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 7, where a plumber was held to be a servant of the person in whose house he was executing repairs, and in Bobbey v. Crosbie & Co., Ltd., (1916) W.C. & Ins. Rep. 36, where the employer of a ganger was held to be the employer of a member of the gang. On the other hand, a rabbit trapper (M'Connell v. Galbraith, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 90); a person who had undertaken to do slating work (Barnes v. Evans & Co., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 109); a man who had undertaken to supply a yawl and crew for pilotage purposes (Walsh v. Waterford Harbour Commissioners, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 16), were held to be independent contractors. In Kemp v. Lewis, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 512; 83 L. J. K. B. 1535, a quarryman who assisted a farmer carrying hay after his work hours in return for payment in kind but not in money, was held not to be under any contract of service within the meaning of sect. 13. See also per Phillimore, L.J., in Newson v. Burstall, (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 16. In Richards v. Pitt, (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 417, the niece of a hop picker who helped her aunt to pick hops was held to be under no contract of service with the hop grower. A nurse who attends a patient in the patient's flat for a surgical operation is not under a contract of service with the patient (Bedford v. Marks, Law Journal, Aug. 18th, 1917, p. 311).

Such contract would hardly appear to exist where work is found by a philanthropic institution as a form of wise charity (Burns v. Manchester, etc., Mission, 1 B. 305; MacGilvrays v. N. Counties Institute for the Blind, 48 S. L. R. 811, contra, seems a doubtful decision); but is held to exist where work is found under Unemployed Workmen Act, 1905 (Porton v. Central (Unemployed) Body for London, (1909) 1 K. B. 173). Many cases on questions of fact have been decided, e.g., whether a shipowner or charterer was employer or whether a man was a partner, co-adventurer, independent contractor, or bailee, but turning on the particular terms of each contract, are of little guidance where the terms may differ however slightly.

A case of wider interest is Pears v. Gibbon, (1913) W. C. Rep. 469, where a trustee in bankruptcy employed an old member of the firm to assist in the winding up. Such assistance does not involve a contract of service, though a trustee may in fact employ such member as a servant if so mutually bargained.

In Ryan v. Tipperary County Council (No. 2), (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 22, where a workman worked under a ganger breaking stones for a county council the county court judge found that he was not under a contract of service with the county council. On appeal a new trial was ordered.

A contract of service is not determined simply by the injured workman receiving compensation and remaining from work (Warburton v. Co-operative Soc., Ltd., (1917) W. C. & I. 124).

Temporarily Lent on Hire.]—Workman must prove a subsisting contract of service between himself and lender (Boswell v. Gilbert, 2 B. 251; Mackinnon v. Miller, 46 S. L. R. 299; Reed v. Smith, 3 B. 223). Where a jobbing grinder rented power for his work from master cutlers and executed such work in their workshops as they gave him to do and did work for third parties when free, and while doing such work was injured, it was held that this was not a case of "lending" (Oates v. T. Turner & Co., (1916) W. C. & I., p. 335)

Remuneration Exceeds £250 a Year.]—See Schedule I. (2), "Earnings." If the employment is by way of manual labour the employer is a "workman" whatever his remuneration may be. For a case where it was considered what may amount to manual labour (within the meaning of the National Insurance Act, 1911), see Re Dairymen's Foremen and Re Tailors' Cutters, (1912) 28 T. L. R. 587. In cases other than those of manual labour, "if the contract [of service] is one which may continue for more than a year, and the servant, as incident to that contract, earns, or, but for some circumstance determining his earning power, would be able to earn in a year a sum exceeding £250, he will be within the exception [in sect. 13], although at the moment of the accident the remuneration he was actually earning might be at a lower rate than that of £250 per annum. So, on the other hand, if the actual or assumed earnings be less than £250 in the year, the man would be a 'workman,' although at the moment of the accident the remuneration he was actually earning was at a higher rate," per Warrington, L.J. in Griffith v. "Penrhyn Castle" (owners), (1917) W. C. & I., at p. 117.

Member of the Employer's Family.—Such cannot recover against a principal under sect. 4 as he is not a workman (Marks v. Carne, (1909) 2 K. B. 516); nor if only temporarily absent (M'Dougall v. M'Dougall, 48 S. L. R. 315).

Employment of Casual Nature.]—A charwoman regularly employed is not a casual labourer (Dewhurst v. Mather, (1908) 2 K. B. 754), but a window cleaner's work is of a casual nature (Hill v. Begg, (1908) 2 K. B. 802), and a man cutting down trees in an employer's garden (M'Corthy v. Norcott, 2 B. 279; Knight v. Bucknill, (1913) W. C. Rep. 175). But a labourer regularly employed as a woodman year by year for a season of about two months is not a casual labourer (Smith v. Buxton, (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 126). Because the windows cleaned are those of a doctor they do not bring case within exception of employer's trade or business (Rennie v. Reed, 45 S. L. R. 814); but otherwise where the work done was the lopping of trees and the employer was a retired doctor who farmed 215 acres for profit (Cotter v. Johnson, 5 B. 568); the mere owning of eight cottages and managing them does not constitute trade or business (Bargewell v. Daniel, 98 L. T. 257), though otherwise if regular business premises are repaired (Johnston v. Monastrevan General Store Co., 2 B. 183). Employment for the purposes of improving a house used for a trade or business is not of itself employment for the purposes of the trade or business (Alderman v. Warren, (1916) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 266). For a case in which the employer was held to be estopped from raising the defence of casual employment, see Fraser v. Driscoll, (1916) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 222.

Any reference to a workman who has been injured shall, where the workman is dead, include a reference to his legal personal representative or to his dependants or other person to whom or for whose benefit compensation is payable;

Any Reference to a Workman, etc.]—A dependant's right is independent, not derivative, and an award terminating the rights of the workman is no bar to the claim by the dependants (Jobson v. Cory, 4 B. 284). Whether these words go this length is doubtful. The Act is clear that if a man dies when in receipt of a weekly payment it intends his dependants to then step into his shoes, and receive a lump sum less what has been paid him (Schedule I. (a) (i.)). But does it intend more? does it intend conflicting rights? for it is clear an injured workman must settle for less for himself if he cannot bar the rights of his dependants. This is the result of an unsatisfactory series of cases commencing with an obiter in O'Keefe v. Lovatt, 4 W. C. C. 109, where the precise meaning was not material, and in all of which were other reasons for the decisions. Hitherto, this has been of little moment, but new developments have now made the question one of the greatest importance.

In Gill v. Fortescue, (1913) W. C. Rep. 471, a man was killed, leaving children and a widow. The employers admitted liability, paid a lump sum into court, when the widow gracefully renounced all claim in favour of her children—she is suing under Lord Campbell's Act—and the arbitrator awarded them the full amount paid in. After a lengthy argument on another point, which was in the end agreed, the employers cursorily took the second point that the arbitrator should not have awarded the full amount to the children, but should have taken into account the share due to the widow. But she had made no claim and would make no claim, and after three minutes' consideration, if so long, the court held the point "was so far-fetched as scarcely to deserve mention. The arbitrator had not awarded her any compensation, and to say the remaining dependants were not entitled to an amount due to a class was an impossible contention." Thus the Master of the Rolls, to which Kennedy, L.J., and Swinfen Eady, L.J., respectively merely added "I agree." Is this decision simply to mean, as it probably does, a sum was in court and duly appropriated to those before the court, and there was nothing for the Court of Appeal to interfere with; or is it to mean that in every case dependants may break up their claims, one set getting the maximum under the Act as compensation, the other a large sum at law as damages? Were this the conclusion, it would be simply shocking. But is it? It is clear sect. 1, sub-s. 2 (b), which says that an employer is not to pay twice, is no defence to an action entirely outside the Act. No court can say to a dependant, "You must come in with the others." But the sub-section as clearly says any proceedings outside the Act are to be a bar to proceedings under it. Thus the election by a dependant to take proceedings outside the Act would be an effective answer to proceedings under it taken by other dependants. In other words, one dependant taking such proceedings can bind all the others. But if such proceedings are not pending? Then all possible dependants should be brought before the court, if necessary, as the rules provide, as respondents. Then, if any one declines to come in with this class, the arbitrator cannot say, "Elect!" Each may well reply, "I am still considering my position"; but he can say, "I can make no award until you do," and adjourn accordingly. Rules providing for conditional payment in and such adjournment might well be made, and would be clearly intra vires and would nip in the bud what threatens to be a serious evil if not promptly dealt with.

[I believe there has been a case before Mr. Justice Atkin when he dismissed a widow's action for damages on the ground she was cognizant of the proceedings for compensation, but I can give no details, as I can find no report of it.—ED.]

Death of Dependant, if before claim, still right is vested and enures for benefit of his estate (United Collieries v. Hendry, (1909) A. C. 383).

"Dependants" means such of the members of the workman's family as were wholly or in part dependent upon the earnings of the workman at the time of his death, or would but for the incapacity due to the accident have been so dependent, and where the workman, being the parent or grandparent of an illegitimate child, leaves such a child so dependent upon his earnings, or, being an illegitimate child, leaves a parent or grandparent so dependent upon his earnings, shall include such an illegitimate child and parent or grandparent respectively;

Dependants.]—Dependency is now well settled to be a question of fact. But to entirely ignore the legal presumption is to err as much on one side of the law as to found dependency on it is to err on the other. "The fact that a legal duty lay upon the workman to provide maintenance is an element to be considered, no doubt because people usually count upon getting what they are entitled to" (Lord Loreburn, L.C., in Keeling v. New Monkton Collieries, (1911) A. C. 648), and now so decided in Potts or Young v. Niddrie and Benhar Coal Co., (1913) W. C. Rep. 547 (Sc.). But it will be a question of fact how far such rights were being actively enforced and with what likelihood of benefit. The dependency of a child is equally a question of fact (Lee v. Bessie, (1912) W. C. Rep. 57), as also of illegitimate children. Thus the married daughter of a man who lodged with her may not be a dependant, since the loss of the board money paid really falls on the husband (Montgomery v. Blows, (1916) W. C. & Ins.

Section 13 Notes.

Rep. 89. But if a daughter was in fact living in entire dependence on her father the fact that she was capable of earning a living is not material, and she is entitled to compensation as one totally dependent (Simms v. Lilleshall Coll, (1917) W. C. & I. 218). A posthumous child is in the same position as any other child, but a posthumous illegitimate child must prove the putative father had recognized the duty to support it before his death. His statement that he will marry the mother and provide a home for her are admissible in evidence on the issues of paternity and dependence (Lloyd v. Powell Duffryn Steam Coal Co., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 450); Harris v. Powell Duffryn Steam Coal Co., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 527. The question of paternity is a question of fact to be proved in the arbitration (Johnstone v. Spencer, 45 S. L. R. 802).

"Member of a family" means wife or husband, father, mother, grandfather, grandmother, step-father, step-mother, son, daughter, grandson, granddaughter, step-son, step-daughter, brother, sister, half-brother, half-sister;

Member of a Family.]—A son has no claim against his father with whom he worked (McDougall v. McDougall, 48 S. L. R. 315).

"Ship," "vessel," "seaman," and "port" have the same meanings as in the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894;

"Manager," in relation to a ship, means the ship's husband or other person to whom the management of the ship is entrusted by or on behalf of the owner;

"Police force" means a police force to which the Police Act, 1890, or the Police (Scotland) Act, 1890, applies, the City of London Police Force, the Royal Irish Constabulary, and the Dublin Metropolitan Police Force;

Police Force.]—This includes a police officer who, as a statutory duty acts as a fireman (Sudell v. Blackburn Corporation, 3 B. 227).

"Outworker" means a person to whom articles or materials are given out to be made up, cleaned, washed, altered, ornamented, finished, or repaired, or adapted for sale, in his own home or on other premises not under the control or management of the person who gave out the materials or articles;

The exercise and performance of the powers and duties of a local or other public authority shall, for the purposes of this Act, be treated as the trade or business of the authority;

The Exercise and Performance.]—By virtue of this definition in Mulrooney v. Todd and Bradford Corporation, (1909) 1 K. B. 165, the corporation were made liable under sect. 4 as principals making a contract for work undertaken by them.

"County court," "judge of the county court," "registrar of the county court," "plaintiff," and "rules of court," as respects Scotland, mean respectively sheriff court, sheriff, sheriff clerk, pursuer and act of sederunt.

Special Provisions as to Scotland.

Special provisions as to Scotland.

14. In Scotland, where a workman raises an action against his employer independently of this Act in respect of any injury caused by accident arising out of and in the course of the employment, the action, if raised in the sheriff court and concluding for damages under the Employers' Liability Act, 1880, or alternatively at common law or under the Employers' Liability Act, 1880, shall, notwithstanding anything contained in that Act, not be removed under that Act or otherwise to the Court of Session, nor shall it be appealed to that court otherwise than by appeal on a question of law; and for the purposes of such appeal the provisions of the second schedule to this Act in regard to an appeal from the decision of the sheriff on any question of law determined by him as arbitrator under this Act shall apply.

43 & 44 Vict. c. 42.

Provisions as to Existing Contracts and Schemes.

Provisions as to existing contracts and schemes.

15.—(1) Any contract (other than a contract substituting the provisions of a scheme certified under the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1897, for the provisions of that Act) existing at the commencement of this Act, whereby a workman relinquishes any right to compensation from the employer for personal injury arising out of and in the course of his employment, shall not, for the purposes of this Act, be deemed to continue after the time at which the workman's contract of service would determine if notice of the determination thereof were given at the commencement of this Act.

60 & 61 Vict. c. 37.

(2) Every scheme under the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1897, in force at the commencement of this Act shall, if re-certified by the Registrar of Friendly Societies, have effect as if it were a scheme under this Act.

(3) The Registrar shall re-certify any such scheme if it is proved to his satisfaction that the scheme conforms, or has been so modified as to conform, with the provisions of this Act as to schemes.

(4) If any such scheme has not been so re-certified before the expiration of six months from the commencement of this Act, the certificate thereof shall be revoked.

Re-certification of Old Scheme.]—In Godwin v. Admiralty Commissioners, [1913] W. C. & Ins. Rep. 680, it was held that all the formalities prescribed by sect. 3 for the certifying of a new scheme need not necessarily be complied with in the case of a re-certifying under sub-s. 3 of a scheme valid under the Act of 1897.

Commencement and Repeal.

Commencement and repeal.

16.—(1) This Act shall come into operation on the first day of July, nineteen hundred and seven, but, except so far as it relates to references to medical referees, and proceedings consequential thereon, shall not apply in any case where the accident happened before the commencement of this Act.

60 & 61 Vict. c. 37. 63 & 64 Vict. c. 22.

(2) The Workmen's Compensation Acts, 1897 and 1900, are hereby repealed, but shall continue to apply to cases where the accident happened before the commencement of this Act, except to the extent to which this Act applies to those cases.

Accidents which happened before the Act of 1906 came into operation were and are governed by the Act of 1897 in regard to all their incidents except so far as relates to medical referees as stated in the above sub-s. 1 (Mackay v. Rosie, (1912) W. C. Rep. 41).

SCHEDULES.

Scale and Conditions of Compensation.

(1) The amount of compensation under this Act shall be—

(a) where death results from the injury—

(i.) if the workman leaves any dependants wholly dependent upon his earnings, a sum equal to his earnings in the employment of the same employer during the three years next preceding the injury, or the sum of one hundred and fifty pounds, whichever of those sums is the larger, but not exceeding in any case three hundred pounds, provided that the amount of any weekly payments made under this Act, and any lump sum paid in redemption thereof, shall be deducted from such sum, and, if the period of the workman's employment by the said employer has been less than the said three years, then the amount of his earnings during the said three years shall be deemed to be one hundred and fifty-six times his average weekly earnings during the period of his actual employment under the said employer;

Sched.

(ii.) if the workman does not leave any such dependants, but leaves any dependants in part dependent upon his earnings, such sum, not exceeding in any case the amount payable under the foregoing provisions, as may be agreed upon, or, in default of agreement, may be determined, on arbitration under this Act, to be reasonable and proportionate to the injury to the said dependants; and

(iii.) if he leaves no dependants, the reasonable expenses of his medical attendance and burial, not exceeding ten pounds;

(b) where total or partial incapacity for work results from the injury, a weekly payment during the incapacity not exceeding fifty per cent. of his average weekly earnings during the previous twelve months, if he has been so long employed, but if not then for any less period during which he has been in the employment of the same employer, such weekly payment not to exceed one pound:

Provided that—

(a) if the incapacity lasts less than two weeks no compensation shall be payable in respect of the first week; and

(b) as respects the weekly payments during total incapacity of a workman who is under twenty-one years of age at the date of the injury, and whose average weekly earnings are less than twenty shillings, one hundred per cent. shall be substituted for fifty per cent. of his average weekly earnings, but the weekly payment shall in no case exceed ten shillings.

Where Death results.]—The county court judge should state in terms whether the dependency is total or partial. The scheme of the Act makes a great distinction between total and partial dependants, and the same conditions do not apply to the two cases, per Lord Cozens-Hardy, M.R. in Whittaker v. J. Joicey & Co., Ltd., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 548. The award may connote partial dependency without any formal finding (Ford v Oakdale Colliery Co., Ltd., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 46. In total dependency the amount is fixed as specified (note the words in Sched. I. (1) (a) (i.) "in the employment of the same employer," words which were explained in Greenwood v. Joseph Nall & Co., Ltd., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 346, where it is pointed out that a change of grade is a change of "employer"); in partial dependency, it is to be a sum reasonable and proportionate to the injury. In arriving at the amount there are two limits. One practice is: Find the actual benefit received, reduce to a weekly average, and by analogy with total dependency multiply by 156. The other is: Find the amount payable for total dependency, and simply deduct the capital value of the independent income. This was so done in Osmond v. Campbell and Harrison, (1905) 2 K. B. 852; followed in Littleford v. Connell, 3 B. 1. Here a woman earned 1*s.* 11*d.* a week, lost her husband, and the arbitrator gave her as totally dependent 156*l.*, and deducted 6*l.* on account of her independent earnings. The reasonableness of either limit will depend on the particular facts of every case. Either adopted as an invariable rule may prove absurd. E.g., a mother receives, say, 10*s.* a week from a son earning 2*l.* wages. Wholly dependent she would receive 300*l.* If she earned 1*s.* 11*d.* (or 11*s.* 1*d.*, the result would be the same) she would only receive 10*s.* × 156 = 78*l.* By the other method of computation, whether her son allowed her 2*s.* 6*d.*, 10*s.*, or even 1*l.* a week, she would still receive the same, namely 300*l.*, less 1*s.* 11*d.* or 11*s.* 1*d.* × 156, as the case might be. To find what is therefore reasonable, regard must be had to deceased's wages, dependant's income, and the amount allowed—three variants, not two. To work this out, no better system can be found than that of Judge Parry in Turner v. Miller, 3 B. 307, when awarding 125*l.*, arrived at by no particular method: "I considered that the son had been a substantial contributor to the family for many years, and would have continued to be so had he lived, and assessed the money to be paid on that basis." In Tamworth Colliery Co. v. Hall, (1911) A. C. 665, a father earned weekly 16*s.* 9*d.* in a colliery, and 13*s.* as a barber. His boy, maintained at home, earned 6*s.* 11*d.* in the colliery, and was worth 6*s.* further, helping him as barber. He was killed, and his father claimed as partially dependent. It was held dependency is a question of fact. The contribution of 6*s.* 11*d.* a week might or might not balance the cost of the maintenance. But the boy also was of value helping his father. This could not be reckoned as earnings being made as a member of the family, but there was no reason this claim should not be set off against his maintenance. This might leave a balance to the good contributed to the family chest, which the arbitrator would have to determine. So the facts presented themselves to the House of Lords. What weight (if any) was to be given to the independent income of the father (if any) was not discussed. Osmond's Case, supra, perfectly right on its own facts, could not possibly apply. Even if he were dependent and the earnings of the boy estimated at 6*s.* 11*d.* plus 6*s.*, and with no deduction for maintenance, still such sum would be more than swamped by deducting the capital value of his own independent income. Here the old general practice might be fairest to give 156 times the amount of the weekly surplus. But even for this there is no rule, and the whole is a question of fact in which every incident at the time of the death, the salient period, must be considered. Cheverton v. Oceanic S.S. (No. 2), (1913) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 462 ("The Titanic" disaster), is an extreme case. The deceased contributed to partial dependants 30*s.* a week, and the arbitrator gave the maximum 300*l.* But see Gourlay v Murray, 45 S. L. R., where the court did not approve of full amount given to an illegitimate child unwillingly supported by the father. Subject to the maximum in fixing a sum reasonable, etc., an arbitrator may take into account funeral expenses (Bevan v. Crawshay, 4 W. C. C. 110). The maximum of 300*l.* is the maximum payable from first to last; so if, before death, the employer has paid compensation weekly the amount so paid must be deducted from the 300*l.* (Robinson v, Consett Iron Co., (1916) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 201).

There may be total dependency in the case of a posthumous illegitimate child (Harris v. Powell Duffryn Steam Coal Co., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 527.

Taylor v. Powell Duffryn Steam Coal Co., (1916) W. C. & I. 325, is a curious case. There A. married B. and had three children. A. went to live with C. B. joined army. A. had illegitimate child by C. A. received B.'s separation allowance. C. killed by accident arising, etc. Held the illegitimate child was totally dependent, and that had it been proved that the separation allowance went into a common fund it would not follow that C.'s child was not totally dependant on C.'s earnings.

Application by dependants (Rules 4, 5); where no dependants (Rule 6).

As to dependants generally, see sect. 13, and their rights inter se, see infra, Schedule I. par. (8).

"Where . . . partial Incapacity results." — Weekly Payment.] The average weekly earnings prior to the accident is fixed once and for all, and in all subsequent proceedings is res judicata. The wages subsequently earned may naturally vary. To save applications for continual re-adjustment of the compensation, the arbitrator in Newhouse v. Johnson, 5 B. 137, fixed the weekly payment at two-thirds of the difference between 1*l.* and what the man actually earned in any given week, with a minimum of 10*s.* per week. Though a most excellent award, and well within the spirit of the Act that compensation and incapacity should vary together, in technicalities it was wrong, as one of the cardinal principles of the Act is that an arbitrator cannot dive into futurity, but must decide every case on evidence actually before him. Hence he must fix a definite amount even if it has to be varied from time to time on a change of circumstances taking place.

Important questions arise as to the meaning of "incapacity for work." A man may be quite capable of work and yet be incapacitated, because employers won't give him work because of his injuries (Ball v. Hunt, (1912) W. C. Rep. 261). Again, the incapacity must in fact result from the injury (Ystradowen Colliery Co. v. Griffiths, (1909) 2 K. B. 533). The onus is on the applicant to prove incapacity due to accident (Brownlee v. Coltness Iron Co., Ltd., (1917) W. C. & I. 235); on the employer to prove an intervening cause (Bown v. Meggitt & Jones, (1917) W. C. & I. 40). If it be due to an unreasonable refusal to undergo an operation, it is not incapacity resulting from the injury (Walsh v. Locke & Co. (Newland), Ltd., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 95). Secus, if the refusal was reasonable (Molamphy v. Sheridan and Others, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 19). The following cases may also be referred to where the incapacity was due to obesity: Clark v. George Taylor & Co., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. p. 448; unskilful surgical treatment: Della Rocca v. Stanley Jones & Co., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 33; old age: Lewis v. Wrexham and Acton Collieries Co., Ltd., (1916) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 275; unnecessary operation: Lakey v. Blair & Co., Ltd., (1917) W. C. & I. 78. A man may be incapacitated by the injury, although a collateral cause also prevents him earning wages, e.g., being shut up in an asylum (Slater v. Blyth Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Co., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 38), or prison (McNally v. Furness, Withy & Co., (1913) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 717), or internment (Cargo Fleet Iron Co. v. Funck, (1916) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 87); or heart disease (Harwood v. Wyken Colliery Co., (1913) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 317). See further, infra, Schedule I. (3), notes. If it be shown on an original application that the workman is capable of light work, the onus is upon him to show that he is unable to obtain suitable light work (Williams v. Ruabon Coal and Coke Co., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 32). If the man is able to do and get his old work, he is not incapacitated although the risk he runs in so working is greater than before. e.g., a one-eyed man risking the loss of the remaining eye, but whether such employment is suitable or not is a question of fact (Law v. William Baird & Co., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 140, as explained in Burt v. Fife Coal Co., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 629). See also Pearson v. Archibald Russell, Ltd., (1916) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 71; Jackson v. Hunslet Engine Co., ibid., 183. If suitable work at his old wages which he can do is offered without clogging conditions, the workman is not incapacitated from earning wages, and cannot refuse the offer and claim compensation (Keevans v. Mundy, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 180). See also Potts v. Guildford Syndicate, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 330. The position is, of course, different if no light work is available (Bonsall v. Mid. Coll., etc., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 331). Assuming incapacity, a workman is not disentitled from recovering compensation because he fails to return to work (Chapel Coal Co., Ltd. v. Devlin, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 621). For the position where the employer was prevented from giving the old work by a Trades Union, see Thompson v. Johnson and Nephew, Ltd., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 333. Compare Woodhouse v. Midland Ry., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 595.

(2) For the purposes of the provisions of this schedule relating to "earnings" and "average weekly earnings" of a workman, the following rules shall be observed :—

Sched. I.

(a) average weekly earnings shall be computed in such manner as is best calculated to give the rate per week at which the workman was being remunerated. Provided that where by reason of the shortness of the time during which the workman has been in the employment of his employer, or the casual nature of the employment, or the terms of the employment, it is impracticable at the date of the accident to compute the rate of remuneration, regard may be had to the average weekly amount which, during the twelve months previous to the accident, was being earned by a person in the same grade employed at the same work by the same employer, or, if there is no person so employed, by a person in the same grade employed in the same class of employment and in the same district;

(b) where the workman had entered into concurrent contracts of service with two or more employers under which he worked at one time for one such employer and at another time for another such employer, his average weekly earnings shall be computed as if his earnings under all such contracts were earnings in the employment of the employer for whom he was working at the time of the accident;

(c) employment by the same employer shall be taken to mean employment by the same employer in the grade in which the workman was employed at the time of the accident, uninterrupted by absence from work due to illness or any other unavoidable cause;

(d) where the employer has been accustomed to pay to the workman a sum to cover any special expenses entailed on him by the nature of his employment, the sum so paid shall not be reckoned as part of the earnings.

Earnings have long been held to include overtime, extras, tips (see Helps v. G.W.R., (1917) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 199), profits, board and lodging, a house rent free, and such like, and the actual value to the man is the measure of value (Dothie v. MacAndrew, (1908) 1 K. B. 803). On the other hand, incidental advantages, as tuition, are not to be reckoned. No deductions are to be made for small payments a man has to make out of his wages, e.g., as for oil for a miner's lamp, or the sharpening of picks, essentials for a well-equipped workman to do his work with (Abram Coal Co. v. Southern, (1903) A. C. 306). Probably, expenses a man has to so incur to make himself personally fit—say, a joiner, who has to provide his own tools—would still follow this decision, though under the old Act and before this par. (2) (d) was added. In M'Kee v. Stein, 47 S. L. R. 39, doubtfully it would seem the Court of Session went so far as to allow no deduction for dynamite a miner had to provide in the course of his work; but in Skipp v. Frodingham Iron and Steel Co., (1913) W. C. Rep. 230, without directly disagreeing, the Court of Appeal held that the terms of the contract—a gang to receive a lump sum, deduct cost of powder, and then divide—did not even raise the question, as the man's earnings were his share of the balance, neither more nor less. But apart from this, it is clear that there is all the difference possible between providing dynamite, which might be a very large item, and is only supplied this way to prevent wastefulness, and providing one's own personal tools and keeping them in order. Equally, where a man at his own expense gets another to help him (M'Kee v. Stein, 47 S. L. R. 39). In M. Ry. v Sharpe, 6 W. C. C. 119, the House of Lords held that allowances to a guard in respect of board and lodging when away were to be included in earnings. This is clearly changed by this sub-paragraph.

In Williams v. "Maritime" (Owners), (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 97—where the question was whether the captain of a ship was a "workman"—it appeared that he received £20 per month and a gratuity of £48 per annum if he kept the ship free of all damage and claims. If he did not keep the ship so free his remuneration was to be reduced to £16 per month and no gratuity. The ship was lost and it was held that the remuneration must be taken at £16 per month + the value of board and lodging.

Measure of Earnings.]—Where an injured workman ceases to work as a servant, and commences business on his own account, the measure of his earnings will not be governed by his profits or losses, but by what he would have to pay a man to do the work he is then doing (Duberley v. Mace, (1913) W. C. Rep. 199).

Amount of Compensation.]—Note by Workmen's Compensation (War Addition) Act, 1917, as from September 1st, 1917, until six months after the termination of the present war in cases of total incapacity the compensation payable is increased by 25 per cent. See for text of Act of 1917, p. 1459. Save as in par. (1) (a) (i.), this is based on the average weekly earnings, which we see are to be computed in such manner as is best calculated to give the rate per week at which the workman was being remunerated. In considering his remuneration no account must be taken of earnings received under a contract of service not within the Act (Soles v. Abbott, (1916) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 124). See as to the general meaning of the words, "average weekly earnings," Cue v. Port of London Authority, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 481; 83 L. J. K. B. 1445. To find the weekly rate we first divide the amount earned by the weeks in which it was earned, noting, if a man takes a week off, he will not earn anything in it, nor will such week be included in those worked. Next, the idea of the Act is to take a period long enough for incidentals and accidentals to average themselves out—fifty-two weeks being the usual time indicated when, if there are some weeks in which no work is done, then for working purposes his year will be not one of fifty-two weeks, but one of fifty-two weeks less such weeks. In Bailey v. Kenworthy, (1908) 1 K. B. 441, where these rules are given, a man earned 82*l.* 2*s.* 1*d.* in forty-nine weeks, but the full working year was only fifty weeks out of fifty-two. Thus the average rate at which he was being remunerated was $\frac{82l.\ 2s.\ 1d.}{49} \times \frac{50}{52}$.

Whilst weeks in which work could be done, but is not done, are to be disregarded, the same rule does not apply to broken weeks, e.g., in a colliery where a miner as a practice will often only work three or four days a week at most, and therefore a week is to mean an aggregate of days amounting to a week at the rate of as many days to the week as is usual to the employment (dictum of Cozens-Hardy, M.R., on Anslow's Case, and Carter v. Laing, 45 S. L. R. 938). The first part of the rule is unsatisfactory, e.g., a man earns 2*l.* a week, "plays" alternate weeks and is killed. If he has been employed three full years, his dependants will only be entitled to his aggregate earnings of 156*l.*; but if for a day less, they will be entitled to 156 times his average earnings of nearly 2*l.* a week, or the maximum of 300*l.* So as the man himself, if only incapacitated, will be entitled to half 2*l.* as compensation or exactly what satisfied him when working, viz, 1*l* a week; therefore it will not grieve him if he never does another stroke of work in his life. This part of the rule has not yet been approved, save as an obiter in the House of Lords in Anslow v. Cannock Chase Colliery Co., (1909) A. C. 435. In this case the other part of the rule, much to the workmen's loss, was approved. Here a man, owing to stoppages, etc., could only be employed thirty-six weeks in a year and was employed only thirty-three weeks, in which he earned 68*l*. Thus the amount he was held entitled to was $\frac{68l.}{33} \times \frac{36}{52}$. Being practically as he well knew a 2*l*. a week man, he was much aggrieved at being thus rated at less than 30*s*., and appealed to the Lords, but without success. In White v. Wiseman, (1912) W. C. Rep. 403, a man employed first by time and then by piece-work, had busy, ordinary, and slack days. On some he worked overtime, on the others there was not enough for a full day's work. The arbitrator found this was an abnormal incident, and so only regarded the busy and ordinary days. The Court of Appeal had little doubt the slack time was as much a normal incident as the busy times, and required all to be taken into account. So as regards illness, it must be regarded reasonably. To regard two weeks' illness where eight weeks' employment was taken as the basis of calculation, would mean a man would be expected to be ill two out of every eight weeks. But in a long period some illness is rightly to be expected and should be considered (Turner v. Port of London Authority, (1913) W. C. Rep. 123). Similarly if the workman is in the habit of only working, e.g., as fruit picker, for a few days a year that should be taken into consideration (Williams v. Hollings, (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 540). For the position where stoppage of work is due to the war, see Griffiths v. W. Gilbertson & Co., Ltd., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 359.

Where a workman, a dairyman, is assisted voluntarily by his sisters to whom he makes an allowance, that allowance must not be deducted in estimating his average weekly earnings (Roper v. Freke, (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 377).

Provided that . . . Shortness of Time, etc.]—A man's own history, however short, may furnish the best data for computing his compensation. It should be long enough for all incidents to average themselves out, or to furnish an average by inference. But where not sufficiently long, an arbitrator may arrive at his conclusion in any way he thinks best. He may be guided by what the man has previously earned where similarly employed—note be guided—or inquire into the earnings of others as specified. If again he simply has regard to such earnings, merely takes them as a guide, not as a precise measure, his conclusions cannot be interfered with.

Same Grade.]—"In my opinion, the provisions of this par. (2) are intended as a guide, not a fetter" (Farwell, L.J., in Perry v. Wright, (1908) 1 K. B. 441). What is really wanted is to find the earnings of a man similarly employed, to refer to as a guide. See Cox v. Trollope & Sons, (1916) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 270, for an example of the way this guide may be employed. Whether grade be the same or not, if one man can command four days a week and another only three, the arbitrator should certainly have regard to this fundamental difference (Barnett v. Port of London Authority, (1913) W. C. Rep. 250). Personal qualifications as well as grade should be taken into consideration (Snell v. Bristol Corporation, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 100). Special qualifications in the employment itself should be regarded, but not outside it, as where a skilled artizan takes work as a casual labourer, say, with a different employer.

Change of grade is a question of fact, and operates as a new employment. A temporary change, even with change of designation, as from hobbler to mate, is not conclusive (Jury v. Atalanta, (1912) 3 K. B. 366). For the position where the grade was changed after filing of declaration of liability, and in consequence of a cause unconnected with the accident, see Thompson v. Richard Johnson and Nephew, Ltd., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 333. Earnings in mixed grades, i.e., where men in one grade are employed off and on in another, may be well if not best calculated by adding the earnings in both together, and dividing by the relevant period. The time in either grade is obviously too short to form a conclusive basis of estimating, and therefore an arbitrator must be guided by other factors. In fact, if an arbitrator will only preface his award with the remark that he thinks the time too short to be solely guided by it, and he has to do the best he can from the other evidence before him and says no more, appeals will be even less successful than they now are (Edge v. Gorton, (1912) 3 K. B. 360).

Unavoidable Cause.—Absence from work owing to a strike is not absence due to unavoidable cause (Price v. Guest, Keen and Nettlefolds, Ltd., (1917) W. C. & I. 157).

Concurrent Contracts.]—In Brandy v. S.S. Raphael, (1911) A. C. 413, a reservist's pay in the Navy was held to be received under a concurrent contract. This case was relied upon in the case of Harrison v. New Brynmally Colliery Co. in the Wrexham County Court, where a Territorial paid while in camp was treated as having received pay under a contract concurrent with his contract of service as a collier. Where a man has actually been employed three years with the same master, the compensation will be the aggregate of such earnings without including such concurrent earnings (Buckley v. London Docks, 2 B. 327). To be concurrent, the services need not be ejusdem generis (Lloyd v. Midland Railway, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 105). For the effect or non-effect of a railway company's rules forbidding employees working at other employments, see Lloyd v. Midland Railway, supra.

(3) In fixing the amount of the weekly payment, regard shall be had to any payment, allowance, or benefit which the workman may receive from the employer during the period of his incapacity, and in the case of partial incapacity the weekly payment shall in no case exceed the difference between the amount of the average weekly earnings of the workman before the accident and the average weekly amount which he is earning or is able to earn in some suitable employment or business after the accident, but shall bear such relation to the amount of that difference as under the circumstances of the case may appear proper.

Regard shall be had to any payment, allowance, or benefit.]—See generally as to the meaning of "payment, allowance or benefit" the important case of Considine v. McInery, (1916) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 114. This case was considered at some length in Watts v. Manchester Corporation, (1917) W. C. & I. 151. Both are concerned primarily with the question whether the right to participate in benefits from a pension fund contributed to by the employers is within clause 3. As a rule all payments pending incapacity should be considered. It enables an employer to assist at once an injured man, knowing he has this qualified right to be indemnified. The parties agreed to settle for 10*l.*, which was paid. Though the court would not pass the agreement, it was held that regard would have to be had to this sum paid (Horsman v. Glasgow Navigation Co., 3 B. 27). It is immaterial that the workman's application for compensation relates only to a period subsequent to the time when the payment, allowance, or benefit was received (Porter v. Whitbread & Co., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 59). Amounts received aliunde, as in poor relief, do not fall within the provision (Gilroy v. Mackie, 46 S. L. R. 325). So under the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, whilst a seaman is not to receive overlapping benefits, yet this paragraph does not operate to deprive him of compensation on a mere technicality (McDermott v. Tintoretto, (1911) A. C. 35). Overpayments made prior to the commencement of the proceedings should not be taken into account (Doyle v. Cork Steam Packet Co., (1912) W. C. Rep. 203; Flynn v. Burgess and Others, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 238).

Earning or is able to earn.]—Circumstances at the time of review are to be considered. Under the old Act, the only questions were: What was the man earning? What is he earning? (James v. Ocean Coal Co., (1904) 2 K. B. 213); now the words, shall bear such relation to the amount of that difference as under the circumstances of the case may appear proper, have been added to this Act. These necessitate an inquiry into other facts. In Bevan v. Enerylyn Collieries, (1912) W. C. Rep. 126, a miner had been earning 2*l.* 19*s.* 1*d.*, and at the time of review was earning only 1*l.* 16*s.* The arbitrator awarded him 11*s.* 7*d.* as compensation. This made his total receipts 2*l.* 7*s.* 7*d.* for the week. But owing to the Eight Hours Act, had he been in full work, and had never been injured, he could only have earned 2*l.* Thus it was held that though an arbitrator is bound by the difference between the two limits, yet when he determines what proportion of that difference to give, viz., 10, 20, 40, 60 per cent. or even the whole, he must consider all the circumstances of the case, of which such change in a scale of wages would be one. Compare Woodilee Coal and Coke Co., Ltd. v. M'Neill, (1917) W. C. & I. 129, where a general rise in wages was taken into account.

If an injured man is employed, he will get the benefit or otherwise of a general rise or fall in wages (Merry v. Cunningham, 46 S. L. R. 812). So where a man goes into business, the measure of his earnings will be not his profits nor losses, but what he would have to pay another as a servant to do his work (Paterson v. Moore, 47 S. L. R. 30; Duberly v. Mace, (1913) W. C. Rep. 199).

Heathcote v. Haunchwood Colliery, Ltd., (1917) W. C. & I. 140, lays down the following proposition:—The weekly payment to be awarded must be arrived at by ascertaining the difference between the workman's average weekly earnings before the accident and the average weekly amount he is able to earn in a suitable employment after the accident. It matters not at all that he is in fact earning less than before if he is able to earn as much.

Able to Earn.—Generally.]—"If he would have got work but for the accident, but cannot otherwise, it is because of the accident" (Kennedy, L.J., in Dobby v. Pease, 2 B. 370). This failure may be due to (a) physical incapacity; (b) want of suitable employment; (c) disability created by the Act itself. As to (a), physical capacity is a pure question of fact; as to (b), it is not necessary the employment should be the same as before done by the man, and the one test is: is a man reasonable or not in wanting or refusing a certain class of work? He has lost an eye. It may be reasonable to refuse work to imperil his remaining eye; it may not. Cases are both ways, and it is solely for the arbitrator to decide. His discretion is practically unlimited. See e.g., Housley v. Hadfields, Ltd., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 456; Penman v. Smith's Dry Dock Co., Ltd., ibid., 452. In Radcliffe v. Pacific Navigation Co., (1910) 1 K. B. 685, a ship's butcher, two years after losing his first finger, had his full compensation restored because there was no suitable employment for such an unfortunate. In Hargreave v. Haughhead Coal Co., (1912) A. C. 319, a man had a right eye destroyed by accident, and was refused a suspensory order. Presumably the loss of his eye would never affect his obtaining suitable employment. Compare Hart v. Cory Brothers, (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 522. (c) Disability due to the Act is responsible for half the anomalies and most of the difficulties in administering this part of the Act. Men can do work, and but for the Act would get work, and employers with two men to choose from choose the one least likely to make a claim. This is a real and serious disability due to the accident. It would be met by allowing such to contract out of the Act. Ball v. Hunt, (1912) A. C. 496, is a striking case of incapacity caused by the Act. A man lost the sight of an eye, its appearance being unchanged. He got his work and did his work. An accident to this sightless eye necessitated its removal, and he could get work no more. But for the Act employers would not mind whether a man had one eye or two, so long as he did his work.

Physical Incapacity.]—What steps must a man take to get well? Every rule reduces to one. He must act reasonably, and of what is reasonable the arbitrator is sole judge. It may be reasonable for him to undergo an operation; it may not. The arbitrator must decide reasonably. See, e.g., Joseph Dolan & Sons v. Ward, (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 274. So if through idleness and loafing a man lets his muscles get soft so that he cannot work, an arbitrator may find his incapacity is no longer due to the accident (David v. Windsor Steam Coal Co., 4 B. 177). But an arbitrator may not anticipate and reduce an award from a future date. Such award will be bad (Baker v. Jewell, (1910) 2 K. B. 673—which however, does not invalidate awards made before the determination of that case (Evans v. Barrow Hæmatite Steel Co., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 355)). He can, however, effect the same thing by making an order for the time being and adjourning the hearing. This is useful in cases of neurasthenia, where a man will take no steps for his recovery. Neurasthenia may be as much the result of the accident as any other injury. Still existent, an arbitrator cannot end the award. But he can direct the man to take reasonable steps for his recovery, as indicated by evidence—he is not a doctor to say what in particular—and if on the adjournment, he has not done so, he can then end or reduce the payments. As a rule, following the advice of one's doctor is strong evidence of such reasonable conduct, but it is not conclusive (O'Neil v. John Brown & Co., (1913) W. C. Rep. 235). See sect. 1, sub-s. 1, "Consequent Results due to Unreasonable Conduct, etc." A man may be suffering from incapacity and entitled to an award though his old employers offer him his old work at his old wages (Jackson v. Hunslet Engine Co., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 389).

Suitable Employment.]—See under Schedule I. (16), "Review."

(4) Where a workman has given notice of an accident, he shall, if so required by the employer, submit himself for examination by a duly qualified medical practitioner provided and paid by the employer, and, if he refuses to submit himself to such examination, or in any way obstructs the same, his right to compensation, and to take or prosecute any proceeding under this Act in relation to compensation, shall be suspended until such examination has taken place. Medical examination.

Medical Examination.]—See sect. 10; also pars. (14), (15), and (20), and Schedule II. (5) and (15).

The one rule is a workman must be reasonable: an employer must be reasonable, and it does not follow that what is reasonable in one case will be reasonable even in a similar case. Of what is reasonable, the arbitrator is sole judge (Morgan v. Dixon, (1912) A. C. 74). He may decide it is reasonable for a workman to have his own doctor present when examined by his employer's doctor—though he cannot order the employer to pay such doctor's fees (Osborn v. Vickers Maxim, 2 W. C. C. 130); he may decide it is not. Both parties should do their utmost to facilitate a fair examination, and with as much regard for the convenience of each other as the nature of the case permits of. This par. (4) is not limited to one examination if a further one is reasonably required (Mayor v. South Kirkby, etc., Collieries, (1913) W. C. Rep. 305), even where the first examination took place after the dispute arose (Smith v. D. Davis and Sons, Ltd., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 299), and provides for effective examination before an award is made; whilst par. (14) similarly provides for examination afterwards, when compensation is being paid.

Sched. I.

The workman, besides submitting to examination, should place no difficulties in the employer's way to hinder him from seeing the medical notes relating to the treatment of the injuries. Per Swinfen Eady, L.J., in Booth & Sons v. Carter, (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 59.

A workman who enlists and is sent abroad and cannot therefore be medically examined in England cannot be deemed to have obstructed medical examination (J. & C. Harrison, Ltd. v. Dowling, (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 351).

Practice, Rules 55—58. Regulations, Appendix BB; CC.

On death—payment into court.

(5) The payment in the case of death shall, unless otherwise ordered as hereinafter provided, be paid into the county court, and any sum so paid into court shall, subject to rules of court and the provisions of this schedule, be invested, applied, or otherwise dealt with by the court in such manner as the court in its discretion thinks fit for the benefit of the persons entitled thereto under this Act, and the receipt of the registrar of the court shall be a sufficient discharge in respect of the amount paid in :

Provided that, if so agreed, the payment in case of death shall, if the workman leaves no dependants, be made to his legal personal representative, or, if he has no such representative, to the person to whom the expenses of medical attendance and burial are due.

As to payment in with denial of liability, see Johnston v. Oceanic Steam Navigation Co., (1912) W. C. Rep. 162; and Rule 60 as to payment in, generally; Rule 61, with admission of liability; and Rule 62, with denial of liability. As to dependants, see sect. 13, under definition, and as to their rights inter se, Schedule I. (8). The amount payable to each dependant must be apportioned (Daniels v. Ocean Coal Co., (1900) 2 Q. B. 250), though in the case of the death of one participant, her share does not go to her estate, but so far as unappropriated, remains as part of the original fund to be for the benefit of the remaining dependants (Ivey v. Ivey, (1912) 2 K. B. 118). See also par. (9).

The following statement, which has been approved by the Association of County Court Registrars, may be found of assistance :—

(1) Where the amount payable has been decided by arbitration—
The employer may at once pay the money into court with form 54 (Rule 60 (4)) No duty is thrown on the registrar to consider its adequacy, but form 58 (i.) is at once sent, (Rule 60 (5)).

(2) Where the amount payable has been decided by agreement—
A memorandum and annexed statement (form 37) must be filed (Rule 51 (1)). Form 41a with form 38 are then sent, and the registrar must inquire into the genuineness of the memorandum and the adequacy of the amount (Rules 51 (2) and 45). When the agreement has been approved by him, the money can be paid into court with form 54 (Rule 60 (4)). When it has been so received form 58 (i.) is sent.

(3) Where the amount payable has not been decided either by arbitration or agreement—
The employer may at once pay the amount he deems to be payable into court with form 55 (Rule 61 (1) and (2)). The registrar must then inquire into its adequacy, making such inquiries and obtaining such information as he may think necessary (Rule 61 (3)), but no special forms are provided for the purpose. If he considers i tadequate form 58 (ii.) is sent; if he considers it inadequate he reports to the Judge.

(4) Where liability is denied, but an amount has been accepted in settlement by such of the dependants as are not under disability, but no formal agreement has been signed—

The employer may pay into court the amount he is willing to pay with form 56 (Rule 62 (1) and (2)), and the subsequent proceedings are the same as in the last preceding case.

(5) Where the amount payable has been settled by agreement, the registrar's approval of an amount as adequate is final, but in the last two above-mentioned cases, after the registrar's approval has been given, it is still open to any party interested to raise the question of adequacy (Rule 61 (8) (a)).

(6) The question of adequacy and all questions as to who are dependants, and the amount payable to each, must be settled by arbitration; but if no question of adequacy arises, and all the persons interested agree to leave the application of the amount to the court, it can be dealt with in a summary way without the necessity of arbitration proceedings (Rule 61 (8) (a), (b), and Rule 60 (8) to (11), (13) and (14)).

Transfer of money in court.

(6) Rules of court may provide for the transfer of money paid into court under this Act from one court to another, whether or not the court from which it is to be transferred is in the same part of the United Kingdom as the court to which it is to be transferred.

Practice, Rule 91.

Legal disability—payment into court.

(7) Where a weekly payment is payable under this Act to a person under any legal disability, a county court may, on application being made in accordance with rules of court, order that the weekly payment be paid during the disability into court, and the provisions of this schedule with respect to sums required by this schedule to be paid into court shall apply to sums paid into court in pursuance of any such order.

(8) Any question as to who is a dependant shall, in default of agreement, be settled by arbitration under this Act, or, if not so settled before payment into court under this schedule, shall be settled by the county court, and the amount payable to each dependant shall be settled by arbitration under this Act, or, if not so settled before payment into court under this schedule, by the county court. Where there are both total and partial dependants nothing in this schedule shall be construed as preventing the compensation being allotted partly to the total and partly to the partial dependants.

As to the rights of dependants, see ante, under sect. 13. "Any reference," etc. Application by dependants (Rule 4 (1)); when conflict inter se (Rules 4 (2) and (5)); as to excluding certain dependants (Manchester v. Carlton Iron Co., 20 T. L. R. 155). See also notes to (9).

Variation of awards in case of widows and dependants.

(9) Where, on application being made in accordance with rules of court, it appears to a county court that, on account of neglect of children on the part of a widow, or on account of the variation of the circumstances of the various dependants, or for any other sufficient cause, an order of the court or an award as to the apportionment amongst the several dependants of any sum paid as compensation, or as to the manner in which any sum payable to any such dependant is to be invested, applied, or otherwise dealt with, ought to be varied, the court may make such order for the variation of the former order or the award, as in the circumstances of the case the court may think just.

Practice, Rules 64, 64A.

The sum awarded must be apportioned between the dependants. The arbitrator has no power under the Act to deprive its statutory guardian of the custody of an infant (Fleming v. Roburite Co., Ltd., (1917) W. C. & I. 82).

In Ivey v. Ivey, (1912) 2 K. B. 118, money was in court for the benefit of a widow and four dependent children. On her death, such children asked that the unspent portion of her share might be appropriated for their benefit under this paragraph. This was opposed by other children, but without success. See now Rule 64A. See also supra, par. (5).

Investment.

(10) Any sum which under this schedule is ordered to be invested may be invested in whole or in part in the Post Office Savings Bank by the registrar of the county court in his name as registrar.

Investment.

(11) Any sum to be so invested may be invested in the purchase of an annuity from the National Debt Commissioners through the Post Office Savings Bank, or be accepted by the Postmaster-General as a deposit in the name of the registrar as such, and the provisions of any statute or regulations respecting the limits of deposits in savings banks, and the declaration to be made by a depositor, shall not apply to such sums.

Money in court—payment out.

(12) No part of any money invested in the name of the registrar of any county court in the Post Office Savings Bank under this Act shall be paid out, except upon authority addressed to the Postmaster-General by the Treasury or, subject to regulations of the Treasury, by the judge or registrar of the county court.

As to duplicate accounts in savings bank.

(13) Any person deriving any benefit from any moneys invested in a post office savings bank under the provisions of this Act may, nevertheless, open an account in a post office savings bank or in any other savings bank in his own name without being liable to any penalties imposed by any statute or regulations in respect of the opening of accounts in two savings banks, or of two accounts in the same savings bank.

Medical examination.

(14) Any workman receiving weekly payments under this Act shall, if so required by the employer, from time to time submit himself for examination by a duly qualified medical practitioner provided and paid by the employer. If the workman refuses to submit himself to such examination, or in any way obstructs the same, his right to such weekly payments shall be suspended until such examination has taken place.

See under Schedule I. (4).

Reference by mutual agreement.

(15) A workman shall not be required to submit himself for examination by a medical practitioner under paragraph (4) or paragraph (14) of this schedule otherwise than in accordance with regulations made by the Secretary of State, or at more frequent intervals than may be prescribed by those regulations.

Where a workman has so submitted himself for examination by a medical practitioner, or has been examined by a medical practitioner selected by himself, and the employer or the workman, as the case may be, has within six days after such examination furnished the other with a copy of the report of that practitioner as to the workman's condition, then, in the event of no agreement being come to between the employer and the workman as to the workman's condition or fitness for employment, the registrar of a county court, on application being made to the court by both parties, may, on payment by the applicants of such fee not exceeding one pound as may be prescribed, refer the matter to a medical referee.

The medical referee to whom the matter is so referred shall, in accordance with regulations made by the Secretary of State, give a certificate as to the condition of the workman and his fitness for employment, specifying, where necessary, the kind of employment for which he is fit, and that certificate shall be conclusive evidence as to the matters so certified.

Where no agreement can be come to between the employer and the workman as to whether or to what extent the incapacity of the workman is due to the accident, the provisions of this paragraph shall, subject to any regulations made by the Secretary of State, apply as if the question were a question as to the condition of the workman.

If a workman, on being required so to do, refuses to submit himself for examination by a medical referee to whom the matter has been so referred as aforesaid, or in any way obstructs the same, his right to compensation and to take or prosecute any proceeding under this Act in relation to compensation, or, in the case of a workman in receipt of a weekly payment, his right to that weekly payment, shall be suspended until such examination has taken place.

Rules of court may be made for prescribing the manner in which documents are to be furnished or served and applications made under this paragraph and the forms to be used for those purposes and, subject to the consent of the Treasury, as to the fee to be paid under this paragraph.

A Reference by Mutual Agreement under this paragraph (otherwise Schedule II. par. (15)), is final as to physical condition. But the extent of earning capacity may still remain for decision (Cruden v. Wemyss Coal Co., (1913) W. C. Rep. 188). If the certificate is ambiguous, an arbitrator may rightly ask for an explanation (Kennedy v. Dixon, (1913) W. C. Rep. 333). See under sect. 10; also pars. (4), (14) and (20), and Schedule II. (5) and (15).

Review.

(16) Any weekly payment may be reviewed at the request either of the employer or of the workman, and on such review may be ended, diminished, or increased, subject to the maximum above provided, and the amount of payment shall, in default of agreement, be settled by arbitration under this Act:

Provided that where the workman was at the date of the accident under twenty-one years of age and the review takes place more than twelve months after the accident, the amount of the weekly payment may be increased to any amount not exceeding fifty per cent. of the weekly sum which the workman would probably have been earning at the date of the review if he had remained uninjured, but not in any case exceeding one pound.

Practice.]—Suspension of compensation pending review (Rule 59 (new)); execution (Rules 82—84).

A Review is not a re-hearing, nor available as a new trial, though in The Tyne-Tees S. Co. v. Whitlock, (1913) W. C. Rep. 579, it was held that an outstanding question was not a condition precedent to giving jurisdiction on review, though absolutely necessary on an original application (see sect. 3). Save as to this, so completely is a review regarded as fresh proceedings, that in Rex v. Templer; Howarth, Ex parte, (1912) 2 K. B. 444, it was held that a workman who had consented to an original application being determined by a committee could yet seek review by the county court judge. Had the matter been regarded as a continuing one, jurisdiction once established could not have been ousted. At the same time, at such hearing it will be res judicata that the original applicant is a "workman" and the respondent an "employer," that the workman has been injured by accident arising out of and in the course of the employment, that his original wages were so much, and his average weekly earnings were so much. See, e.g., Linthorpe v. Dinsdale Smelting Co., Ltd., (1917) W. C. & I. 212. But the Act contemplates incapacity varying from time to time, therefore no finding as to incapacity at one date, whether as to physical condition or ability to earn, is res judicata as to a subsequent date; nor generally are inferences of fact, especially when actual developments may prove such inferences to be or not to be correct. The existence of a prior application to redeem (see Sched. I. (17)) does not deprive the arbitrator of jurisdiction to review on a workman's application (Moreland & Sons v. Eley, (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 554).

Review may operate from the date of application (Morton v. Woodward, (1902) 2 K. B. 276), or from a date prior to the application where incapacity alters prior to that date (George Gibson & Co. v. Wishart, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 202, overruling Donaldson Bros. v. Cowan, (1909) S. C. 1292, and considering Morton v. Woodward, supra ; Upper Forest and Western Steel and Tinplate Co., Ltd. v. Thomas, (1909) 78 L. J. K. B. 1113 ; Charing Cross, etc. v. Boots, (1909) 78 L. J. K. B. 1115 ; Hosegood and Sons v. Wilson, (1911) 80 L. J. K. B. 519). See also Bagley v. Furness, Withy & Co., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 518 ; 83 L. J. K. B. 1546, where it was held that the arbitrator had jurisdiction to terminate the award as from the antecedent date, the issue of incapacity as from that date having been raised. In Williams v. Bwllfa and Merthyr Dare Steam Colliery, Ltd., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 527, where a minor applied to review, it was held that the arbitrator could not award an increase of compensation as from a date prior to the date of the application to review. An award cannot be terminated as from a future date (Baker v. Jewell, (1910) 2 K. B. 673).

If a memorandum of a disputed agreement be recorded, the order should be appealed against and not review asked. On the other hand, if an order be made, the parties may not subsequently commence fresh proceedings, they should apply for a review (Watts v. Logan and Hemingway, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 47). The proper way to end one order is to apply for another (see further Schedule II. (9) ; cf. Schedule I. (3)).

Review acts on facts as then existent, but in case of ending compensation provision should be made for the future if a recrudescence of incapacity due to the accident may reasonably be anticipated. It can be done either by suspensory order, reducing the amount to 1*d.* a week, or by ending the order with leave to apply. If not done, the award cannot be re-opened. In Wheeler v. Dawson, (1913) W. C. Rep. 59, after compensation had been ended, the arbitrator thought the man a malingerer ; X rays showed he still suffered from a piece of broken bone in his arm, but yet the award as made was final. A suspensory award ought not to be made where the man has completely recovered and there is no reasonable probability of a recurrence of incapacity (Leverington v. A. Dodman & Co., Ltd., (1916) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 109), but, in the words of Lord Moulton (then Fletcher Moulton L.J.), "no judge is entitled to treat the fact that a man can at the moment earn just as much as he could before his accident as being a justification for terminating the compensation ("The Tynron" (Owners) v. Morgan, (1909) 2 K. B. 66). The test is—Is incapacity reasonably likely to supervene ?" (Chapman v. Sage & Co., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 472).

Receipt of full wages is not conclusive of restored capacity, but is only an element to be considered ; combined with restored physical capacity it may be a good cause for finally ending payments. So if there be permanent outstanding physical injury, yet if on the evidence such does not interfere with present earnings, nor is likely to affect future ones, an arbitrator may equally refuse a suspensory order. Although the workman is earning his old wages the arbitrator has no jurisdiction to terminate a declaration of liability where, in the employers' answer to the workman's application for review, the employers simply denied incapacity (Henshaw v. Fielding and Son, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 326).

A Condition Precedent to Review is that some change shall have taken place since the previous hearing. If a man be comparatively slightly injured but, by agreement, is paid full compensation, and then the injury develops so that he becomes really totally disabled, that is not a change of circumstances which could justify a review (Scott v. Long Meg Plaster Co., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 258). The onus of proving such change is on the party seeking a review, and once proved the question of "onus" is no longer involved. Each side must give evidence, and on such evidence, together with a note of matter already res judicata, an arbitrator must decide de novo. If a party does not prove any change he should practically be non-suited; if he does prove a change the matter is at large, and an arbitrator must decide on the evidence before him. Nor can he appeal to "onus" to eke out scanty evidence. The question of "onus" no longer exists when once the party claiming review has established a right to be heard. "The question of onus of proof is only a rule for deciding on whom the obligation of going further, if he wishes to win, rests. It is not a rule to enable the jury to decide on the value of conflicting evidence. So soon as a conflict of evidence arises, it ceases to be a question of onus of proof" (Bowen, L.J., in Abrath v. N. E. Rail. Co., 1 Q. B. D. p. 456).

One of the most perplexing of questions an arbitrator has to decide is under Schedule I. (3), whether there is any suitable employment the man can do and what it will bring him in. If suitable employment be offered and refused full compensation cannot be awarded. Consider Jenkinson v. F. Steiner & Co., (1917) W. C. & I. 104. He may supplement this evidence by his own local knowledge (Silcock & Sons v. Golightly, (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 164). As regards the man, what will impress him most will be the endeavour he has made to get work. Persistent attempts coupled with failure would usually satisfy him no suitable employment was available. This is practically the result of Proctor v. Robinson, (1911) 1 K. B. 1004; a rider to this is the decision in Cardiff Corporation v. Hall, ib. 1009, that a man's accident may be such that whilst it incapacitates him from doing his old work of a special kind, say that of a skilled fitter, it still leaves open to him the whole market of work of an inferior grade which he can be reasonably asked to do. In this case a master does not guarantee the labour market, and attempts and failure to get work by no means conclude the matter. And as to the master, though it is open to him to prove a man will not seek suitable employment, or that there is a market for such class of worker, yet in practice the only effective evidence to rebut a workman's evidence he cannot get suitable work is proof that he himself has offered it. If he can prove the case in any other way, it is perfectly open to him to do so, he is not bound to offer work, but the difficulty is to prove it without doing so. If an arbitrator finds on the evidence there is no suitable employment available, he can continue the compensation as for total incapacity, and that, notwithstanding the employer has proved improvement in the physical condition—to have got a hearing at all implies that an employer must have proved so much—for though primâ facie this establishes a presumptive right for the compensation to be reduced (Moore v. Pryde, (1913) W. C. Rep. p. 105), it is not conclusive. Whilst Roberts & Ruthven, Ltd. v. Hall, (1912) W. C. Rep. 269, carries these principles no further, still it is a most valuable case for the clear judgment in it on the point by Cozens-Hardy, M.R. (see ante, Schedule I. (3), "Able to earn"). Service in the army is not "suitable employment" (Thomson v. John Watson, Ltd., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 498).

Reduction of Payments to Nominal Sum.]—Usually resorted to where workman earning full wages at his old work, but handicapped if competing in the open labour markets, or where fresh symptoms may subsequently develop. It is now settled that the arbitrator has power to make it (Taylor v. L. & N. W. Rail., (1912) W. C. Rep. 95). A suspensory award may be made on an original application for arbitration (Grigor v. S.S Harelda, (1910) 26 T. L. R. 272; Green v. Cammell Laird, (1913) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 707). If not asked for at the hearing before the arbitrator it will not be granted on appeal (Harlock v. S.S. "Coquet" (Owners), (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 73).

whether incapacity has ended or is continuing, or, in other words, whether payment should be terminated or not (Cranfield v. Ansell, (1910) 4 B. 57; Edmondsons, Ltd. v. Parker, (1911) 5 B. 70; Wheeler, Ridley & Co. v. Dawson, (1912) W. C. Rep. 410; Simpson v. Byrne, (1913) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 240; Maunder v. Hancock, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 327). The mere fact that the workman is permanently maimed does not prevent the payments being terminated if his wage-earning capacity be not reduced (Watson v. William Beardmore & Co., Ltd., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 240). If the payments be once terminated, that is final (Nicholson v. Piper (No. 1), (1907) A. C. 215; Codenhead v. Ailsa Shipbuilding Co., (1910) S. C. 1129). Consequently payments should not be terminated if there be evidence that future incapacity may supervene (Braithwaite and Kirk v. Cox, (1911) 5 B. 877).

Review of Unrecorded Agreement.]—An application to review may be made where there is only a verbal agreement (Southbook Fireclay Co. v. Laughland, (1908) S. C. 831).

Review in the Case of Infants.]—This proviso does not mean that whilst infancy continues the amount may be reviewed and increased to the full amount that might possibly have been earned by the infant. In Ambridge v. Good, a minor earning 6*s.* when injured received the full amount as compensation. Later on, still a minor, she proved that if in work she would be receiving 10*s.* a week and asked for an increase to that amount. But such increase is obviously limited to one half of the wages that such workman might then be earning.

The fact that the workman (minor) had attained full earning capacity at the date of the accident does not per se deprive him of the benefit of the proviso (Quinn v. John Watson, Ltd., (1917) W. C. & I. 57).

In Malcolm v. Spowart & Co., (1913) W. C. Rep. 523 (Sc.), a minor was injured, and twelve months after his estimated wages were agreed at 25*s.*, giving 12*s.* 6*d.* as compensation. He claimed to take this 25*s.* as a datum line, and there being a general rise in wages, he asked for his compensation to be proportionately increased. The arbitrator rightly said, his duty was to inquire into all the facts to determine what he would then probably be earning, which he did, and found 25*s.* was enough. Reference may also be made to Thompson v. Newton & Co., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 413; Marshall, Sons & Co., Ltd. v. Prince, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 559.

Redemption of weekly payment.

(17) Where any weekly payment has been continued for not less than six months, the liability therefor may, on application by or on behalf of the employer, be redeemed by the payment of a lump sum of such an amount as, where the incapacity is permanent, would, if invested in the purchase of an immediate life annuity from the National Debt Commissioners through the Post Office Savings Bank, purchase an annuity for the workman equal to seventy-five per cent. of the annual value of the weekly payment, and as in any other case may be settled by arbitration under this Act, and such lump sum may be ordered by the committee or arbitrator or judge of the county court to be invested or otherwise applied for the benefit of the person entitled thereto: Provided that nothing in this paragraph shall be construed as preventing agreements being made for the redemption of a weekly payment by a lump sum.

Sched. I.

If applications to redeem and review are in the list for the same day relating to the same workman, the arbitrator should hear both together, and should deal first with the question whether the compensation should be increased and then with the application to redeem (Moreland & Sons v. Eley, (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 554).

Assurance Companies Act, 1909.]—Schedule 8, D. (2), of the Assurance Companies Act, 1909, provides that "Where the person insured [against workmen's compensation risks] by any policy issued by an underwriter is liable to make a weekly payment to any workman during the incapacity of the workman, and this weekly payment has continued for more than six months, the liability therefor shall before the expiration of twelve months from the commencement of the incapacity be redeemed by the payment of a lump sum in accordance with paragraph (17) of the First Schedule of the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1906, and the underwriter shall pay the lump sum into the county court, and shall inform the court that the redemption has been effected in pursuance of the provisions of this schedule." Sect. 33 (1) (f) of the same Act provides that where money is so paid into a county court "the court shall (unless the court for special reasons sees fit to direct otherwise) order the lump sum to be invested or applied in the purchase of an annuity or otherwise, in such manner that the duration of the benefit thereof may, as far as possible, correspond with the probable duration of the incapacity." It should be noted that the Act does not apply to certain cases of mutual insurance societies or to marine offices issuing marine policies which inter alia cover workmen's compensation risks. See Assurance Companies Act, 1909, section 33 (1), (a), (b).

If an employer applies to redeem under this paragraph his right is absolute (Kendall and Gent v. Pennington, (1912) W. C. Rep. 144), and at the hearing the arbitrator must fix the amount to be paid; if the incapacity, partial or total, is permanent, he must fix it at the sum settled by the Act as stated; if the incapacity is not permanent, at such an amount as he may assess on the evidence. The arbitrator must satisfy himself as to whether the physical condition of the injured workman is stable. If the incapacity is permanent an infant is in no better position than an adult. If the incapacity is not permanent the amount is in the discretion of the arbitrator (Marshall, Sons & Co. Ltd. v. Prince, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 559).

The arbitrator's award must be definite and one that can be enforced by either party. In Booth v. Calico Printers Association, (1913) W. C. Rep. 540, where employers filed an application for review and redemption, the arbitrator found the incapacity permanent, and assessed a weekly sum of which the annuity value was 613*l*. At the same time he said he considered 300*l*. would be an ample amount under the circumstances. Before making his award he said he was bound to give the larger amount having no discretion in cases of permanent incapacity, and asked the employers if they wished to withdraw their application (Dixon v. Patten, 120 L. T. 170, where Irish Court of Appeal held they were so entitled). This not being done, he made his award practically in the terms of the paragraph:—the employers may redeem on payment of 613*l*.—leaving it optional with them to so redeem or continue the weekly payment.

The Court of Appeal held this was not correct; that they were bound by The Castle Spinning Co. v. Atkinson, (1905) 1 K. B. 336; that awards had to be definite and that speculative applications were not within the purview of this section.

There was a cross appeal that the incapacity (partial) was not permanent. The man had lost his left hand, but the stump was well healed. As regards the permanence of the physical incapacity there was no doubt, but the employers argued it could not be said a stage of finality had been reached in the case of his earning powers. The arbitrator found that as far as he could determine, there was evidence that the weekly payment he was likely to earn had arrived at a point of stability. There is no doubt he had most carefully considered all the facts and was fully alive to all the legal niceties involved, and the Court of Appeal held there was evidence to support his finding. Seeing, then, the danger of a general application to redeem, can an employer make one conditional on the arbitrator finding the incapacity not permanent? It would seem not. The Castle Spinning Co. Case is clear; speculative applications are not permissible. Here the employer applied to redeem if the amount assessed did not exceed 150*l*. Does this differ in principle from applying to redeem if the incapacity is not permanent? Apparently the only course open is to apply to redeem, and on the arbitrator expressing his opinion the incapacity is permanent, to withdraw the application before the award is made.

In the case of assessing an amount where the incapacity is not permanent, an arbitrator's discretion is almost unlimited, provided he only has regard to facts actually existing at the time of the application to redeem. He cannot say, "I would at the date of the accident have given so much," and then deduct intermediate payments (Victor Mill, Ltd. v. Shackleton, (1912) W. C. Rep. 33), but short of this it is for him and him only to arrive at the amount. To assess an amount on the basis of incapacity being permanent without first deciding whether it is so or not is a misdirection (Swannick v. Congested Board of Ireland, (1913) W. C. Rep. 96). An order for redemption by consent cannot be appealed against (Howell v. Blackwell's Executors, 5 B. 293).

Provided.]—Binding agreements can be made under this proviso. If a weekly sum be agreed and compounded and registered under Schedule II. (9), it cannot afterwards be impeached (M'Guire v. Paterson, (1913) W. C. Rep. 107; see also sect. 3).

Workman leaving United Kingdom.

(18) If a workman receiving a weekly payment ceases to reside in the United Kingdom, he shall thereupon cease to be entitled to receive any weekly payment, unless the medical referee certifies that the incapacity resulting from the injury is likely to be of a permanent nature. If the medical referee so certifies, the workman shall be entitled to receive quarterly the amount of the weekly payments accruing due during the preceding quarter so long as he proves, in such manner and at such intervals as may be prescribed by rules of court, his identity and the continuance of the incapacity in respect of which the weekly payment is payable.

Practice, Rules 66, 67.

Compensation not to be charged.

(19) A weekly payment, or a sum paid by way of redemption thereof, shall not be capable of being assigned, charged, or attached, and shall not pass to any other person by operation of law, nor shall any claim be set off against the same.

This clause does not bar a claim by a legal personal representative to enforce a deceased workman's right against his employer (Price v. Westminster Brymbo Coal and Coke Co., Ltd., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 245).

This clause also applies to the 25 per cent. increase established by the Workmen's Compensation (War Addition) Act, 1917. See ibid., s. 1 (2) (c), infra, p. 1460.

Overpayment of Compensation.]—In Hosegood v. Wilson, (1911) 1 K. B. 30, a workman had been overpaid compensation. Although his employer could recover this amount by action, or, at least, get judgment for it—not quite the same thing—yet he could not treat such overpayments as payments on account of future weekly payments, and to stop payment of compensation until the balance was wiped off was decided to be wrong. As to effect of National Insurance Act, 1911, see sect. 11.

Suspension of compensation.

(20) Where under this schedule a right to compensation is suspended no compensation shall be payable in respect of the period of suspension.

See supra, sect. 10; Schedule I. (4), (14), (15).

59 & 60 Vict. c. 25.

(21) Where a scheme certified under this Act provides for payment of compensation by a friendly society, the provisions of the proviso to the first sub-section of section eight, section sixteen, and section forty-one of the Friendly Societies Act, 1896, shall not apply to such society in respect of such scheme.

Application to Ireland.

40 & 41 Vict. c. 56.

(22) In the application of this Act to Ireland the provisions of the County Officers and Courts (Ireland) Act, 1877, with respect to money deposited in the Post Office Savings Bank under that Act shall apply to money invested in the Post Office Savings Bank under this Act.

SECOND SCHEDULE.

Arbitration, etc.

Procedure Special to the Act.]—Sect. 1, sub-sect. 3 directs that the procedure under the Act is to be by arbitration, in accordance with Schedule II. and the rules made by its authority (see par. (12)).

Subject to modifications thus made, the ordinary practice of the county courts is to be in force (Rules 29 and 95).

Arbitration by committee, etc.

(1) For the purpose of settling any matter which under this Act is to be settled by arbitration, if any committee, representative of an employer and his workmen, exists with power to settle matters under this Act in the case of the employer and workmen, the matter shall, unless either party objects by notice in writing sent to the other party before the committee meet to consider the matter, be settled by the arbitration of such committee, or be referred by them in their discretion to arbitration as herein-after provided.

(2) If either party so objects, or there is no such committee, or the committee so refers the matter or fails to settle the matter within six months from the date of the claim, the matter shall be settled by a single arbitrator agreed on by the parties, or in the absence of agreement by the judge of the county court, according to the procedure prescribed by rules of court.

(3) In England the matter, instead of being settled by the judge of the county court, may, if the Lord Chancellor so authorises, be settled according to the like procedure, by a single arbitrator appointed by that judge, and the arbitrator so appointed shall, for the purpose of this Act, have all the powers of that judge. Sched. II.

Primarily other procedure than that before the county court judge is contemplated. In fact, the original promise of the Act was that it should be so simple that there would be no intervention of the lawyer at all.

Arbitration by Committee.]—In Mulholland v. Whitehaven Colliery Co., 3 B. 319, a boy lost part of two of his fingers. His case was decided by a committee, who awarded him a lump sum of 100*l.*, and who then sent a memorandum of the agreement to the county court for registration (under Schedule II. par. (9); see also Rules 41—48). This was refused on the ground the sum was inadequate, but it was held the jurisdiction was entirely independent. In the same case it was held that a committee no more than an arbitrator could give a lump sum in the first instance. The only compensation contemplated is a weekly payment.

Though original applications be to a committee, subsequent proceedings for review may be to the county court (Rex v. Templer; Howarth, Ex parte, (1912) 2 K. B. 444; see also under "Review." Schedule I. (6)). Schedule II. (9), Rules 43—49, provide for registration in the county court.

As to the further powers which may be conferred on such committee, see infra, par. (16).

Nothing in the Act prescribes the procedure on arbitration by committee or arbitrator appointed by the parties; but pars. (4) (the first part), (6), (7), (9), (14), and (15) of Schedule II. appear to apply generally.

As to a judge appointed arbitrator, see Rules 31—34 and 42.

Arbitration by the judge of the county court or by such arbitrator is to be according to the procedure prescribed by rules of court, and his power to procure the attendance of witnesses and the production of documents is given by the latter clause of par. (4).

Rule 29, supplemented by Rule 96, requires the proceedings as far as possible to be those of an ordinary county court action.

Parties to arbitration, Rules 2—7; Rule 7 (2) provides for infants appearing as if of full age. Appearance of parties (Rule 35); application and particulars (Rules 8—12); security for costs (Rule 13); service (Rule 16); date, place and notice of arbitration (Rules 14—15); stay of proceedings (Rule 17); respondents, answer by (Rule 18); submission to award (Rule 19); claim for indemnity (Rules 20—28); judge's award (Rule 30); service documents (Rule 92); substituted service, etc. (Rule 93).

As regards matters preliminary to trial, no order for discovery either by affidavit of document or discovery can be made (Sutton v. G. N. Rail. Co., (1909) 2 K. B. 791).

The county court judge has no power to order the evidence of the applicant to be taken on commission before an examiner, or to delegate the taking of evidence to any person other than the arbitrator (Taylor v. Cripps, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 515; 83 L. J. K. B. 1538).

At the trial the arbitrator is limited to the question raised in the application (Proprietors of Hays Wharf v. Brown, 3 B. 84), but short of allowing an entirely new question to be raised the discretion as to amending is almost unlimited. If he does admit new matter, he should be careful the other side have a reasonable opportunity of dealing with it and are not entirely taken by surprise.

If the application shows no case on the evidence for a reason not taken in the answer the court may dismiss the application without granting an adjournment to enable the respondent to raise the point formally in his answer (see Miles v. Dawe, (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 29).

Sched. II.

Further, where an arbitrator could reasonably have amended, and deals with the question as if he had amended, then his not having actually amended is hardly a ground for appeal.

If an employer does not appear, he still must hear the case in extenso (United Collieries v. Gavin, 37 S. L. R. 47); and if a preliminary objection is taken and sustained, e.g., want of notice, still he must hear the whole case.

Arbitrators should not determine cases on preliminary objections, e.g., want of notice, but should hear the whole case (Ellis v. Fairfield S. Co., (1913) W. C. Rep. 88).

"He arrived at these findings from what had been proved before him in other cases." If merely a reference to his general knowledge, correct. If a reliance on details heard in any particular case, a misdirection (Gray, Dawes & Co. v. Reed, (1913) W. C. Rep. 128).

Rule 36 requires him to take a note whether asked or not. This is a rule of doubtful utility and results in many questionable appeals which could never take place if the point in dispute, whether of law or fact, had been definitely formulated in the first instance.

Where matters are in his discretion he must exercise such discretion in every case and not adopt a general rule (Webster v. Sharp, (1904) 1 K. B. 218).

Jurisdiction cannot be enlarged by estoppel. Employers in Standing v. Eastwood, (1912) W. C. Rep. 200, had paid a man compensation, but on his demanding a higher rate they disputed his having been "in their employ" at all. The arbitrator found them estopped from taking the point, and to the argument there had been an admission of liability Buckley, L.J., replied: "Even so you would have to sue under the agreement and not under the Act."

The result of the proceedings being by way of arbitration is that on the award being signed, the arbitrator becomes functus officio. Thus no order for a new trial can be made by him (Mountain v. Parr, (1899) 1 Q. B. 805), and the evidence as taken is closed. Of course, in the case of misdirection, the Court of Appeal may direct a re-hearing, and so the misdirection may extend to the improper rejection or reception of evidence, but the parties cannot add new evidence after award (Miller v. North British Locomotive Co., 46 S. L. R. 755).

In Wheeler v. Dawson, 5 B. 645, an arbitrator evidently thinking the man a malingerer ended compensation. On appeal his counsel tried hard to get in the fact that since the trial a subsequent examination by X rays discovered a broken bone which more than bore out that his evidence was right and that of the experts was wrong. But the court could not hear anything that had arisen subsequent to the trial. Of course, if an arbitrator goes wrong before or during the hearing it is otherwise. In Jessop v. Maclay, 5 B. 139, owners owing to the sailing of their ship were unable to take their evidence, and as the arbitrator after several adjournments refused another, a new trial was ordered. So in S. E. & C. Rail. Co. v. Ewell, 5 B. 39, the company, thinking one of their witnesses was going to "sell" them, told him to go without knowing the other side had subpœnaed him. This he did, he could not be called, and a new trial was agreed upon.

An arbitrator, even after commencing to deliver his judgment, may hear further evidence (Peters v. Owners of S.S. Argol, 5 B. 414); and prior to signing, an arbitrator may alter his award, even though contrary to what he has verbally stated in court, but not afterwards (Moulem v. Dunne, (1912) 2 K. B. 136). It will be seen that par. (9) (c), infra, and Rule 30 provide for rectifying the register and for correcting clerical errors or slips, but this does not empower substantial alterations on merits. If the register does not accord with either an agreement or award in fact made, it may be altered to bring it into line but not to vary the agreement or award itself (Schofield v. Clough, (1912) W. C. Rep. 301).

Sched. II.

52 & 53 Vict. c. 49.

(4) The Arbitration Act, 1889, shall not apply to any arbitration under this Act; but a committee or an arbitrator may, if they or he think fit, submit any question of law for the decision of the judge of the county court, and the decision of the judge on any question of law, either on such submission, or in any case where he himself settles the matter under this Act, or where he gives any decision or makes any order under this Act, shall be final, unless within the time and in accordance with the conditions prescribed by rules of the Supreme Court either party appeals to the Court of Appeal; and the judge of the county court, or the arbitrator appointed by him, shall, for the purpose of proceedings under this Act, have the same powers of procuring the attendance of witnesses and the production of documents as if the proceedings were an action in the county court.

Submit any Question of Law.]—Appeals from an arbitrator appointed by the parties or by the judge, will be by way of case stated to the judge (see Rule 34; Pumpherston Oil Co., Ltd. v. Cavaney, 40 S. L. R. 466). There is a duty on the arbitrator to so state a case for the judge. The permission may state a case is more or less imperative, as enabling words are always compulsory when they are words to effectuate a legal right (Julius v. Bishop of Oxford, 5 A. C. 214). But he must be asked before making his award; afterwards, as in Gibson v. Wormald, (1904) 2 K. B. 40, he becomes functus officio and has no power, nor can he order a new trial.

Questions of Law.]—This paragraph provides for appeal on questions o law only (Moffat v. Armstrong, 41 Ir. L. T. R. 219). On questions of fact the finding of an arbitrator, as of a jury, is final; i.e., if there is evidence—legal evidence—in support of such facts (Johnson v. Marshall, (1906) A. C. 409; Fenn v. Miller, (1900) 1 Q. B., Collins, L.J., p. 792), and what is legal evidence is a matter of law. Further, though the finding of facts may be final, the conclusion in law to be deduced or the fact to be inferred from them is not (Gane v. Norton Hill Colliery Co., (1909) 2 K. B. 539).

A Court of Appeal cannot interfere because the finding is against the weight of evidence and because they themselves might have found differently, but only if no evidence. But further it is not sufficient that there should have been some evidence on which an arbitrator could have found a fact, unless it is also shown that he did in fact apply his mind to such evidence and did so find (Lee v. "Bessie," (1912) 1 K. B. 83; Flynn v. Burgess and Others, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 238). Acting on inadmissible evidence is the same as acting on no evidence, and the admission of wrongful evidence, e.g., using the certificate of a doctor, instead of calling him, resulting in the case being sent back to be re-heard, as it was clear such evidence must have had weight with him (Richards v. Sanders, 5 B. 352).

Although there had been an irregularity at the hearing before the arbitrator, the court refused to order a new trial in Trigg v. Vauxhall Motors, Ltd., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 25, there having been no miscarriage of justice.

Only points taken before the arbitrator can be taken on appeal (Payne v. Clifton, 3 B. 439; Stevens v. Thorn & Co., (1916) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 143).

Practice, Rules 86, 87.

Some Miscellaneous Points of Evidence.]—In the case of death, the statement of the deceased as to how the injury was received is inadmissible (Shea v. Wilson & Co., Barnsley, Ltd., (1916) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 197). Evidence of the habits of the deceased throwing light on the cause of death is admissible (Joy v. Phillips, Mills & Co., (1916) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 69). A doctor may give evidence a man was ill and from what he was suffering, e.g., blood poisoning caused by the sting of a wasp (Amys v. Barton, 5 B. 117), but he cannot state why he was ill. On the former evidence he can be cross-examined, on the latter he cannot; he may simply be handing on the tale of the man, which possibly may have been directly concocted to mislead (Wolsey v. Pethick, 1 B. 411; Gilbey v. G. W. Rail. Co., 102 L. T. 202). In Tucker v. Oldbury Urban Council, (1912) 2 K. B. 317, the dependants tried to get out of this rule in Gilbey's Case, by showing the statement was against interest; whilst again in Smith v. Hardman, (1913) W. C. Rep. 459, such evidence was objected to and the objection was upheld, but the arbitrator took it in case he might be wrong. The Court of Appeal said he ought not even to have heard it, it had coloured the whole proceedings, and sent the case back to be re-heard by another judge. It has been decided in Ireland that fresh evidence may be admitted in such a re-hearing (Shea's Case, supra).

In the case of posthumous illegitimate children a promise to marry by deceased is not admissible as against interest (Ward v. Pett, (1913) W. C. Rep. 355).

The presumption is against crime and therefore against suicide (Farwell, L.J., in Furnival v. Johnson, 5 B. 43).

Consent orders are not the subject of appeal (Howell v. Blackwell's Executors, (1912) W. C. Rep. 186).

Court of Appeal.]—Ordinarily appeals from the county court, by sect. 120 of the County Court Act, are to a divisional court, but now, if once the Act applies all appeals arising in connection with it are to be direct to the Court of Appeal. But there may be a difference of opinion whether the Act itself does or does not apply. To settle this, appeal seems to be to a divisional court. In Homer v. Gough, (1912) 2 K. B. 303, an arbitrator entertained a matter he should not have done, and in Howarth v. Samuelson, 4 B. 287, he declined to entertain a matter which it was alleged he should have done. In Moss v. G. E. Rail. Co., (1909) 2 K. B. 274, where the question was had a workman contracted out of the Act under sect. 3, a decision he had or had not would be a decision upon the Act, and an appeal, therefore, would lie to the Court of Appeal. In Taylor v. Cripps, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 515; 83 L. J. K. B. 1538, it was decided that an appeal from an order of a county court judge that evidence should be taken on commission lies to the Court of Appeal and not to a Divisional Court. In Panagotis v. Pontiac, (1902) 1 K. B. 74, on the mere allegation of a right to compensation any judge of a court of record in England or Ireland could make an order under sect. 11 detaining a ship; a county court judge making such an order, makes it in the character of any judge and not in that of his special position under the Act, and therefore it was held an appeal from his decision must be to a divisional court. Farwell, L.J., dissented, as it is clear that apart from the Act a right, still less a mere alleged right, to compensation would not justify detention, and the decision in whatever character the judge made it was a decision under the Act. This case was distinguished in Bonney v. Hoyle, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 565; (1914) 2 K. B. 257.

Where the point in dispute arises under a certified scheme (sect. 3 of the Act) the appeal would lie, of course, to a Divisional Court as in Leaf v. Furze, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 601.

For procedure, see Rules 86 and 87. Appeals must be made within twenty-one days as therein stated, but cause shown, the Court of Appeal may extend the time for appealing (see Codling v. Mowlem & Co. (No. 2), (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 25; Wheeler v. Dawson, 5 B. 645; Fox v. Battersea Borough Council, 4 B. 261; Heneberry v. Doyle, (1912) W. C. Rep. 145, where extension granted).

Security for Costs.]—As to giving security for the costs of appeal, the practice is governed by Order LVIII. r. 15, of the High Court Rules, and is the same as in other cases, viz. :—"Whenever the respondent could show that the appellant was a person from whom the respondent would be unable to get the costs of the appeal if unsuccessful the court will order security for the costs of the appeal" (Hall v. Snowden, (1899) 1 Q. B. 593). The amount fixed is usually 15*l.* (ib.); and the appellant should be asked for security for this amount before applying to the court (Stanlow v. N. E. Steel Co., 23 T. L. R. 1). The Irish courts have a different practice, and poverty alone is not a sufficient reason for making such order (Stormont v. Workman, 33 Ir. L. T. 165; Hutchinson v. New Northern Spinning and Weaving Co., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 155).

The fact that the case is being run by a trade union will not affect the rule even if they have paid the costs below (Haddock v. Humphrey, 1 W. C. C. 117), but just a possible exception may be made if the poverty of the applicant has been caused by the accident, the subject of the appeal (Skeggs v. Keen, 1 W. C. C. 119); or if the county court judge himself, by staying execution, suggests the desirability of appealing (Hubball v. Everitt, 16 T. L. R. 168), but this is not to be taken as a general rule of practice (Shea v. Drolenvaux, 88 L. T. 679).

Where security is ordered and a party obtains leave to sue in formâ pauperis he must be careful to serve his order to this effect within the time limited for giving security or an appeal will be struck out and if struck out is not likely to be restored (Perry v. Lacy, 5 B. 1). Money in court may be paid out notwithstanding order to sue in formâ pauperis (Bines v. Gueret, (1913) W. C. Rep. 158).

Before obtaining leave to appeal in formâ pauperis an appellant has not only to make an affidavit as to means but must also obtain the certificate of counsel it is proper for him to so proceed. A respondent to an appeal is entitled on proof of means only (Handford v. Clarke, (1907) 1 K. B. 181).

Hearing in Court of Appeal.]—Appellants should remember there are three judges on appeal, each of whom wants a copy of all material documents.

The correct evidence in the Court of Appeal is the judges' note. When this has not been made the court may accept a statement of counsel present at the trial, and in Lee v. Bessie, (1912) 1 K. B. 83, a newspaper report was read, not as admitting such as evidence but as a statement of counsel adopted as his own. See also Durrant v. Smith, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 282. In Turner v. Bell, 4 B. 63, there being no note—the arbitrator regarded the matter as res judicata—the court read an affidavit of the solicitor on what had taken place. This was most exceptional as notes and affidavits by solicitors are almost invariably refused a hearing. In Polled v. G. N. Rail., (1912) W. C. Rep. 379, a case was sent back to be reheard. The arbitrator took no note. The applicant asked for a new trial. The company objected. They had a shorthand note of what took place. Of this they gave a copy to the other side, and a copy was also sent to the arbitrator to sign and adopt as his note if correct. No costs of the day were given, as it was not the company's fault no proper note was taken. Shorthand reports are not admissible without consent, but where an arbitrator's note is defective a copy is not infrequently sent back to the arbitrator to approve and sign. When an arbitrator's note is correct on the face of it supplementary statements are rarely received. In Taylor v. Ward & Co., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 255, where the county court judge failed to make a proper note upon which the court could act, a new trial was ordered, costs of the first trial to abide the result of the second.

(5) A judge of county courts may, if he thinks fit, summon a medical referee to sit with him as an assessor.

See supra, sect. 10, and Rules 55, 98; also Schedule I. (4), (14), (15), and (20), and Schedule II. (15); and Regulation, Appendix BB.

If either party desires a referee he must apply under these rules, and if the judge approve an assessor will be summoned, when his fees will be provided for by the Treasury (sect. 10).

Sched. II.

The medical assessor must confine himself to assisting the arbitrator with his expert medical knowledge (Earwicker v. London Graving Dock Co., Ltd., (1916) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 137).

A medical referee who on an appeal under sect. 8 had expressed the opinion that the workman had recovered ought not to sit as a medical assessor at a subsequent hearing of an application for compensation. See Wallis v. A. G. Soutter & Co., Ltd., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 113.

The arbitrator may act upon the advice of the medical assessor on matters of medical opinion or inference although there be no such opinion or inference expressed or drawn by the medical witnesses (Woods v. Wilson, Sons & Co., Ltd., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 285). The opinion of the medical assessor is not binding (Connelly v. Alex. Cross & Sons, (1917) W. C. & I. at p. 121).

(6) Rules of court may make provision for the appearance in any arbitration under this Act of any party by some other person.

This paragraph apparently applies to any arbitrator or committee, and not only to judges and judge-appointed arbitrators (see Rules 35, 93; as to parties to arbitration generally, Rules 2—7; application for medical or burial expenses, Rule 6).

(7) The costs of and incidental to the arbitration and proceedings connected therewith shall be in the discretion of the committee, arbitrator, or judge of the county court, subject as respects such judge and an arbitrator appointed by him to rules of court. The costs, whether before a committee or an arbitrator or in the county court, shall not exceed the limit prescribed by rules of court, and shall be taxed in manner prescribed by those rules, and such taxation may be reviewed by the judge of the county court.

An arbitrator's discretion within judicial limits is absolute. He may refuse all costs to a successful applicant (Skeggs v. Keen, 1 W. C. R. 35). But see Patterson v. Biggrigg Mining Co., Ltd., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 570; Golbourne v. Port of London Authority, (1917) W. C. & I. 333. He may direct issues to be separated and set off one against the other (Evans v. Gwauncaegurwen Colliery Co., 5 B. 441), but he may not give costs against a successful party (ib.). Cf. Higgins v. L. Higgins & Co., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 605. See also Reed and Reed v. S.S. "Wyneric" Co., Ltd., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 263; Derbyshire v. John Hetherington and Sons, Ltd., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 265; Port of London Authority v. Wallace, (1917) W. C. & I. 331. If a plaintiff fail in the action, and apply for compensation under sect. 1, sub-s. 4, he may give him all his costs (Cattermole v. Atlantic Transport Co., (1902) 1 K. B. 204) or set off the costs of the action against those of the application (Keene v. Nash, 5 W. C. C. 53).

The general rule is that he can only give costs, to be taxed, and not a lump sum (Beadle v. "Nicholas," 3 B. 102), but in Welland v. G. W. Rail., 2 W. C. C. 145, a strong court (A. L. Smith, Collins and Romer, L.JJ.) held that the arbitrator was right in giving a small lump sum, 5*l.*, having regard to Rule 33 (3), now Rule 76 (5), which directs that any offer made by the employer shall be considered.

Whilst costs and other matters are in the discretion of the arbitrator, yet he must exercise his discretion in every case, nor may he lay down any general rule to fetter his own discretion in the future. To do so is a misdirection, as where a judge made it a rule that all applications to "review" compensation should be taxed as interlocutory proceedings (Rigby v. Cox, No. 2, (1904) 2 K. B. 208).

A qualifying fee may be allowed in certain circumstances, even where the medical examination took place before the request for arbitration was made (Jones v. Davies and Sons, Ltd., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 509; 83 L. J. K. B. 1531).

When costs are directed by the arbitrator to be taxed on the higher equity scale the expenses allowed to any one witness must not exceed £5 (Blake v. Ramsey (Ireland), (1917) W. C. & I. 84).

Schedule II. (14) is machinery for recovering costs from a solicitor's own client.

General provisions as to costs (Rule 76). Schedule I. (19) directs that weekly payments are not to be charged, etc. Rule 19 (7) provides for costs being deducted from such payment on original applications where liability is admitted, but this cannot be done on application to reduce the compensation (Rosewell Gas Coal Co. v. McVicar, 42 S. L. R. 233). Schedule I. (19) does not apply to costs, and one set may be set off against another, e.g., the costs of assessing compensation against the costs of an unsuccessful appeal (Case v. Colonial Wharves, Ltd., 8 W. C. C. 114). For some reason not appearing in the report it appears this is not so in the case of interlocutory proceedings unless the costs are given in any event (Sutton v. G. N. Rail., 3 B. 160). Where employers admitted liability, and were given costs to be deducted 5*s.* weekly from the compensation, the man appealed against the deduction, but took the compensation. Held the award was a whole, and that he could not approbate and reprobate (Johnson v. Newton Fire Extinguisher Co., (1913) W. C. Rep. 352; Jones v. Winder, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 37; Strange v. Davis Gas Stove Co., Ltd., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 539; Josey v. Vincent, (1917) W. C. & I. 223). Generally, "activity in making costs" is to be reprehended (Farwell, L.J., in Smith v. Abbey Park, etc., 2 B. 142, and Stirling, L.J., in Field v. Longden, 4 W. C. C. 20).

As to solicitor and client costs, see infra, par. (14).

The form of order for costs against an approved society taking proceedings on behalf of an insured workman, and not being parties to the proceedings, under sect. 11, sub-s. 2 of the National Insurance Act, 1911, was settled in Clapp v. Carter, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 80.

Insurers stand in the shoes of their insured (Cornish v. Lynch, 3 B. 345). General provisions (Rule 76); offers of compensation to be considered (Rule 76 (5)); taxation of costs awarded by committee or arbitrators appointed by the parties (Rule 77); review of taxation by judge (Rule 78); solicitor's authority to receive costs (Rule 79); costs under Schedule II., par. (14) (Rule 80); payment and lien, etc. (Rule 81); costs when submission to award (Rule 19 (6), (e), (d), (7), (8)); costs between third parties and others (Rules 23, 24 (4), (6) (c)); costs of special case (Rule 34 (7)); cost of detention of ship (Rule 39 (12)); industrial diseases (Rule 41 (4) (d)); costs appointing arbitrator under Schedule II., par. (8) (Rule 42 (9)); reference to judge of agreement under Schedule II., par. (9), proviso (d) (Rule 49 (10)); application for medical referee, costs of (Rule 57 (9)).

Appointment of new arbitrator.

(8) In the case of the death, or refusal or inability to act, of an arbitrator, the judge of the county court may, on the application of any party, appoint a new arbitrator.

As to arbitrator appointed by judge (Rule 31 (e)); by parties (Rule 42 (1)).

Recording of memorandum.

(9) Where the amount of compensation under this Act has been ascertained, or any weekly payment varied, or any other matter decided under this Act, either by a committee or by an arbitrator or by agreement, a memorandum thereof shall be sent, in manner prescribed by rules of court, by the committee or arbitrator, or by any party interested, to the registrar of the county court who shall, subject to such rules, on being satisfied as to its genuineness, record such memorandum in a special register without fee, and thereupon the memorandum shall for all purposes be enforceable as a county court judgment.

Provided that—

(a) no such memorandum shall be recorded before seven days after the despatch by the registrar of notice to the parties interested; and

(b) where a workman seeks to record a memorandum of agreement between his employer and himself for the payment of compensation under this Act and the employer, in accordance with rules of court, proves that the workman has in fact returned to work and is earning the same wages as he did before the accident, and objects to the recording of such memorandum, the memorandum shall only be recorded, if at all, on such terms as the judge of the county court, under the circumstances, may think just; and

(c) the judge of the county court may at any time rectify the register; and

(d) where it appears to the registrar of the county court, on any information which he considers sufficient, that an agreement as to the redemption of a weekly payment by a lump sum, or an agreement as to the amount of compensation payable to a person under any legal disability, or to dependants, ought not to be registered by reason of the inadequacy of the sum or amount, or by reason of the agreement having been obtained by fraud or undue influence, or other improper means, he may refuse to record the memorandum of the agreement sent to him for registration, and refer the matter to the judge who shall, in accordance with rules of court, make such order (including an order as to any sum already paid under the agreement) as under the circumstances he may think just; and

(e) the judge may, within six months after a memorandum of an agreement as to the redemption of a weekly payment by a lump sum, or of an agreement as to the amount of compensation payable to a person under any legal disability, or to dependants, has been recorded in the register, order that the record be removed from the register on proof to his satisfaction that the agreement was obtained by fraud or undue influence or other improper means, and may make such order (including an order as to any sum already paid under the agreement) as under the circumstances he may think just.

Sched. II.

Practice.]—Record memorandum (Rules 43—49); rectification (Rule 50); proviso (d) (Rule 51); proviso (e) (Rule 52); execution (Rule 82); setting aside award (Rule 85); enforcing memorandum in another court (Rule 89).

"Parties Interested."]—Where the workman is a member of an approved society under the National Insurance Act, 1911, the approved society is not a "party interested" for the purposes of clause 9 and has no locus standi to appear and object to the recording of a memorandum of agreement as to redemption (Bonney v. Hoyle, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 565; (1914) 2 K. B. 257).

When the parties come to an Agreement, under the Act, sect. 1, sub-s. 3, either party may apply for it to be recorded under this paragraph as provided by above rules. There must, however, be "agreement" (Madden v. Guest's Executors, (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 559). And this application may be made at any time, provided meanwhile it has not become spent or worked out. But only a memorandum of the actual agreement entered into can be recorded. It can neither be added to nor modified. If not satisfactory, some question may arise (see sect. 1, sub-sect. 3); but if accepted at all, the very terms agreed must be recorded. Agreements may be verbal. What has been agreed will be a question of fact to be decided by evidence, but no implied term can be introduced into the agreement so formed. An agreement may be implied from payment of compensation, and in Hartshorne v. Coppice Colliery Co., (1912) W. C. Rep. 256, it was powerfully argued the agreement to be implied was to bear the full burden of the Act. Contrast, however, Madden v. Guest's Executors, supra. The court could by no means agree with the proposition that from payment in one class of circumstances—during total incapacity—there could be implied a quite different term, e.g., to pay during partial incapacity. See also Godbold v. L.C.C., (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 336. Payment is evidence of admission of liability, may justify no notice being given or claim being made, but how far it can be registered as an agreement must be entirely governed by the surrounding circumstances (Phillips v. Vickers, Maxim, (1912) 1 K. B. 16).

Where there is an agreement the terms of which neither disputes, but under which the amount of compensation payable is doubtful, the proper course is to deal with the matter under Rule 82 (4). See Moake's Case quoted in the notes to that rule.

In registering an agreement, except in cases of compounding, and under sub-par. (d), the functions of the court are ministerial only. Its duty is to inquire: Does the agreement submitted for registration express in fact the agreement actually made? If so, and only if so, it should be registered (Hudson v. Camberwell Borough Council, (1917) W. C. & I. 144). If by mistake an agreement as registered does not record the agreement as made, the register may be rectified (sub-par. (c)). But rectification of the register cannot be used to modify or vary the agreement itself. If through mistake or error an agreement has been entered into and registered, steps must be taken for rectification of the agreement made before any alteration can be made in the register (Schofield v. Clough, (1912) W. C. Rep. 301). Rule 85 provides for agreements, etc., obtained by fraud, though not for mistake. The arbitrator has no right to find fraud if no allegation of fraud is made (Hudson's Case, supra).

Inconsistent Applications.]—The applicants applied to register an agreement; the employers objected; without withdrawing application to register the applicants then applied for arbitration as if no agreement. Not allowed to be heard as one case (Armston Coal Co. v. King, (1913) W. C. Rep. 388 (Sc.)).

Workman's Death.]—For the position where the workman died from a cause unconnected with the accident after a redemption agreement had been sent to the registrar to record but before the time for sending in notices of objection had elapsed, see Price v. Westminster Brymbo Coal and Coke Co., Ltd., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 245. It was there held that the registrar and employer having no knowledge of the death the memorandum was duly recorded and was enforceable.

Spent Agreement.]—If at the time of applying for registration the agreement has worked itself out, is in fact spent, it should not be recorded. This par. (9) only applies to where compensation is payable, and not to where as a matter of history it has been payable (Popple v. Frodingham Iron and Steel Co., (1912) 2 K. B. 141; an important decision of most extensive application which, however, has been limited considerably by the decision in Rex v. Thetford C. C. Registrar, (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 136). The case of Rex v. Thetford C. C. Registrar decides that even where the agreement gives to the workman all he could possibly claim and gives it him in the form of a lump sum so that there can be no future payments, the employer can still insist on registration in order to gain the benefits of sub-sect. 11, infra. Whether an agreement is in fact spent will have to be found on the evidence. Not unusually, the practice is to decide whether an "agreement" is spent and hear an application to review (Schedule I. (16)) at one and the same time. A memorandum must be recorded before it can be basis of proceedings (Colville v. Tigue, 43 S. L. R. 129).

Infants, Dependants, &c.]—Under sub-par. (d) a registrar has a discretionary power as to registering agreements. This does not apply where an award has been made by a committee under Schedule II. (1), which may have power to bind infants (Mulholland v. Whitehaven Colliery Co., 3 B. 317).

Following the decision of the Court of Appeal in Rhodes v. The Soothill Colliery Co., (1909) 1 K. B. 191, elaborate rules (60, 61, and 62) have been made, enabling employers to pay money into court where there are infants, and providing for registrars approving of agreements on their behalf under this paragraph. Rule 60 (12) makes an employer liable for costs prior to payment in, but relieves him from them thereafter.

Persons under Legal Disability.]—See Rule 63.

Memorandum enforceable on a County Court Judgment.]—A workman must obtain leave before issuing execution. Rule 82 is even more stringent than the old rule for which it is substituted, and not only must he show default in payment of a weekly sum, but also that default has been made in complying with the agreement (Ibrahim Said v. Welsford, 3 B. 233), and the employers are entitled to be heard that this is not the case (ib.). Cf. McDowell v. McGladdery, (1916) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 228. A registrar is not entitled to give leave to issue for execution when the incapacity is in dispute (Warren v. Roxburgh, (1912) W. C. Rep. 306); this seems to be the result of this case, though it is really difficult to see where the registrar went wrong.

Probably the practice will now be governed by sub-rule 5 of Rule 82. It will be noted many difficult points of practice are cleared up by rules actually made ad hoc, and old decisions should be closely scanned in the light of recent rules.

For circumstances where an administratrix was held capable of enforcing a recorded agreement, see Price v. Westminster Brymbo Coal and Coke Co., Ltd., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 245.

Variation of Agreement.]—The prudent rule that one order should be varied by another order equally applies to a recorded agreement, and if such be varied it is not usually wise to leave it on the register without also recording the varying agreement (Fife Coal Co. v. Lindsay, 45 S. L. R. 317). The effect of returning to work is to impliedly vary an agreement. A workman having returned to work for six months sought to recover on an agreement the whole of the compensation accrued for the same time, but his claim was disallowed (Baird v. McWhinnie, 45 S. L. R. 338). Compensation that has so accrued on a recorded agreement is usually recoverable on simple proof it is outstanding, without inquiry into the incapacity subsisting or otherwise, but if there is no record the whole circumstances must be inquired into.

Sched. II.

The analogy is much that of payments under an award. Till challenged it stands, and payments then due or paid cannot be taken exception to, though it be otherwise when once review is demanded.

Redemption of a Weekly Payment, Sub-par. (d).]—Under this sub-par. (d) a registrar must inquire into the adequacy of the amount (Segura v. Blampiea, 4 B. 192), but he cannot fix it (Mortimer v. Secretan, (1909) 2 K. B. 77). In O'Niell v. The Anglo-American Oil Co., 2 B. 434, the arbitrator held 175*l.* was inadequate to redeem 17*s.* 3*d.* a week. The parties and their advisers wished to close at this sum, and on it appearing on appeal that the arbitrator had seemingly misdirected himself by regarding the incapacity as permanent, the court approved the transaction. In two cases a judge has found the amount inadequate, and on subsequent proceedings has correctly found for the employer altogether (Beech v. Bradford Corporation, 4 B. 236; Marriott v. Brett, 5 B. 144). The scope of this sub-par. is considerably extended by sect. 11 (1) (c) of the National Insurance Act, 1911, in cases where the workman is an insured person.

Redemption of weekly payments.

(10) An agreement as to the redemption of a weekly payment by a lump sum if not registered in accordance with this Act shall not, nor shall the payment of the sum payable under the agreement, exempt the person by whom the weekly payment is payable from liability to continue to make that weekly payment, and an agreement as to the amount of compensation to be paid to a person under a legal disability or to dependants, if not so registered, shall not, nor shall the payment of the sum payable under the agreement, exempt the person by whom the compensation is payable from liability to pay compensation, unless, in either case, he proves that the failure to register was not due to any neglect or default on his part.

By far the most important decision affecting this paragraph is that of Ryan v. Hartley, (1912) 2 K. B. 150, approving of a settlement for a lump sum without an agreement being registered if entered into before any weekly payment has been made (see the somewhat special circumstances of the case under sect. 3 as to contracting out).

Rule 19 (1) (a) (ii.) seems clearly ultra vires, because compensation in the first instance must be a weekly payment (Mulholland v. Whitehaven Colliery Co., (1910) 2 K. B. 228).

Court in which proceedings to be taken.

(11) Where any matter under this Act is to be done in a county court, or by, to, or before the judge or registrar of a county court, then, unless the contrary intention appear, the same shall, subject to rules of court, be done in, or by, to, or before the judge or registrar of, the county court of the district in which all the parties concerned reside, or if they reside in different districts the district prescribed by rules of court, without prejudice to any transfer in manner provided by rules of court.

Where respondent is in Ireland see Haddock v. Fisher, 2 W. C. C. 43, but now by Rex v. Judge, C. C. Newport, 87 L. T. 298, this paragraph includes all respondents within United Kingdom, and service may be by registered letter (see also Rex v. Owen, (1902) 2 K. B. 436).

As to court in which proceedings are to be taken (Rule 88); stay of proceedings when several applications for arbitration (Rule 17); transfer of proceedings (Rule 90); proceedings subsequent to award (e.g., execution) in a court other than that in which award was made (Rule 89); service and substituted service (Rules 16, 92 and 93).

Duties of a judge of county courts; power to make rules.

(12) The duty of a judge of county courts under this Act, or in England of an arbitrator appointed by him, shall, subject to rules of court, be part of the duties of the county court, and the officers of the court shall act accordingly, and rules of court may be made both for any purpose for which this Act authorises rules of court to be made, and also generally for carrying into effect this Act so far as it affects the county court, or an arbitrator appointed by the judge of the county court, and proceedings in the county court or before any such arbitrator, and such rules may, in England, be made by the five judges of county courts appointed for the making of rules under section one hundred and sixty-four of the County Courts Act, 1888, and when allowed by the Lord Chancellor, as provided by that section, shall have full effect without any further consent.

Rules are the machinery by which an Act is reduced to practice; if they fall short in this respect they are defective, if they do more than this, they are ultra vires, as far as they do this, they have statutory effect.

As to procedure generally (Rule 29); anything not covered by special rules to follow practice in county court as far as possible (Rule 96).

Court fees.

(13) No court fee, except such as may be prescribed under paragraph (15) of the first schedule to this Act, shall be payable by any party in respect of any proceedings by or against a workman under this Act in the court prior to the award.

The Treasury Order, dated May 30th, 1907, regulates fees (see Appendix GG).

Compensation only to be paid on receipt of person entitled.

(14) Any sum awarded as compensation shall unless paid into court under this Act be paid on the receipt of the person to whom it is payable under any agreement or award, and the solicitor or agent of a person claiming compensation under this Act shall not be entitled to recover from him any costs in respect of any proceedings in an arbitration under this Act, or to claim a lien in respect of such costs on, or deduct such costs from, the sum awarded or agreed as compensation, except such sum as may be awarded by the committee, the arbitrator, or the judge of the county court, on an application made either by the person claiming compensation or by his solicitor or agent, to determine the amount of costs to be paid to the solicitor or agent, such sum to be awarded subject to taxation and to the scale of costs prescribed by rules of court.

See Schedule I. (19), as to compensation not being assignable, etc.; and Schedule II. (9), as to costs generally. Under this paragraph Rules 80, 81.

Schedule I. (7) provides for payment to persons under disability.

In case of the death of the person to whom compensation is payable before claim made, and before award given, the right to such compensation is vested and the benefit of such right passes to the estate of such person

Power to refer to medical referee for report.

(15) Any committee, arbitrator, or judge may, subject to regulations made by the Secretary of State and the Treasury, submit to a medical referee for report any matter which seems material to any question arising in the arbitration.

In general, when difficult medical questions may arise, it is better to have an assessor under Schedule II. (5). The arbitrator has no power, before hearing evidence on either side, to refer the matter under this clause (unless by consent (Renshall's Case, infra)). Should he do so the resulting report is not admissible in evidence on the hearing of the application (Peill & Sons v. Payne, (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 205). The report, when made, is not conclusive, still less binding on the arbitrator. In Scotstoun Est. Co. v. Jackson, 48 S. L. R. 440, an arbitrator referred to a referee and then found the exact opposite of his report. It was held he could so find. But the arbitrator may accept it as conclusive of the point at issue and refuse to hear evidence to the contrary (Renshall v. Spencer, (1917) W. C. & I. 233). For regulations referred to, see Appendix BB. These regulations, like rules, are to work out the paragraph (see Schedule II. (12)). On the face of them they seem to contemplate a living person, one who can be examined, but in Carolan v. Harrington, (1911) 2 K. B. 733, it was held they did not so cut down the paragraph, and that a reference as to the cause of death was within its purview. The regulations equally contemplate a conflict of evidence before such reference is made, and if no medical evidence be given, such reference should not be made (Carroll v. Gray, 47 S. L. R. 646). But see Renshall's Case, supra.

See under sect. 10: Rules 56 (1) and 98, as to appointment of referee; Rule 56 (2), as to examination of workman; Rule 76 (6), as to costs; and by Rule 43 (2), a copy of the report must be annexed to the memorandum filed under Schedule II. (9). See also Schedule I. (4), (14), (15), and (20), and Schedule II. (5).

Further powers to be given representative committee.

(16) The Secretary of State may, by order, either unconditionally or subject to such conditions or modifications as he may think fit, confer on any committee representative of an employer and his workmen, as respects any matter in which the committee act as arbitrators, or which is settled by agreement submitted to and approved by the committee, all or any of the powers conferred by this Act exclusively on county courts or judges of county courts, and may by the order provide how and to whom the compensation money is to be paid in cases where, but for the order, the money would be required to be paid into court, and the order may exclude from the operation of provisoes (d) and (e) of paragraph (9) of this schedule agreements submitted to and approved by the committee, and may contain such incidental, consequential, or supplemental provisions as may appear to the Secretary of State to be necessary or proper for the purposes of the order.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION (WAR ADDITION) ACT, 1917.

AN ACT TO PROVIDE FOR AN ADDITION DURING THE PRESENT WAR AND A PERIOD OF SIX MONTHS THEREAFTER TO THE AMOUNT OF THE COMPENSATION PAYABLE UNDER THE WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT, 1906, IN CASES OF TOTAL INCAPACITY.

[21st August, 1917.]

Be it enacted by the King's most excellent Majesty, by and with the advice and consent of the Lords Spiritual and

Temporal, and Commons, in this present Parliament assembled, and by the authority of the same, as follows:—

Temporary increase of amount of compensation in cases of total incapacity. 6 Edw. 7, c. 58.

(2) The additional weekly sum payable under this Act shall be deemed to be part of the weekly payment under the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1906, for the purposes of—

(a) The provisions relating to the recovery of weekly payments;

(b) Any order made with respect to payment into court of a weekly payment;

(c) The provisions of paragraph (19) of the First Schedule to the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1906 (which prohibits the assignment, &c., of weekly payments); and shall, notwithstanding that the liability to make the said weekly payment is redeemed subsequently to the commencement of this Act, continue to be payable in the same manner as if that liability had not been redeemed.

Provision with respect to certified schemes.

2. Where an employer is liable to pay benefits under a scheme certified by the Registrar of Friendly Societies under section three of the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1906, the Registrar may direct that workmen, who are at any time during the period for which this Act continues in force entitled to benefits under the scheme as on account of total incapacity, shall receive such additional benefit as is specified by the Registrar in the direction as being in his opinion of equivalent value to the additional sum payable under the foregoing provisions of this Act.

Commencement and short title.

3.—(1) This Act shall come into operation on the first day of September nineteen hundred and seventeen, and shall continue in force during the continuance of the present war and for a period of six months thereafter.

PRELIMINARY.

Effect, short title, commencement, and construction of Rules. 6 Edw. VII. c. 58.

1.—(1) The following rules shall have effect under the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1906 (in these rules referred to as the Act), with reference to any matter or proceeding for the regulation of which rules of court may be made under the Act, and generally for carrying the Act into effect so far as it affects the county court or an arbitrator appointed by the judge of the county court, and proceedings in the county court or before any such arbitrator. Rule 1.

(2) These rules may be cited as the Consolidated Workmen's Compensation Rules, July, 1913, and shall come into operation on the first day of July, one thousand nine hundred and thirteen. They shall apply to all proceedings taken in cases pending on that day where the accident happened after the thirtieth day of June, one thousand nine hundred and seven; but they shall not, except so far as they relate to references to medical referees and proceedings consequential thereon, apply to any case where the accident happened before the first day of July, one thousand nine hundred and seven; and the Workmen's Compensation Rules, 1898, the Workmen's Compensation Rules, 1899, and the Workmen's Compensation Rules, 1900, shall continue to apply to any such case, except to the extent to which these rules apply thereto.

(3) The Workmen's Compensation Rules, 1907, and all Workmen's Compensation Rules of subsequent date, are hereby annulled.

(4) Expressions used in these rules shall have the same meaning as the same expressions used in the Act.

(5) The Interpretation Act, 1889, shall apply for the purpose of the interpretation of these rules as it applies for the purpose of the interpretation of an Act of Parliament. 52 & 53 Vict. c. 63.

(6) These rules shall also be read and construed with the County Court Rules, 1903, and the County Court Rules of subsequent date amending the same; and any order and rule referred to by number in these rules shall mean the order and rule so numbered in the County Court Rules, 1903, or in any County Court Rules of subsequent date, as the case may be. [Old rule 1.]

Parties to Arbitration before Judge or Arbitrator Appointed by Judge.

2.—(1) Where application is made for the settlement by the judge, or by an arbitrator appointed by the judge, of any matter which under the Act is to be settled by arbitration, the party making such application shall be called "the applicant"; and subject to these rules, all other persons whose presence at the arbitration may be necessary to enable the judge or arbitrator effectively and completely to adjudicate upon and settle all the questions involved shall be made parties to the application, and shall be called "the respondents." Parties to arbitration.

(2) In any case in which both the principal as defined by the Act and a contractor with him are alleged to be liable to pay Order III., rule 2.

compensation under the Act, Order III., rule 2, as to joinder of parties, shall apply. [Old rule 2.]

Joinder of applicants. Order III., rule 1. Order XLIV., rules 18, 19.

3. More persons than one may be joined as applicants in one arbitration, in any case in which such persons might be joined in one action as plaintiffs under Order III., rule 1 ; and that rule, and rules 18 and 19 of Order XLIV., shall, with the necessary modifications, apply to any such arbitration. [Old rule 3.]

Application by dependants.

4.—(1) An application on behalf of the dependants of a deceased workman for the settlement by arbitration of the amount payable as compensation to such dependants may be made by the legal personal representative, if any, of the deceased workman on behalf of such dependants, or by the dependants themselves ; and in either case the particulars to be filed as hereinafter mentioned shall contain particulars as to the dependants on whose behalf the application is made.

(2) Provided, that if there is any conflict of interest between the dependants themselves, or if any dependants neglect or refuse to join in an application, the application may be made by or on behalf of some only of such dependants, the other dependants in either case being named as respondents.

There may be circumstances when others cannot be joined, as where a father was either dead or had deserted his wife, who claimed as dependent on a son (Bevan v. Crawshay, (1902) 1 K. B. 25).

(3) In the construction of this rule the term "dependants" shall include persons who claim or may be entitled to claim to be dependants, but as to whose claim to rank as dependants any question arises. [Old rule 4.]

Application by dependants under Act, Sched. I. par. 8, where amount of compensation agreed or ascertained.

5.—(1) In any case in which the amount payable as compensation to the dependants of a deceased workman has been agreed upon or ascertained, but any question arises as to who are dependants, or as to the amount payable to each dependant, an application for the settlement of such question by arbitration may be made either by the legal personal representative, if any, of the deceased workman on behalf of the dependants or any of them, or by such dependants or any of them, against the other dependants, and the persons claiming or who may be entitled to claim to be dependants, but as to whose claim to rank as such a question arises ; or such application may be made by the persons claiming to be dependants, but as to whose claim to rank as such a question arises, or any of them, against the legal personal representative, if any, of the deceased workman, and the dependants, and such of the persons claiming or who may be entitled to claim to be dependants as are not applicants.

Rule 5.

(2) In any such case, if the employer has paid the agreed or ascertained amount of compensation, it shall not be necessary to make him a respondent, but if such compensation or any part thereof is still in his hands he shall be made a respondent.

(3) The employer, if made a respondent, may pay the amount of compensation in his hands into court, to be dealt with as the judge or arbitrator shall direct, and thereupon further proceedings against him shall be stayed.

This obviates the necessity for letters of administration (Clatworthy v. Green, 4 W. C. C. 152).

(4) The registrar shall within twenty-four hours from the time of payment made pursuant to the last preceding paragraph send notice thereof to the applicant and to the other respondents (if any), and the employer shall not be liable to any costs otherwise than in accordance with paragraph 6 (c) of rule 19. [Old rule 5.]

Parties to arbitration as to sum payable for medical attendance and burial. Act, Sched. I., par. 1 (a) (iii.).

6.—(1) An application for the settlement by arbitration of the sum payable in respect of medical attendance on and the burial of a deceased workman who leaves no dependants shall be made by the legal personal representative, if any, of the deceased workman. If there is no such legal personal representative, the application may be made by any person to whom any such expenses are due. In the latter case any other person known to the applicant as a person to whom any such expenses are due shall be joined in the application either as applicant or respondent.

Apportionment of such sum.

(2) In any case in which application is made for the settlement by arbitration of such amount, the amount awarded, if insufficient for the payment of such expenses in full, shall be apportioned between the persons to whom such expenses are due in such manner as the judge or arbitrator shall direct. [Old rule 6.]

Parties under disability and partners; representation of parties having the same interest.

7.—(1) The provisions of rules 7 and 8 of Order III., as to parties suing or defending on behalf of other persons having the same interest, and the provisions of the County Court Rules as to persons under disability and partners suing and being sued, shall, with the necessary modifications, apply to proceedings by way of arbitration under the Act.

Judge may direct infant to appear as if he were of full age.

(2) Provided that the judge may at any time direct that an infant shall appear either as applicant or respondent in the same manner as if he were of full age. [Old rule 7.]

Sub-paragraph (2) is new. As to appearing by next friend, see Order V. r. 16 and Form 15.

Application for Arbitration.

Request for arbitration.

8.—(1) An application for the settlement of any matter by arbitration shall not be made unless and until some question has arisen between the parties, and such question has not been settled by agreement.

This rule gives effect to the decision in Field v. Longden, (1902) 1 K. B. 47, that arbitration is not to be requested unless a question has arisen, and requires the question to be stated in the request. The question must be a real question (Jones v. Great Central Rail., 4 W. C. C. 23), and an employer must be given a fair opportunity of admitting or disputing liability (Caledon, etc. Co. v. Kennedy, (1906) 43 S. L. R. 430, 637). NOTE.—This rule does not apply on proceedings for review.

(2) Where any question has arisen and has not been settled by agreement, an application for the settlement of the matter by arbitration shall be made by the applicant filing with the registrar a request for arbitration, intituled in the matter of the Act and in the matter of the arbitration, which request shall state concisely the question which has arisen, and shall, with the subsequent proceedings thereon, be recorded in the special register hereinafter mentioned.

The question thus stated is the only question which an arbitrator may consider. Nor should he amend the particulars at the hearing so as to substantially raise a new issue (Proprietors of Hay's Wharf v. Brown, 3 B. W. C. C. 84).

Particulars.

(3) Particulars shall be appended or annexed to the request, containing—

(a) a concise statement of the circumstances under which the application is made, and the relief or order which the applicant claims ;

(b) the date of service of notice of the accident on the employer, or, if such notice has not been served, the reason for such omission ; and

Forms of request and particulars. Forms 1 to 11.

9.—(1) The request and particulars shall be according to such one of the forms in the Appendix as shall be applicable to the case, with such modifications as the nature of the case may require.

If not complete, fuller and better ones may be demanded (Hay's Wharf v. Brown, 3 B. 92).

(2) A copy of the notice of the accident shall be appended or annexed to the particulars. If this rule cannot be complied with, the reason for the omission shall be stated in the particulars. [Old rule 9.]

Application by employer.

10.—(1) Where an employer on whom a claim for compensation has been made desires to make an application for the settlement of any matter by arbitration, he shall file a request for arbitration in accordance with rule 8, to which the workman, or the legal personal representative, if any, and the persons claiming or who may be entitled to claim to be dependants of a deceased workman, or the other persons (as the case may be) on whose behalf the claim was made, shall be respondents. Rule 10.

(2) Particulars shall be appended or annexed to the request, containing—

(b) a statement whether the applicant admits his liability to pay compensation, or denies such liability, wholly or partially, with (in the latter case) a statement of the grounds on and extent to which he denies liability;

(c) a statement of the matters which the applicant desires to have settled by arbitration; and

(d) the full names and addresses of the respondents and of the applicant, and of his solicitor, if the proceedings are commenced through a solicitor. [Old rule 10.]

11. The applicant shall deliver to the registrar with the request and particulars a copy thereof for the judge or arbitrator, and a copy for each respondent to be served. [Old rule 11.] Copies for judge and respondents.

12. Where the applicant is illiterate and unable to furnish the required information in writing, the request and particulars and copies shall be filled up by the registrar's clerk. [Old rule 12.] Where applicant is illiterate.

13. Order V., rules 10 and 11, and Order XII., rule 9, of the County Court Rules, as to security for costs, shall not apply to proceedings under the Act and these Rules. [New.] County Court Rules as to security for costs not to apply.

Proceedings on Arbitration before Judge.

Fixing Day and Place for Arbitration.

14.—(1) On the filing of a request for arbitration, the registrar shall transmit a copy of the request and particulars to the judge, who shall as soon as conveniently may be (if he decides to settle the matter himself) appoint a day and hour for proceeding with the arbitration. Such day shall, subject to the provisions of rule 28, be so fixed as to allow the copies of the request and particulars to be served on the respondents at least twenty clear days before the day so fixed. Fixing day and place for arbitration.

(2) The arbitration shall, subject as hereinafter mentioned, be held at the place at which the court is held.

Rule 14.

(3) Provided, that the judge may direct that the arbitration shall be held at any other place within the district of the court, on application in that behalf made by any party to the arbitration, and on such party filing an undertaking to provide at his own expense a place to the satisfaction of the judge in which the arbitration may be held, and to pay the necessary expenses of the judge and officers of the court attending at such place.

(4) If such direction is given before the notices mentioned in the next following rule are issued, the registrar shall insert in such notices the place at which the arbitration has been so directed to be held.

(5) If such direction is given after such notices have been issued, the registrar shall forthwith send notice by post to the parties of the place at which the arbitration has been so directed to be held. [Old rule 13.]

Notice of Day Fixed.

Notice to parties.

15.—(1) On the day for proceeding with an arbitration being fixed, the registrar shall give or send by post notice in writing to the applicant, stating the place at which and the day and hour on and at which the arbitration will be proceeded with, and shall issue the copies of the request and particulars, under the seal of the court, for service on the respondents, together with notices under the seal of the court, stating the place at which and the day and hour on and at which the arbitration will be proceeded with, and that if the respondents do not attend in person or by their solicitors such order will be made and proceedings taken as the judge may think just and expedient.

Notice where employer is applicant. Form 13.

(2) Where the request is filed by an employer, the notices to be served on the respondents shall be modified by the omission of the words therein relating to the denial or admission of liability to pay compensation. [Old rule 14.]

16.—(1) The copies and notices mentioned in the last preceding rule shall, subject to the provisions of rule 28, be served on the respondents at least twenty clear days before the day fixed for proceeding with the arbitration.

This is to allow sufficient time for proceedings between service and hearing, especially third party proceedings.

(2) The copies and notices mentioned in the last preceding rule may be served—

or, at the request of the applicant or his solicitor, Rule 16.

(b) By the applicant, or some clerk or servant in his permanent and exclusive employ; or

(c) By the applicant's solicitor, or a solicitor acting as agent for such solicitor, or some person in the employ of either of them, or some person employed by either of them to serve such copies and notices, who might be so employed to serve a writ in an action in the High Court.

(3) Service may be effected either in accordance with the rules as to service of default summonses (a), or by registered post in accordance with the provisions of sub-sections 3 and 4 of section 2 of the Act with reference to service of notice in respect of an injury, and the provisions of those sub-sections shall apply to such service. Act, sect. 2, sub-sects. 3, 4.

(4) Where service is effected otherwise than by a bailiff, a copy of the document served, with the date and mode of service indorsed thereon, shall within three clear days next after the date of service, or such further time as may be allowed by the registrar of the court issuing such document, be delivered or transmitted to such registrar by the applicant. The applicant shall also (unless the respondent files an answer) after the time limited for filing an answer, deliver or transmit to the registrar an affidavit of the service of such document, according to Form 37 in the Appendix to the County Court Rules, with such variations as the circumstances of the case may require. Where service effected otherwise than by bailiff.

(5) Where a document is served by post it shall, unless the contrary be proved, be deemed to have been served at the time when the letter containing the same would have been delivered in the ordinary course of post, and in proving the service of such document it shall be sufficient to prove that the same was properly addressed and registered. Service by post.

(6) Where the accident occurred in England, and any respondent resides in Scotland or Ireland, service on such respondent may be effected in accordance with this rule, and service so effected shall be deemed to be sufficient. [Old rule 15.] Service on respondent in Scotland or Ireland.

Par. 6 has been framed on the lines of the decision in Rex v. Owen, (1902) L. R. 2 K. B. 436. It was there held that where an accident occurs in England, but the employer resides in Scotland or Ireland, proceedings may be taken in the county court in England; and in reply to the argument that there were no provisions for the service out of the jurisdiction, the court held that the rule as to service by registered post met the difficulty. Channell, J., pointed out that this was probably by accident, and that the words were not intended to meet such a case; but it was held that they did in fact meet it. It is now effected by this rule in express terms.

Stay of Proceedings.

Stay of proceedings in other arbitrations to abide decision as to liability in selected arbitration. Order VIII., rules 2—6.

17. Where several requests for arbitration are filed by different applicants against the same respondent in the same court in respect of matters arising out of the same circumstances, the respondent may, on filing an undertaking to be bound, so far as his liability to pay compensation is concerned, by the award in such one of the said arbitrations as may be selected by the judge, apply to the judge under Order VIII., rule 2, for an order to stay proceedings in the arbitrations other than the one so selected until an award is made in such selected arbitration; and rules 2 to 6 of Order VIII. shall, with the necessary modifications, apply accordingly. [Old rule 16.]

Answer by respondent.

18.—(1) If any respondent desires to disclaim any interest in the subject matter of an arbitration, or considers that the applicant's particulars are in any respect inaccurate or incomplete, or desires to bring any fact or document to the notice of the judge, or intends to rely on the fact that notice of the accident, or of death, disablement, or suspension, was not given as required by the Act, or that the claim for compensation was not made within the time limited by the Act, or intends to deny (wholly or partially) his liability to pay compensation under the Act, he shall, ten clear days at least before the day fixed for proceeding with the arbitration, or if the time is abridged pursuant to rule 28, then within the time fixed by the order, file with the registrar an answer, stating his name and address, and the name and address of his solicitor (if any), and stating that he disclaims any interest in the subject matter of the arbitration, or stating in what respect the applicant's particulars are inaccurate or incomplete, or stating concisely any fact or document which he desires to bring to the notice of the judge, or on which he intends to rely, or the grounds on and extent to which he denies liability.

(2) The respondent shall with such answer file copies thereof for the applicant and the judge, and one copy for each of the other respondents; and the registrar shall within twenty-four hours after receiving such copies transmit the same by post to the applicant and the judge and the other respondents respectively.

(3) Subject to any answer so filed, and to the provisions of the next following paragraph, the applicant's particulars, and, in the case of a claim for compensation, the liability to pay compensation under the Act, shall be taken to be admitted.

(4) Provided, that in case of non-compliance with this rule, and of the applicant's not consenting at the arbitration to permit a respondent to avail himself of any matter of which he should pursuant to this rule have given notice by filing an answer, the judge may, on such terms as he shall think fit, either proceed with the arbitration and allow the respondent to avail himself of such matter, or adjourn the arbitration to enable the respondent to file such answer. Rule 18.

The arbitrator's discretion on such matters is very great (Silvester v. Cude, 1 W. C. C. 120); but he should not allow new matter to be sprung on either party without adjourning as a rule.

The arbitrator has jurisdiction to consider an application to terminate a suspensory award which is made by the answer (Paulizky v. Wandsworth, Wimbledon, & Epsom Gas Co., (1916) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 127.

(5) The provisions of this rule shall, with the necessary modifications, apply to a case in which a request for arbitration is filed by an employer; but a respondent who fails to file an answer shall not be taken to admit the truth of any statement in the applicant's particulars in which he denies, wholly or partially, his liability to pay compensation. [Old rule 17.] Answer where employer is applicant.

Submission to Award or Payment into Court by Respondent.

19.—(1) A respondent who admits liability may at any time before the day fixed for proceeding with the arbitration, Submission to award or payment into court with admission of liability. Form 15.

(a) Where the application is made by an injured workman,

(i.) file with the registrar a notice that he submits to an award for the payment of a weekly sum, to be specified in such notice; or

(ii.) file with the registrar a notice that he submits to an award for the payment of a lump sum, to be specified in the notice, which he considers to be sufficient to cover his liability in the circumstances of the case, and pay such sum into court; or

This rule is probably ultra vires (see under sect. 3 of the Act).

(b) Where the application is made on behalf of the dependants of a deceased workman, or for the settlement of the sum payable in respect of medical attendance on and the burial of a deceased workman who leaves no dependants, file with the registrar a notice that he admits liability, and pay into court such sum of money as he considers sufficient to cover his liability in the circumstances of the case.

In any such case the respondent shall file as many copies of the notice as there are parties to whom notice of submission to an award or of payment into court is to be sent.

(2) A respondent who denies liability may at any time before the day fixed for proceeding with the arbitration file a notice of submission to an award or pay money into court in accordance Submission to award or payment into court with this rule, accompanied by a notice stating his name and address, and further stating that notwithstanding such submission or payment he denies his liability, together with as many copies of such notice as there are parties to whom notice of such submission or payment is to be sent.

Form 15.

Forms 16, 17.

(3) The registrar shall within twenty-four hours from the time of any notice filed or payment made pursuant to either of the two last preceding paragraphs send notice thereof (with a copy of the notice filed by the respondent) to the applicant, and to the other respondents (if any).

Acceptance of weekly payment as lump sum by workman.

(4) If the applicant is a workman, and elects to accept in satisfaction of his claim the weekly payment or the lump sum specified in the respondent's notice, he shall send to the registrar and to the respondent by post, or leave at the registrar's office and at the residence or place of business of the respondent, a written notice according to the form in the Appendix, stating such acceptance, within such reasonable time before the day fixed for proceeding with the arbitration as the time of filing of notice of submission by the respondent has permitted.

(5) If the application for arbitration is made on behalf of the dependants of a deceased workman, or for the settlement of the sum payable in respect of medical attendance and burial as aforesaid, and the applicant is willing to accept the sum paid into court in satisfaction of the compensation payable to the dependants, or in respect of such medical attendance and burial (as the case may be), he shall send to the registrar and to the respondent by post, or leave at the registrar's office and at the residence or place of business of the respondent, a written notice of such willingness, according to the form in the Appendix, within such reasonable time before the day fixed for proceeding with the arbitration as the time of payment into court by the respondent has permitted.

If there are any other respondents, the applicant shall in like manner give notice of such willingness to such respondents ; and if any of such respondents are willing to accept the sum paid into court in satisfaction of such compensation as aforesaid, they shall in like manner give notice of such willingness to the registrar and to the applicant and the other respondents.

Procedure if weekly payment offered or sum paid in is accepted.

(6) If the applicant is a workman, and elects to accept in satisfaction of his claim the weekly payment submitted to or the lump sum paid into court by the respondent, or if in any other case the applicant and all the respondents give notice of their willingness to accept the sum paid into court, the following provisions shall apply :—

payment submitted to or the lump sum paid into court by the respondent, the judge may, on application made to him in or out of court, forthwith make an award directing payment of such weekly sum accordingly, or directing payment of such lump sum to or applying the same for the benefit of the workman ; Rule 19.

(b) Where in the case of death the respondent has paid money into court, further proceedings against such respondent shall be stayed, except as hereinafter mentioned ; and

(i.) If the applicant and the other respondents agree as to the apportionment and application of such sum, the judge may, on application made to him in or out of court on behalf of or with the consent of all such parties, forthwith make an award for such apportionment and application ;

(ii.) In any other case the arbitration may proceed as between the applicant and the other respondents.

(c) In any such case the judge may, in his discretion, by his award order the respondent filing notice of submission to an award or paying money into court to pay such costs as the applicant and the other respondents, or any of them, may have properly incurred before the receipt of notice of submission to an award or payment into court, and his or their costs properly incurred in relation to the notice of submission to an award or payment into court, and to the notice of acceptance, including, if the judge on consideration of the facts of the case shall so order, any items which might have been allowed by order of the judge at the hearing of the arbitration. Costs payable by respondent.

(d) If the applicant or any respondent intends to apply for any such costs, he shall give notice of his intention in his notice of acceptance, according to the form in the Appendix ; or where the time of filing notice of submission to an award or the time of payment into court by the respondent does not permit of notice of acceptance being given, the applicant or any respondent may apply for such costs without giving such notice. Form 18.

(7) Where any party has not given notice of acceptance in accordance with this rule, he may nevertheless accept the weekly payment which the respondent has submitted to pay, or the sum paid into court, at any time before the arbitration is called on and opened, subject to the payment of any costs which may have been reasonably incurred by the respondent since the date of filing notice of submission or the date of payment into court, and which may be allowed by the judge ; and the judge may order Acceptance at any time before arbitration opened. Costs.

any costs so allowed to be paid by the party so accepting, and may order such costs to be set off against any costs payable to such party, or to be deducted from any weekly payment or compensation awarded to such party.

Procedure and costs if weekly sum offered or sum paid in is not accepted.

(8) In default of notice of acceptance by the applicant and all the respondents, the arbitration may proceed; but if no greater weekly payment or compensation is awarded than that which the respondent has submitted to pay or has paid into court, such respondent shall not be liable to pay any further costs than such as he might have been ordered to pay if the weekly payment offered or sum paid into court had been accepted; and the judge may order any costs incurred by such respondent after notice of submission to an award or payment into court to be paid by any party who has not given notice of acceptance of such weekly payment or sum, and may order such costs to be set off against any costs payable to such party, or to be deducted from any weekly payment or compensation awarded to such party. The judge may also order any costs incurred after notice of payment into court by any party who has given notice of acceptance to be paid by any other party who has not given such notice, and to be deducted from any compensation awarded to such last-mentioned party.

Submission to award or payment into court where employer is applicant.

(9) The provisions of this rule shall, with the necessary modifications, apply to a case in which an employer has filed a request for arbitration. [Old rule 18.]

This rule is rearranged and modified to provide for payment into court with a denial of liability.

Notice to Parties against whom Indemnity claimed under section 4.

Notice of claim to indemnity under sect. 4.

20. Where a respondent claims to be entitled under section 4 of the Act to indemnity against any person not a party to the arbitration, he shall, ten clear days at least before the day fixed for proceeding with the arbitration, or if the time is abridged pursuant to rule 28, then within the time fixed by the order, file a notice of his claim according to the form in the Appendix; and the registrar shall seal such notice and deliver it to the respondent, who shall serve the same, together with a copy of the applicant's request and particulars, and of the notice served on the respondent under rules 15 and 16, upon the person against whom such claim is made; and the provisions of paragraphs 2 to 6 of rule 16 shall apply to such service. [Old rule 19.]

Form.

Sect. 4 of the Act now definitely requires questions arising under such section to be settled by arbitration, and not by action. This rule, and Rules 21—24, apply the county court procedure to such cases. So also Rule 28 gives the court discretion as to time of service.

Rule 21.

Appearance by third party.

21. If any person served with a notice under the last preceding rule (herein-after called the third party) desires to dispute the applicant's claim in the arbitration as against the respondent on whose behalf the notice has been given, or his own liability to such respondent, he must appear before the judge on the day fixed for proceeding with the arbitration, or on any day to which he may have received notice from the registrar that the arbitration has been adjourned or postponed; and in default of his so doing he shall be deemed to admit the validity of any award made against such respondent as to any matter which the judge has jurisdiction to decide in the arbitration as between the applicant and the respondent, whether such award is made by consent or otherwise, and his own liability to indemnify the respondent to the extent claimed in the notice served on him by the respondent.

Where notice not served in due time.

Provided, that if it appears to the judge before or at the arbitration that the notice of claim has not been served on the third party in time to enable him to appear on the day hereinbefore mentioned, or that for any other sufficient cause the third party is unable to appear on such day, the judge may adjourn the proceedings in the arbitration on such terms, as to costs and otherwise, as may be just. [Old rule 20.]

Proceedings on default of appearance by third party.

22. If the third party fails to appear on the day mentioned in rule 21, or, if the proceedings are adjourned under that rule, on the day to which the proceedings are adjourned, then if the arbitration results in an award in favour of the applicant, or the arbitration is finally decided in favour of the applicant otherwise than by an award, the judge may on the application of the respondent make such award as the nature of the case may require in favour of the respondent against the third party: but execution thereon shall not issue without leave of the judge until after satisfaction by the respondent of the award against him, or the amount recovered against him.

Application for directions. What directions may be given.

23. The third party or the respondent may apply before or at the arbitration to the judge for directions: and the judge, upon the hearing of the application, may, if satisfied that there is a question proper to be determined as to the liability of the third party to make the indemnity claimed, in whole or in part, order the question of such liability as between the third party and the respondent giving the notice to be determined at or after the arbitration, and if not so satisfied may make such award as the nature of the case may require in favour of the respondent giving the notice against the third party : or the judge may, if it appears desirable so to do, give the third party leave to resist the claim of the applicant against the respondent upon such terms as may be just, or to appear at the arbitration and take such part therein as may be just, and generally may give such directions as he may think proper for having the question most conveniently determined, and as to the mode or extent in or to which the third party shall be bound or made liable by the award in the arbitration. [Old rule 22.]

Order XI. r. 4.

Costs.

24. The judge may decide all questions of costs as between a third party and the other parties to the arbitration, and may order any one or more to pay the costs of any other or others, or give such directions as to costs as the justice of the case may require.

Order XI. r. 5.

Notice to Parties against whom Indemnity claimed under section 6, or otherwise.

Notice of claim to indemnity under sect. 6, or otherwise than under sect. 4. Form 23.

25.—(1) Where a respondent claims that if compensation is recovered against him he will be entitled under section 6 of the Act, or otherwise than under section 4, to indemnity against any person not a party to the arbitration, he may, if he desires that such person shall be bound by the proceedings in the arbitration to the extent in this rule provided, file and serve a notice of his claim in accordance with rule 20.

If person served makes default in appearing, he is to be deemed to admit validity of award against respondent.

(2) If any person served with a notice under the last preceding paragraph (herein-after called the third party) desires to dispute the applicant's claim in the arbitration as against the respondent on whose behalf the notice has been given, he must appear before the judge on the day fixed for proceeding with the arbitration, or on any day to which he may have received notice from the registrar that the arbitration has been adjourned or postponed ; and in default of his so doing he shall be deemed to admit the validity of any award made against such respondent as to any matter which the judge has jurisdiction to decide in the arbitration as between the applicant and the respondent, whether such award is made by consent or otherwise.

Where notice not served in due time.

Provided, that if it appears to the judge before or at the arbitration that the notice of claim has not been served on the third party in time to enable him to appear on the day hereinbefore mentioned, or that for any other sufficient cause the third party is unable to appear on such day, the judge may adjourn the proceedings in the arbitration on such terms, as to costs or otherwise, as may be just. Rule 25.

This rule has been slightly modified to bring into accord with Nettleingham v. Powell, (1913) W. C. Rep. 22 (see under sect. 6). In G. N. Rail. v. Whitehead, 18 T. L. R. 816, the plaintiff recovered 78*l.* 11*s.* 3*d.*, the amount of the award, and 10*l.* 17*s.* 2*d.* for costs paid to the applicant. The rule precisely states the law and the extent to which such third party is liable.

(3) The third party or the respondent may apply before or at the arbitration to the judge for directions; and the judge, upon the hearing of the application, may, if it appears desirable so to do, give the third party leave to resist the claim of the applicant against the respondent upon such terms as may be just, or to appear at the arbitration and take such part therein as may be just, and generally may give such directions as he shall think proper. Application to judge for directions as to conduct of arbitration.

(3) If the third party obtains leave to resist the claim of the applicant against the respondent, the provisions of rule 24 as to costs shall apply. Costs.

(5) Nothing in this rule shall empower the judge to decide (otherwise than by consent) any question as to the liability of the third party to indemnify the respondent, or to make any award in favour of the respondent against the third party, or to make any further or other order than that the third party shall not be entitled in any future proceedings between the respondent and such third party to dispute the validity of the award as to any matter which the judge has jurisdiction to decide in the arbitration as between the applicant and the respondent. Judge how far empowered to decide questions as to liability of third party.

(6) Provided, that with the consent of the respondent and the third party,

(a) If the arbitration results in an award in favour of the applicant, or is finally decided in favour of the applicant otherwise than by an award, and the third party admits his liability to indemnify the respondent, the judge may, on application made to him at or after the hearing of the arbitration or the final decision thereof, make such award as the nature of the case may require in favour of the respondent against the third party; but execution thereon shall not issue without leave of the judge until after satisfaction by the respondent of the award against him, or the amount recovered against him; or

(b) The judge may, on an application for directions, order any question as to the liability of the third party to make the indemnity claimed to be settled, as between the respondent and the third party, by arbitration after the arbitration between the applicant and the respondent, and may on such subsequent arbitration make such award as the nature of the case may require in favour of either party against the other.

c) In any such case the judge may decide all questions of costs as between the respondent and the third party, and may order either of such parties to pay the costs of the other (including any costs payable by such party to any other party to the arbitration), or give such directions as to such costs as the justice of the case may require.

Claim to indemnity as between respondents.

27.—(1) Where a respondent claims to be entitled to indemnity against any other respondent, a like notice shall be issued and the like procedure shall thereupon be adopted for the determination of questions between the respondents as might be issued and adopted against such other respondent if such last-mentioned respondent were a third party.

(2) Nothing herein contained shall prejudice the rights of the applicant against any respondent. [Old rule 26.]

When indemnity is claimed by one respondent against another, he must give notice (Appleby v. Horseley and Lovett, (1899) 2 Q. B. 521).

Abridgment of Time for Service, &c.

Abridgment of time for service, answer, &c.

28. The judge or registrar may for good cause shown abridge the time for service of a request for arbitration on any respondent, or the time for filing an answer or serving a third party notice under these rules; and if an order is made to that effect a copy of the order shall be annexed to and served with the notice to be served on the respondent. [Old rule 25A.]

29.—(1) Subject to the special provisions of these rules, the procedure in an arbitration shall be the same as the procedure in an action commenced in the county court by plaint and summons in the ordinary way, and determined by the judge without a jury, in so far as such procedure is applicable to proceedings by way of arbitration; and the statutory provisions and rules for the time being in force relating to such actions shall, with the necessary modifications, apply to such arbitration accordingly; and in the application of such provisions and rules the applicant's request for arbitration shall be deemed to be a summons with particulars annexed, the day fixed for proceeding with the arbitration shall be deemed to be the return day, and the applicant and respondents shall be deemed to be plaintiff and defendants respectively. Rule 29.

(2) Provided, that the burden of proof of any facts which are not admitted shall be the same, whoever the party may be by whom the request for arbitration is filed. [Old rule 27.] Burden of proof of facts not admitted.

Award.

30.—(1) The award of the judge on any arbitration shall be prepared and settled by the registrar, and shall be signed by the judge, and shall be sealed and filed, and sealed copies thereof shall be served on all persons affected thereby in accordance with rule 7 of Order XXIII.; and such award shall be enforceable in the same manner as a judgment or order of the court. Award. Form 24. Order XXIII. rule 7.

(2) The judge shall have power at any time to correct any clerical mistake or error in such award arising from any accidental slip or omission. [Old rule 28.]

Save as thus provided, an award once signed cannot be altered. Up to signing, it can (Mowlem v. Dunne, (1912) 2 K. B. 136).

PROCEEDINGS BEFORE ARBITRATOR APPOINTED BY JUDGE.

Appointment of Arbitrator by Judge.

31. With respect to the appointment of an arbitrator by the judge, the following provisions shall apply :— Appointment of arbitrator by judge.

(a) If with respect to any court the Lord Chancellor, by general order, authorises the settlement by an arbitrator appointed by the judge of matters which, in default of such authorisation, would be settled by the judge, the judge may from time to time, on an application being made for the settlement of any matter, either settle the same himself, or he may, with the approval of the Lord Chancellor, appoint, by writing under his hand, and filed in the court, an arbitrator to settle such matter.

(b) If with respect to any court the Lord Chancellor makes no such general order as aforesaid, then, on an application being made for the settlement of any matter, the judge may (if from the state of business in the court, or for any other reason, he is unable to settle such matter within a reasonable time) apply to the Lord Chancellor to authorise the settlement of such matter by an arbitrator appointed by the judge.

(c) If the Lord Chancellor does not grant such authority, the judge shall proceed to settle the matter in accordance with the Act and these rules.

(d) If the Lord Chancellor grants such authority, the judge may, with the approval of the Lord Chancellor, appoint, by writing under his hand, and filed in the court, an arbitrator to settle such matter.

(e) In case of the death or refusal or inability to act of an arbitrator appointed under this rule, the judge may, on the application of any party, appoint a new arbitrator in accordance with this rule.

Fixing Day for Arbitration.

Fixing day and place for proceedings before arbitrator.

32. Where any matter is to be settled by an arbitrator, the judge shall return the copy of the request for arbitration to the registrar, with the appointment of such arbitrator, to be transmitted to the arbitrator; and the registrar shall transmit the copy of the request and a copy of the appointment to the arbitrator, who shall, as soon as conveniently may be, appoint a day and hour for proceeding with the arbitration, in accordance with rule 14, and the provisions of that rule as to the place where an arbitration shall be held shall apply. Provided, that where the arbitration is to be held at the place where the court is held, the day appointed for the arbitration shall, if possible, be one on which the court or other suitable accommodation in the court-house will be available for the arbitration. [Old rule 30.]

33.—(1) On the day for proceeding with an arbitration being fixed the registrar shall proceed according to rule 15, and thenceforward the arbitration shall proceed in the same manner as an arbitration before the judge; and these rules shall apply and the officers of the court shall act accordingly, with the substitution of the arbitrator for the judge.

(2) Provided that—

(a) In any case coming within the provisions of paragraph 6 (a) or paragraph 6 (b) (i.) of rule 19, or in any other case in which, after an arbitrator has been appointed, but before the day fixed for proceeding with the arbitration, the parties agree upon an award, the judge may, on application made to him in or out of court on behalf of or with the consent of all parties, settle the matter himself; and thereupon the functions of the arbitrator as to such matter shall cease, and the registrar shall forthwith inform him that the matter has been settled; and

(b) Any application for the enforcement of or for staying proceedings on an award, which would in the case of an award made by the judge be required to be made to the judge, shall, in the case of an award made by an arbitrator, be in like manner made to the judge. [Old rule 31.] Rule 33.

Submission of Question of Law by Committee or Arbitrator to Judge.

34.—(1) Where a committee or an arbitrator (whether agreed on by the parties or appointed by the judge) submits any question of law for the decision of the judge under paragraph 4 of the second schedule to the Act, such submission shall be in the form of a special case. Submission of question of law by committee or arbitrator to judge. Act, Sched. II. par. 4.

(2) The case shall be intituled in the matter of the Act and of the arbitration, and shall be divided into paragraphs numbered consecutively, and shall state concisely such facts and documents as may be necessary to enable the judge to decide the questions of law raised thereby. Upon the argument of the case the judge and the parties shall be at liberty to refer to the whole contents of such documents, and the judge shall be at liberty to draw from the facts and documents stated in the case any inference, whether of fact or of law, which might have been drawn therefrom if proved at the hearing of an arbitration. Statement of case.

(3) The case shall be signed by the chairman and secretary of the committee or by the arbitrator, and sent to the registrar, who shall transmit the same to the judge, and the judge shall as soon as conveniently may be appoint a day and hour for hearing the case, and instruct the registrar to give notice thereof forthwith to the parties. (5) On the hearing of the case the judge may, after deciding the question submitted to him, remit the case with a memorandum of his decision to the committee or arbitrator, for them or him to proceed thereon in accordance with the decision; or if the decision of the judge on the question submitted to him disposes of the whole matter, he may himself make an award in the arbitration in accordance with such decision. Power of judge on hearing of case.

(6) The judge may remit the case to the committee or arbitrator for re-statement or further statement. Re-statement.

direct that such costs shall be dealt with as costs attending the arbitration; and the provisions of the Act and these rules as to such costs shall apply accordingly.

Appearance of Parties in Arbitration.

Appearance of parties.

35.—(1) A party to any arbitration under the Act, whether before a committee or an agreed arbitrator, or before a judge or an arbitrator appointed by a judge, may appear—

(a) In person:

(b) By any solicitor who would be entitled to appear for such party in an action in the county court:

N.B.—It is within the discretion of the county court judge to refuse to hear an admitted solicitor who is managing clerk to the solicitor on the record (Rogers v. Metropolitan Borough of Holborn, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 262).

(c) By counsel:

Or, by leave of the committee, agreed arbitrator, judge or arbitrator, a party may appear—

(e) By a person in the permanent and exclusive employment of such party:

(f) In the case of a company or corporation, by any director of the company or corporation, or by the secretary or any other officer or any person in the permanent and exclusive employment of the company or corporation:

(g) By any officer or member of any society or other body of persons of which such party is a member or with which he is connected, or, where death results from the injury, by any officer or member of any society or other body of persons of which the deceased workman was a member or with which he was connected; or

(h) Under special circumstances, by any other person.

(2) No person other than a solicitor who appears or acts on behalf of any party in any arbitration under the Act shall be entitled to have or recover any fee or reward for so appearing or acting, other than such travelling expenses and (in the case of a workman or a member of his family) allowance for time (if any) as may be allowed by the committee, agreed arbitrator, judge or arbitrator: Provided that nothing in these rules contained shall affect the right of counsel to appear or act in any arbitration, or the right of any solicitor to recover costs in respect of his employment of counsel to appear or act as aforesaid. [Old rule 33.]

Duty of Judge as to taking Notes.

Note to be taken of question of

36. At the hearing of any arbitration or special case the judge shall make a note of any question of law raised, and of the facts in evidence in relation thereto, and of his decision thereon, and of his decision in the arbitration or on the hearing of the case: and he shall, at the expense of any party to such arbitration or case, furnish a copy of the note so taken to or allow a copy of the same to be taken by or on behalf of such party, and shall sign such copy, whether a notice of motion by way of appeal has been served or not. [Old rule 34.] Rule 36. law raised, &c., and copy furnished.

The county court judge ought to take a note, for the assistance of the Court of Appeal, of every point which in any reasonable aspect of the case can come before the Court of Appeal, even though his attention is not called by the representatives of either side to the necessity of so doing. The parties ought not to have the burden of taking shorthand notes, the use of which on appeal is discouraged (Practice Note, Times Newspaper, Dec. 18th, 1908). But a shorthand writer's note, if certified by the arbitrator, may be substituted for the arbitrator's note. Earwicker v. London Graving Dock Co., Ltd., (1916) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 137. See also Brine v. Corry, (1905) 7 W. C. C. 130; Rayman v. Fields (No. 1), (1910) 102 L. T. 154; Wright v. Sneyd Collieries, Ltd., (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 354.

A point appealed upon in the Court of Appeal is, of course, all important in such court. Before the arbitrator it may have been one of many, and perhaps the least important. Unless then definitely formulated, it is impossible for the note to be as full and as clear as is desirable when it has to be argued. Hence the innumerable difficulties on appeal as to what the facts material to a decision really are. A defective note may result in a re-hearing being necessary (Griffiths v. Wynnstay Coll., (1909) 2 B. 450; Gellyceidrim Colliery v. Rogers, 3 B. 62). On the other hand the mere fact that the note is unsatisfactory will not result in a new trial if there appears to be evidence to support the finding. See Creighton v. Lowry, (1915) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 69). In Leeds and Liverpool Canal Co. v. Hesketh, (1910) 3 B. 301, the Court of Appeal permitted an affidavit of a doctor and of the solicitor engaged in the arbitration proceedings to be read for the purpose of supplementing the county court judge's notes.

37.—(1) Where under section 5 of the Act the rights of an employer against any insurers under a contract entered into by the employer with the insurers in respect of any liability under the Act to any workman are transferred to and vest in the workman, the following provisions shall have effect. Where rights of bankrupt, &c., employer against insurers vest in workman under sect. 5.

(2) Where a workman who is or claims to be entitled to compensation from an employer to whom section 5 of the Act applies is unable to ascertain whether such employer has entered into a contract with insurers in respect of his liability, he may apply to the court on affidavit intituled in the matter of the Act, and setting forth the facts on which the application is made, for an order for the examination of the employer, and the court may make an order accordingly; and the provisions of Order XXV. rules 71 and 72 shall apply in the same manner as if the employer were a debtor liable under a judgment or order. disputes between the employer and the insurers, the provisions of the Act and these rules as to the settlement of matters by arbitration shall with the necessary modifications apply to the settlement by arbitration, as between the workman and the insurers, of any question as to the liability of the insurers to the workman or the amount of their liability, and of any other question which would under the Act be the subject of arbitration between the workman and the employer if the rights, remedies, and liability of the employer had not been transferred to the insurers. [Old rule 35.]

A workman has no rights against the insurers but what his employers would have had (King v. Phœnix Assurance Co., (1910) 2 K. B. 666).

(6) Subject to the provisions of paragraph (a) of section 7 of the Act as to service of the notice of accident and the claim for compensation, any document, notice, or proceeding to be served on the owners of a ship shall be deemed to be sufficiently served if served on the managing owner or manager for the time being of the ship, or (except where the master is claiming compensation) on the master of the ship; and section 696 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, sub-section (1), shall apply to service on the master of the ship, and where the master is claiming compensation, and there is no managing owner of the ship, service may be effected in accordance with paragraph (c) of the said sub-section. [Old rule 36.] Rule 38.

the judge shall deliver to the party applying for the same an order according to the form in the Appendix, directed to the officer named in the order for detention, authorising and directing him, upon payment of all costs, charges, and expenses attending the custody of the ship, to release it forthwith.

Notice of application to agent or solicitor of owners.

(9) (a) With respect to notices of applications for orders for detention, and to undertakings to give security, the following provisions shall have effect.

(b) Notwithstanding anything in this rule contained, a person intending to apply for an order for detention shall, if the name and address of an agent in England for the owners of the ship, or of a solicitor in England authorised to act for the owners, agent, master, or consignee of the ship, are known to him, give to such agent or solicitor, by post, telegram, or otherwise, such notice of the time and place at which the application for an order for detention is intended to be made as may be practicable in the circumstances of the case.

Memorandum to be sent to registrar. Act, Sched. II. par. 9. Form 36.

43.—(1) The memorandum as to any matter decided by a committee or by an arbitrator or by agreement, which is by paragraph 9 of the second schedule to the Act required to be sent to the registrar, shall be according to such one of the forms in the Appendix as is applicable to the circumstances of the case, and shall be left at the office of the registrar, or sent by post by registered letter addressed to the registrar at his office, as soon as may be after the matter has been decided.

(2) Where the matter is decided after a medical referee has been appointed to report on any matter under paragraph 15 of the second schedule to the Act, a copy of the report of the referee shall be annexed to the memorandum and recorded therewith; and if the referee attended any proceeding in the arbitration, it shall be so stated in the memorandum.

Form 37.

(3) In the case of an agreement as to any matter referred to in paragraph 1 of rule 51, a separate statement as required by that paragraph shall be left or sent with the memorandum of the agreement. [Old rule 41.]

This rule, in conjunction with Rule 51, has been the subject of considerable amendment. By the Rules 1908 (No. 2) it ran :—"(3) Where the matter is decided by agreement, there shall be added to the memorandum a paragraph according to the Form 36A in the Appendix, containing a statement of such of the particulars mentioned in that form as are applicable to the circumstances of the case."

Owing to its wording in this form, the question was raised whether the information required to be supplied by it, and under Form (then) 36A, were to be taken as part of the memorandum, and if not at once challenged, if wrong, to be held binding. This was not intended, but only that the information required by the registrar to enable him to decide whether it should be registered or referred to the judge under Schedule II. par. 9, proviso (d), should be furnished. Hence the further amendment. The origin of the original rule, and the necessity for the present one, was the difficulty experienced by registrars to whom agreements were forwarded for registration under Schedule II. par. 9, in obtaining information to enable them to judge whether such agreements should properly be recorded; and they provide that the memorandum of an agreement shall contain such information. For this purpose Rule 2 provides that the memorandum shall state, in the case of a workman, his average weekly earnings and his condition as to capacity for work, and in the case of a deceased workman, his average weekly earnings and particulars as to his dependants, so that the registrar may be able to form an opinion as to whether a lump sum agreed to be paid in redemption of a weekly payment, or the amount of compensation agreed to be paid to dependants, is adequate or not. Rules 43 to 49 of the Principal Rules have now been annulled and replaced by the Workmen's Compensation Rules, 1914 (July 23rd).

Rule 43 Notes.

44.—(1) If the matter is decided by a committee or an arbitrator, the memorandum shall be authenticated by the signatures of the chairman and secretary of the committee, or by the signature of the arbitrator; and it shall be the duty of the committee or arbitrator, as soon as may be after the decision, to draw up such memorandum and to sign the same or cause it to be signed as aforesaid, and to leave or send the same as aforesaid, or to deliver the same to some party interested, to be by him so left or sent.

Authentication of memorandum of decision of committee or arbitrator.

(2) If the matter is decided by agreement, the memorandum shall be authenticated by the signatures or signature of the parties to the agreement or one of them, or, in the case of employers, by the signature of some official or other person in their employ duly authorised to sign on their behalf, or of an agent duly authorised to sign on their behalf, or, in the case of persons under disability, by the signature of their next friend on their behalf.

This paragraph is in this form—

(a) Because the Master of the Rolls in Rhodes v. Soothill Colliery Co., Ltd., (1909) 1 K. B. 191, at p. 195, observed that in his opinion it was improper that agreements should be signed by solicitors for dependants; and

(b) To provide for the authentication of memoranda by the signatures of duly authorised officials on behalf of employers, or of next friends on behalf of persons under disability.

(3) [The old rule 44 (3) has now been deleted from the new Rules dated July 23*rd*, 1914, in consequence of the decision in Bonney v. Hoyle, (1914) 2 K. B. 257; (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 565. For the new rule 2 (3) see infra (6).]

(4) There shall be left or sent with the memorandum a copy thereof for every party interested.

Copies.

This par. 4 is framed so that a memorandum may be recorded of a verbal or even an implied agreement (Mercer v. Hilton, 3 B. 6). It has been shortened in the Rules of 1914 above referred to.

(5) Where the matter is decided by agreement, the registrar may, if the original agreement is in writing, and is not left or sent to be recorded, require such original agreement to be produced; but he shall not be entitled to retain the same where a memorandum thereof is left or sent to be recorded.

Memorandum may be lodged by insurers.

(6) A memorandum of an agreement may be left with or sent to the registrar by insurers on behalf of the parties interested.

These rules are intended to secure uniformity of practice. Some registrars require the original agreement to be produced when a memorandum is filed, and claim to retain it, a practice to which insurance companies object, as the original agreements are often required as vouchers for payment or for purposes of audit; and to settle the question whether a memorandum of agreement may be lodged by insurers.

The Act only requires a memorandum of an agreement, and not the original agreement, to be recorded, though no doubt the original agreement, which is the best evidence, may be filed. The rule provides that where a memorandum is filed, the registrar may require the original to be produced, to satisfy himself that it has been duly executed; but that where a memorandum is filed, the registrar shall not be entitled to retain the original agreement. It further provides that memoranda of agreements, which are generally entered into by insurers on behalf of the employers, may be filed by insurers on behalf of the parties interested.

The old (6) now appears with slight modification as Rule 2 (3) of the Workmen's Compensation Rules, 1914 (July 23rd).

Agreement on behalf of person under disability.

(7) An agreement made by or on behalf of any person under any legal disability shall be conditional only unless and until a memorandum thereof has been recorded in accordance with the Act and these rules. [Old rule 42. New rule, 1914, 2 (6).]

Notice to parties interested of memorandum having been received. Form 38.

45. On the receipt of the memorandum [and copies] the registrar shall send one of the copies to every party interested, with a notice according to the form in the Appendix, requesting such party to inform him within seven days from the date of the notice whether the memorandum is genuine, or whether he disputes [its genuineness], and, if so, on what grounds. [Old rule 43. New rule, 1914 (3).]

Formerly the only question the registrar could inquire into was the memorandum of a genuine agreement. If so, it had to be registered, even though at the time the workman was not entitled to payment of the stipulated compensation (Blake v. M. R., (1904) 1 K. B. 503), or even if the agreement were at the time determined (Keeling v. Eastwood, 116 L. T. J. 595). It was no objection to the registration that the agreement was implied or verbal only (Webster v. L. & N. W. Rail., L. T., June 29th, 1901). Now a spent agreement cannot be registered (see Schedule II., par. 9). This rule has been altered and shortened in consequence of the extended meaning given to the word "genuineness" in Popple v. Frodingham Iron Co., (1912) 2 K. B. 14, and Goodsell v. Owners of Barge Lloyds, (1912) W. N. 302.

Recording of memorandum, if genuineness not disputed. 1 & 2 Geo. V. c. 55, s. 11 (1) (c).

46. If all the parties interested admit the genuineness of the memorandum, or [if none of such parties] within such period of seven days dispute [its genuineness pursuant to Rule 47, and the employer does not] object to its being recorded [pursuant to the said rule], the registrar shall, subject to proviso (d) to paragraph 9 of the second schedule to the Act, as extended by section 11, sub-section 1 (c), of the National Insurance Act, 1911, and to [Rules 49A and] 51, record [the memorandum] without further proof. [Old rule 44. New rule, 1914, 4.]

Rule 47.

47. (a) If any party interested disputes the genuineness of the memorandum [(for example, by alleging in the case of a memorandum of an agreement that no such agreement has in fact been entered into, or that the terms of the agreement are not correctly stated in the memorandum, or that the agreement is no longer subsisting or enforceable, or that it is not enforceable by reason of its having been entered into under a mutual mistake, or obtained by fraud or undue influence or other improper means)], or

Where genuineness disputed; or

(b) if, where a workman seeks to record a memorandum of agreement between his employer and himself, the employer alleges that the workman has in fact returned to work and is earning the same wages as he did before the accident, and objects to the recording of the memorandum, [the party so disputing] or [the] employer [so objecting] shall within seven days from the date of the notice mentioned in rule 45 file with the registrar a notice according to the form in the Appendix [Form 39] [stating the grounds on which] he disputes the genuineness of the memorandum or objects to its being recorded, and shall with such notice file a copy thereof for each of the other parties interested. [Old rule 45. New rule, 1914, 5.]

This rule has been modified, expanded, and made more clear by the new rules of July 23rd, 1914.

48. On the receipt of any such notice as in the last preceding rule mentioned, the registrar shall send a copy thereof to each of the other parties interested, together with a notice according to the form in the Appendix, informing such party that the memorandum will not be recorded except with the consent in writing of the party disputing the [genuineness thereof, or the employer] objecting to the same being recorded, or by order of the judge. [Old rule 46. New rule, 1914, 6.]

Altered by the rules of 1914 to correspond with the alterations in rule 47.

49.—(1) If the consent mentioned in the last preceding rule is obtained, the registrar shall, subject to proviso (d) to paragraph 9 of the second schedule to the Act, as extended by section 11, sub-section 1 (c), of the National Insurance Act, 1911, and to rule 51, record the memorandum without further proof.

Subsequent proceedings. 1 & 2 Geo. V. c. 55, s. 11 (1) (c).

(2) If such consent cannot be obtained, any party interested may apply to the judge to order the memorandum to be recorded.

(3) Provided that if all parties interested consent in writing to any amendment of the memorandum, and to the recording of the same as so amended, the registrar may amend the memorandum accordingly, and record the same without further proof. [Old rule 47. New rule, 1914, 7.]

Where objection made to adequacy of sum payable or information given as to matters mentioned in Act, Sched. II. par. 9 (d). 1 & 2 Geo. V. c. 55, s. 11 (1) (c).

This rule is new, see Workmen's Compensation Rules, 1914 (July 23rd), r. 8. It gives effect apparently to R. v. Registrar of Bow County Court, (1914) W. C. & Ins. Rep. 591.

hours, and shall on the application and at the cost of either party furnish him with a copy of the certificate, or allow him to take a copy thereof.

(9) The fee payable by the applicant shall be calculated at the rate of one shilling in the pound on 26 times the amount of the weekly payments claimed by or payable to the workman, so that the total fee shall not exceed one pound.

(10) The costs of any application to the registrar, including the fee paid under the last preceding paragraph, may be allowed as costs in any subsequent arbitration for the settlement of the weekly payment to be made to the workman, or, where the application is made after the weekly payment has been settled, as costs in any subsequent arbitration as to the review of such weekly payment. [Old rule 54.]

SUSPENSION OF PROCEEDINGS OR WEEKLY PAYMENTS ON REFUSAL TO SUBMIT TO EXAMINATION UNDER SCHEDULE I. PARAGRAPH 4, PARAGRAPH 14, OR PARAGRAPH 15.

Application to stay proceedings or suspend weekly payments on refusal of workman to submit to examination under Act, Sched. I. par. 4, par. 14, or par. 15.

58.—(1) In any case in which a workman has given notice of an accident, or is receiving weekly payments under the Act, and the employer alleges that the workman refuses to submit himself to medical examination in accordance with paragraph 4, paragraph 14, or paragraph 15 of the first schedule to the Act, or in any way obstructs such examination, the employer may apply for a suspension of the right to compensation and to take or prosecute any proceedings under the Act in relation to compensation, or of the right to the weekly payments, until such examination has taken place, in accordance with this rule.

(2) Where proceedings are pending before a committee or an arbitrator agreed on by the parties, the application shall be made to such committee or arbitrator.

(3) Where the workman has given notice of an accident, but no proceedings are pending, or proceedings are pending before the judge or an arbitrator appointed by him, the application shall be made to the judge.

(4) Where the workman is receiving weekly payments under an award, memorandum, or certificate, then

(a) If proceedings for the review of the weekly payment are pending before a committee or an arbitrator agreed on by the parties, the application shall be made to such committee or arbitrator;

(b) If no proceedings for review are pending, or if proceedings for review are pending before the judge or an arbitrator appointed by him, the application shall be made to the judge.

(5) Where the application is to be made to the judge, it may be made in or out of court in accordance with rule 50; and the provisions of the said rule shall apply to the proceedings on such application, with the following modification;— Rule 58. Form 53.

(a) The notice shall be served on the workman or his solicitor five clear days before the hearing of the application, unless the judge or registrar gives leave for shorter notice.

Suspension of Weekly Payments pending Application for Review.

59.—(1) Where an application is made for an order that a memorandum of an agreement as to a weekly payment be recorded and the employer alleges that incapacity for work has wholly or partially ceased, the judge may, on the hearing of the application, if he orders the memorandum to be recorded, order the weekly payment to be wholly or partially suspended, or to be wholly or partially paid into court, to abide the order of the court, as from the date on which the employer alleges that incapacity wholly or partially ceased, or from any later date, for such time as he may think fit, to enable the employer to file a request for arbitration with respect to the review of the weekly payment. Suspension of weekly payments pending application for review.

(2) Where an employer intends to apply for an order of suspension or payment into court under the preceding paragraph, he shall file with the registrar notice of his intention, specifying the date on which he alleges that incapacity wholly or partially ceased; and copies thereof shall be served in accordance with rule 50 five clear days at least before the hearing of the application to record, unless the judge or registrar gives leave for shorter notice.

(3) The provisions of this rule shall not prejudice the power of the judge to refuse to order a memorandum of an agreement to be recorded.

(4) Where a request is filed for arbitration with respect to the review of a weekly payment, the judge may at any time before the hearing of the arbitration order the weekly payment to be wholly or partially suspended, or to be wholly or partially paid into court, to abide the order of the court as from the date on which the employer alleges in his request that incapacity wholly or partially ceased, or from any later date, until the hearing of the arbitration.

(5) An application for an order for suspension or payment into court under the last preceding paragraph shall be made in court on notice in writing; and the provisions of rule 50 shall apply to the proceedings on such application.

(6) An order for suspension or payment into court under this rule shall be without prejudice to the right of the workman to apply to the court, on good cause shown, to discharge the order. Any such application shall be made in court on notice in writing; and the provisions of rule 50 shall apply to the proceedings on such application. [New.]

This rule is new, and is valuable as it enables an employer on asking for review to also obtain a stay of execution of so much of the compensation as ought not to be paid (see under sect. 1, sub-s. 3).

PAYMENT INTO COURT AND INVESTMENT AND APPLICATION OF MONEY PAYABLE IN CASE OF DEATH. SCHEDULE I. PARAGRAPH 5.

Payment into court, investment, and application of payment in case of death. Act, Sched. I. par. 5.

60.—(1) Where any payment in the case of death is to be paid into the county court pursuant to paragraph 5 of the first schedule to the Act, the following provisions shall have effect.

(2) Where any money is to be paid into court under an award made by the judge or an arbitrator appointed by him, payment shall be made in accordance with the directions contained in the award.

(3) In any other case payment shall be made into the court in which the memorandum of the decision, award, or agreement under which the money is to be paid, or the certificate under which the money is to be paid, has been or is to be recorded.

(4) Where money is to be paid into court under this rule, the employer shall lodge with the registrar a præcipe in duplicate according to the form in the Appendix, and shall annex to one copy of the præcipe a form of receipt, and the registrar, on receipt of the sum paid in, shall sign the receipt and return the same to the employer; and the employer shall forthwith give notice to the persons interested in the sum paid in of such payment having been made.

(5) On the payment of money into court, the registrar shall forthwith send by post to each of the persons appearing by the award, memorandum, or certificate to be interested in such money a notice of the said payment according to the form in the Appendix. Provided that in the case of infant dependants residing with their mother or guardian it shall be sufficient to send such notice to the mother or guardian only.

Form 58 (i.).

(6) If all questions as to who are dependants and the amount payable to each dependant have been settled by arbitration before payment into court, the sum paid into court shall be allotted between the dependants in accordance with the award, and the amount allotted to each dependant shall be invested, applied, or otherwise dealt with by the court for the benefit of the person entitled thereto in accordance with paragraph 5 of the first schedule to the Act.

(7) If all questions as to who are dependants have been settled by agreement before payment into court, the amount payable to each dependant shall be settled by the court, and the amount allotted to each dependant shall be invested, applied, or otherwise dealt with by the court for the benefit of the person entitled thereto in accordance with paragraph 5 of the first schedule to the Act. Rule 60.

(8) If any such questions have not been settled before payment into court, then—

(a) If all the persons interested in the sum paid into court agree to leave the application thereof to the court, or if no question arises as to who is a dependant or as to the amount payable to any dependant, or otherwise as to the application of the sum paid into court, but any of the persons interested in the said sum are absent or under disability, the amount paid into court shall, on application by or on behalf of the persons interested therein, be allotted, invested, applied, or otherwise dealt with by the court for the benefit of the persons interested therein in accordance with paragraph 5 of the first schedule to the Act.

(b) If any question arises as to who is a dependant or as to the amount payable to any dependant, or otherwise as to the application of the sum paid into court, such question shall be settled by arbitration in accordance with the Act and these rules; and the amount allotted to each dependant shall be invested, applied, or otherwise dealt with by the court for the benefit of the person entitled thereto in accordance with paragraph 5 of the first schedule to the Act.

(9) Where any question is settled by the court by arbitration in accordance with the last preceding paragraph, an application for the investment or application of any sum allotted to any person on such arbitration may be made at or immediately after the hearing of the arbitration.

(10) (a) Where application is not so made, or in any other case coming within paragraph 5 of the first schedule to the Act, an application for the investment or application of the sum paid into court, or of the amount allotted to any person, may be made in court on notice in writing, stating on whose behalf the application is made, and the order which the applicant asks, according to the form in the Appendix.

(b) The notice shall be filed with the registrar, and where the application is made by or on behalf of some only of the persons interested, notice thereof shall be served on all other parties interested, or on their solicitors, five clear days at least before the hearing of the application, unless the judge or registrar gives leave for shorter notice. Form 59.

(c) On the hearing of the application witnesses may be orally examined in the same manner as on the hearing of an action.

(d) On the hearing of the application the judge may, after making or directing such inquiries as to the dependants and on such evidence of title and identity as he may think necessary, make such order under paragraph 5 of the first schedule to the Act and this rule as he may think fit.

(e) The provisions of the Act and these rules as to the costs of an arbitration shall apply to any such application.

(11) Where any sum paid or to be paid into court is to be invested, applied, or otherwise dealt with by the court, the judge may, at any time before or on the hearing of any application for the investment or application thereof, refer the matter to the registrar for inquiry and report. [New.]

(12) An employer paying money into court under this rule shall not be liable to any costs incurred by any person interested in such money after the receipt of notice of payment into court; but the judge may, in his discretion, order such employer to pay the costs of any such person properly incurred before the receipt of such notice.

(13) Every order for the investment or application of money paid into court shall reserve liberty to the parties interested to apply to the court as they may be advised.

(14) Where any sum allotted to any person under paragraph 5 of the first schedule to the Act or this rule is ordered to be paid out to or applied for the benefit of the person entitled thereto by weekly or other periodical payments, such payments may be made to the person entitled to receive the same either at the office of the registrar, or, on the written request of such person, by crossed cheque or postal order addressed to such person and forwarded by registered post letter, payment by post being in all cases at the cost and risk of the person requesting the same. [Old rule 56A.]

In Gill v. Fortescue, (1913) W. C. Rep. 471, it was held that dependants may sever their claim, e.g., as in this case, the widow may bring an action at law, and the remaining dependants take out all the money paid into court to them as a class.

It is difficult to see how sect. 1, sub-s. 2 (b) can protect an employer from having to pay both damages and compensation which the Act says he is not to be liable to do as any one dependant can force the hands of all. Therefore an additional rule is here wanted to the effect that where money is paid into court under this rule it shall not be apportioned nor paid out until all the dependants agree to come in, and with the further proviso that on any action outside the Act being taken the money shall be repaid to the employer. As any one dependant can enforce such outside rights against an employer, and so render him liable, it is clear his or her election should be regarded as an effective election for the whole class.

61.—(1) If there is no dispute as to the liability to pay compensation, but the amount payable has not been ascertained or decided either by a committee or by arbitration or by agreement, the employer may pay the amount which he admits to be payable as compensation into the court to which, if an agreement had been come to in the matter, a memorandum of such agreement would be sent to be recorded. Rule 61. Payment into court where liability admitted, but amount not ascertained.

(2) Where money is to be paid into court under this rule, the employer shall lodge with the registrar a præcipe in duplicate according to the form in the Appendix, containing a statement of the particulars mentioned in that form, and stating in what manner the sum admitted to be payable as compensation has been arrived at. The employer shall annex to one copy of the præcipe a form of receipt, according to the said form, and the registrar, on receipt of the sum paid in, shall sign the receipt and return the same to the employer; and the employer shall forthwith give notice to the persons interested in the sum paid in of such payment having been made. Form 55.

(3) On the payment of money into court under this rule the registrar shall make such inquiries and obtain such information as he may think necessary to satisfy himself whether the amount paid in is adequate in the circumstances of the case; and it shall be the duty of the employer and of the persons interested in the money paid in to answer such inquiries and give such information accordingly.

(4) Where it appears to the registrar that the amount paid in is adequate, he shall forthwith send by post to each of the persons appearing by the præcipe to be interested in such money a notice of the said payment according to the form in the Appendix. Form 58 (ii.). Provided that in the case of infant dependants residing with their mother or guardian it shall be sufficient to send such notice to the mother or guardian only.

(5) Where it appears to the registrar that the amount paid in is inadequate, he shall make a report to the judge in writing, stating the information he has obtained and the grounds on which it appears to him that the amount paid in is inadequate.

(6) If on consideration of the registrar's report it appears to the judge that the amount paid in is adequate, he may direct the registrar to send to the parties interested notice of payment in accordance with paragraph 4 of this rule.

(7) If on consideration of the registrar's report it appears to the judge that further inquiry should be made, the registrar shall send notice to the employer and to the parties appearing by the præcipe to be interested in the money paid into court, according to the form in the Appendix, informing them that he has referred the matter to the judge, and requiring them to attend on a day to be named in the notice, when the matter will be inquired into Form 57.

by the judge. On such inquiry the judge may make such order (including an order as to the money paid into court) as under the circumstances he may think just; and paragraphs 7, 8, and 10 of rule 51 shall apply.

(8) Where notice of payment into court is sent in accordance with paragraph 4 or paragraph 6 of this rule, then—

(a) If any question arises as to the adequacy of the amount paid into court, the question as to the amount payable as compensation, and all questions as to who are dependants and the amount payable to each dependant, shall be settled by arbitration in accordance with the Act and these rules; and the amount allotted to each dependant shall be invested, applied, or otherwise dealt with by the court for the benefit of the person entitled thereto in accordance with paragraph 5 of the first schedule to the Act and paragraphs 9 to 11, 13 and 14 of the last preceding rule.

(b) If no question arises as to the adequacy of the amount paid into court, the amount paid into court shall be allotted, invested, applied, or otherwise dealt with by the court in accordance with paragraphs 8 to 11, 13 and 14 of the last preceding rule.

(9) An employer paying money into court under this rule shall not (except under paragraph 10 of rule 51, or where a question arises as to the adequacy of the amount paid in, and such question is decided adversely to the employer by arbitration under paragraph 8 of this rule), be liable to any costs incurred by any person interested in such money after receipt of notice of payment into court; but the judge may, in his discretion, order such employer to pay the costs of any such person properly incurred before the receipt of such notice. [Old rule 56B.]

These rules provide that where the employer admits his liability to pay compensation, but the amount payable has not been ascertained, he may pay into court the amount which he admits to be payable by him, and so avoid the delay and expense of arbitration.

(a) The employer will pay into court the amount which he admits to be payable by him.

(b) It will then be the duty of the registrar to make inquiries, which inquiry does not authorise him to see the doctor's evidence obtained by the employer, it being clearly privileged (Johnson v. Oceanic S. N. Co., 5 B. 322), in order to satisfy himself that the amount paid in is adequate. If he thinks that it is, notice of payment into court will be given to the dependants. If he is not satisfied as to the adequacy of the amount, he will refer the matter to the judge, who, if he thinks the amount is adequate, will direct notice of payment to be given to the dependants, or if he thinks that further inquiry should be made, will give directions for such further inquiry in accordance with Rule 51.

if they are not satisfied with the amount so paid, they will be entitled to have the amount payable settled by arbitration.

(d) If they are satisfied with the amount paid in, they will be able to apply to the court in a summary manner for the apportionment and investment, etc., of the amount paid in.

(e) The employer will not be liable to costs after notice of the payment into court, otherwise than on an inquiry into the adequacy of the amount (Rule 51, par. 8), or unless the question as to the adequacy of the amount paid into court is decided adversely to him by arbitration.

This rule was introduced and Rule 60 amended in consequence of the decision of the Court of Appeal in Rhodes v. The Soothill Colliery Co., Ltd., (1909) 1 K. B. 191.

Here the Master of the Rolls said that though in the case of a person under disability there could be no absolute agreement, there might be, according to the familiar practice in Chancery, a so-called conditional agreement, which was not operative unless and until it was approved by the court on behalf of the infants. An analogous procedure was provided for under the Workmen's Compensation Act, it being the duty of the registrar to look into the matter on behalf of the infants. If he did not express dissent, he must be taken to be satisfied with the fairness of the agreement, and the only event in which it could be reviewed not having happened, it became binding.

Payment into court where liability denied.

62.—(1) Where a claim for compensation has been made by or on behalf of dependants, and the employer denies liability, but is willing to pay an amount in settlement of the claim, and such of the dependants as are not under disability are willing to accept such amount in settlement, the employer may pay such amount into the court to which, if an agreement had been come to in the matter, a memorandum of such agreement would be sent to be recorded.

(2) Where money is to be paid into court under this rule, the employer shall lodge with the registrar a præcipe in duplicate according to the form in the Appendix, containing a statement of the particulars mentioned in that form. The employer shall annex to one copy of the præcipe a form of receipt according to the said form, and the registrar on receipt of the sum paid in shall sign the receipt and return the same to the employer; and the employer shall forthwith give notice to the persons interested in the sum paid in of such payment having been made. Form 56

(3) On the payment of money into court under this rule, the registrar shall proceed according to paragraph 3 of the last preceding rule, and the provisions of that rule shall apply to proceedings subsequent to such payment. [Old rule 56C.]

Payment into court by solicitor or agent of employer.

62A. Where money is to be paid into Court under rule 60, rule 61, or rule 62, it may be paid in by the employer or his solicitor, or by an agent of the employer duly authorised on his behalf; and where payment is made by a solicitor or an agent, the præcipe shall state that the money is paid in at the request and by the authority of the employer, and the præcipe shall be signed by the solicitor or agent accordingly.

This rule is entirely new. See Workmen's Compensation Rules, 1914, 10. It is based upon Ferrard v. Thompson, 6 B. 461.

Application for payment into court of weekly payment to person under legal disability. Act, Sched. I. par. 7.

63.—(1) An application under paragraph 7 of the first schedule to the Act for an order that a weekly payment payable under the Act to a person under any legal disability shall during the disability be paid into court may be made either by the person liable to make such payment, or by or on behalf of the person entitled to such payment.

(2) If the weekly payment is awarded by the judge, the application may be made at or immediately after the hearing of the arbitration.

(3) In any other case the application may be made in or out of court on notice in writing, which shall be served on the other party or his solicitor five clear days at least before the hearing of the application, unless the judge or registrar gives leave for shorter notice; and the provisions of rule 50 shall apply to any such application.

(4) Where any weekly payment is ordered to be paid into court, the sums paid in shall be paid out by the registrar to or otherwise applied for the benefit of the person entitled thereto in such manner as the judge shall direct; and the provisions of rule 60 as to the payment out or application of sums by weekly or other periodical payments shall apply. [Old rule 57.]

Application for Variation of Order under Schedule I. Paragraph 9.

See rule 64A.

(2) The application shall be made in court on notice in writing, stating the circumstances under which the application is made, and the relief or order which the applicant claims.

(3) The notice shall be filed with the registrar, and notice thereof shall be served on all persons interested in accordance with rule 50; and the provisions of that rule and of rule 60 shall apply to the proceedings on such application. [Old rule 58.]

Application of Amount Allotted to Dependant in case of Death.

Application of amount allotted to 64A.—(1) In the case of the death of a dependant for whose benefit any amount has been ordered to be invested, applied, or otherwise dealt with by the court, the following provisions shall apply. Rule 64a.

(3) In default of and subject to any such order, the court may on application made in accordance with paragraphs 2 and 3 of rule 64, without the filing of a petition, order that such balance be paid out or transferred to the legal personal representative of the deceased dependant. [New rule Nov. 18*th*, 1915.]

This rule has been made to secure uniformity of practice on applications with respect to amounts allotted to dependants who afterwards die. The rule provides:—

(1) That such amounts shall be subject to any order which may be made varying the original order under paragraph 9 of Schedule I. of the Act; as to this, see Ivey v. Ivey, (1912) 2 K. B. 118.

(2) That subject to any such order the balance may be paid out to the personal representative of the deceased on application made without a petition on the equity side of the court.

Investment and Application of Lump Sum paid in Redemption of Weekly Payment. Schedule I. Paragraph 17.

65. Where pursuant to paragraph 17 of the first schedule to the Act a lump sum payable for the redemption of any weekly payment is ordered by a committee or an arbitrator, or by the judge, to be invested or applied for the benefit of the person entitled thereto, such sum shall be paid into court; and the provisions of paragraph 5 of the first schedule to the Act and of rule 60 shall apply to the investment and application of such lump sum. [Old rule 65.] Investment and application of sums paid in redemption of weekly payments. Act, Sched. I. par. 17.

Where workman receiving weekly payment intends to cease to reside in United Kingdom. Act, Sched. I. par. 18. Form 62.

66.—(1) Where a workman receiving a weekly payment intends to cease to reside in the United Kingdom, the following provisions shall have effect under paragraph 18 of the first schedule to the Act.

(2) The workman may apply to the registrar to refer to a medical referee the question whether the incapacity of the workman resulting from the injury is likely to be of a permanent nature.

(5) The workman and the employer respectively may before or at the hearing of the application submit to the registrar such statements in writing as they may think fit, with copies of such statements for the use of the medical referee.

satisfied that the applicant has a bonâ fide intention of ceasing to reside in the United Kingdom, shall make an order referring the question to a medical referee; and if he is not so satisfied, he may refuse to make an order, but in that case he shall, if so requested by the applicant, refer the matter to the judge, who may make such order or give such directions as he may think fit. Rule 66. Form 63.

DEFINITIONS.

1. In these regulations—

(i.) "Act" means the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1906.

(ii.) "Workman" means a workman as defined in section 13 of the Act.

(iii.) "Certifying surgeon" means either the certifying surgeon mentioned in sub-section (1) (i.) of section 8 of the Act, or a medical practitioner appointed by the Secretary of State under sub-section (5) of section 8 to have the powers and duties of a certifying surgeon under the said section.

(iv.) "Appointed surgeon" means a surgeon having power, in pursuance of any special rules or regulations made under the Factory and Workshop Act, 1901, to suspend a workman from employment in the process or processes specified in such rules or regulations.

(v.) "Medical referee" means a medical practitioner appointed by the Secretary of State to act as medical referee for the purposes of section 8 of the Act.

(vi.) The words "disease to which the Act applies" mean a disease mentioned in the third schedule to the Act or a disease or injury (not being an injury by accident) to which the provisions of section 8 of the Act have been extended by an Order made by the Secretary of State under sub-section (6) of that section.

2. Where a workman applies to a certifying surgeon for a certificate (hereinafter called "a certificate of disablement") that he is suffering from a disease to which the Act applies, and is thereby disabled from earning full wages at the work at which he was employed, the certifying surgeon, on payment of the prescribed fee, and after obtaining the particulars specified in Form 1. the schedule to these regulations and such further information, if any, respecting the case as in the particular circumstances he may deem necessary, shall either proceed at once, if the application is made by the workman in person, to make a medical examination of the workman, or shall appoint forthwith a time and place for making such examination, and give notice thereof to the workman. Such notice, if given in writing, shall follow, as closely as may be, the form prescribed in the schedule.

3. After personally examining the workman, the certifying surgeon shall either give the workman a certificate of disablement or shall certify that he is not satisfied that the workman is entitled to such certificate, and shall in either case deliver his certificate to the workman. The certificate given shall be in the form prescribed in the schedule to these regulations.

Not satisfied: See notes to section 8, p. 1412.

4. Where, in pursuance of any special rules or regulations made under the Factory and Workshop Act, 1901, the certifying or appointed surgeon, after having personally examined a workman, suspends him from his usual employment on account of his having contracted any disease to which the Act applies, or where in the case of a workman applying to be suspended on account of his having contracted any such disease, the surgeon as aforesaid, after having personally examined such workman, refuses to order his suspension, he shall, on the application either of the employer or of the workman, and on payment of the prescribed fee, certify such suspension or refusal to suspend in accordance with the form prescribed in the schedule to these regulations, and shall deliver such certificate to the applicant.

Forms 6 and 8.

5. Where a certificate of disablement is given or a workman is suspended, and the case is one in which, under the provisions of sub-section (2) of section 8 of the Act as extended by any order of the Secretary of State made under sub-section (6) of the said section, the disease contracted by the workman will be deemed, unless the employer proves, or the certifying surgeon certifies, to the contrary, to have been due to the nature of the employment in the process in which at or immediately before the date of the disablement or suspension the workman was employed, the certifying surgeon, if he is of opinion that the disease contracted by the workman was not due to the nature of such employment, shall certify accordingly. Such certificate shall, where possible, be given simultaneously with, and included in, the certificate of disablement or the certificate (if any) of suspension, but may also be given separately on application by the employer and on payment of the prescribed fee; and in either case shall follow the form prescribed in the schedule to these regulations.

See Forms 4 and 7.

Provided also that if the surgeon by whose action the applicant is aggrieved has been appointed a medical referee, the reference shall not be made to him, but to such other medical referee as may be authorised to act.

14. The medical referee shall, on receipt of an order of reference duly signed by the registrar of a county court, together with copies of the documents required to be sent therewith, fix a time and a place for a personal examination of the workman, and shall send notice to the employer and workman accordingly. APPENDIX DDa.

REGULATIONS, DATED OCTOBER 17, 1913, MADE BY THE SECRETARY OF STATE UNDER SECTION 12 OF THE WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION ACT, 1906 (6 EDW. 7, C. 58), AS TO RETURNS TO BE FURNISHED EACH YEAR BY EMPLOYERS IN CERTAIN INDUSTRIES WITH RESPECT TO THE COMPENSATION PAID UNDER THE ACT DURING THE PREVIOUS YEAR.

In pursuance of the powers conferred on me by section 12 of the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1906, I hereby make the following regulations :—

1. The industries to which section 12 of the Act shall apply shall be the industries specified in the first schedule to these regulations.

2. The date on or before which in every year the return required under the said section shall be sent to the Secretary of State shall be the first day of March.

3. The return shall furnish the particulars and shall be made in accordance with the directions contained in the second schedule to these regulations.

4. The regulations made on the 15th January, 1908, are hereby revoked.

R. McKENNA,
One of His Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State.

Whitehall,

SCHEDULE I.

INDUSTRIES FOR WHICH RETURNS ARE TO BE MADE.

(i.) Mining.
(ii.) Quarrying.
(iii.) Working of railways (not being railways laid on public roads) authorised by special Act or by order or certificates made in pursuance of general Acts and having statutory force, including stations and sidings connected with such railways and belonging to the owners thereof.
(iv.) Any industry being carried on in any factory to which the Factory and Workshop Acts, 1901 and 1907, apply.
(v.) The business of a harbour, dock, wharf or quay.
(vi.) Constructional work (including the construction of railways, tramways, canals, harbours or docks, bridges, tunnels, waterworks, sewers, roads, and other works of engineering, but not including construction of buildings).
(vii.) Shipping (excluding sailing vessels in the sea-fishing service).

Directions for Preparing the Returns.

Note.—The figures furnished by the individual employer will not be published, but will be treated as strictly confidential; only totals for industries will be published.

(i.) Separate Returns for each Industry.—If an employer is engaged in more than one of the seven classes of industry specified in Schedule I. he must make a separate return in respect of each class in which he is engaged. For instance, where a factory is carried on in connection with a mine or quarry, the employer must make a separate return for the factory. In the case of factory industries (class iv.), separate returns must be made in respect of each of the following groups:—(a) cotton; (b) wool, worsted and shoddy; (c) other textiles; (d) wood; (e) metals (extraction including conversion, founding, galvanising); (f) marine, locomotive and motor engineering, and shipbuilding; (g) machines, appliances, conveyances, tools; (h) paper, printing, stationery, &c.; (i) china and earthenware; (j) miscellaneous.

In the case of railways, separate returns must be made in respect of (a) clerical staff, (b) other railway servants employed in the working of railways. In the case of the other industries the clerical staff is to be excluded from the returns.

In the case of shipping, separate returns must be made in respect of (a) steam ships (including motor vessels), and (b) sailing vessels.

Where an employer carries on in connection with an industry included in Schedule I. a business or industry not so included, the return must cover only the persons employed in the scheduled industry—e.g., persons employed by the occupier of a factory in a shop connected with the factory, or persons employed by the occupier of a factory in building operations, are to be excluded.

(ii.) Forms for Returns.—Different forms, numbered I. to VII., will be issued for each of the seven classes of industry, and each return must be made upon the form applicable to the industry to which the return relates.

(iii.) Joint Returns for Two or more Establishments, &c.—A numbered form will be issued by the Home Office for the purpose of the return in respect of each mine, quarry, factory, or dock or wharf on the Home Office lists. But an employer who owns two or more mines or two or more quarries, or who occupies two or more factories (within the same trade group, as indicated in (i.) above), or two or more docks or wharves, may, in lieu of rendering a separate return for each mine, quarry, factory, or dock or wharf, as the case may be, include in one return all his premises falling within the same class of industry or division thereof, provided that he

(a) States in Part 1 (a) of the return the names and addresses of all the premises included, and

(b) returns to the Home Office the other forms sent him and marks them "Included in return county and No. " (for mines and quarries) or "Included in No. " (for factories, docks, and wharves), adding the identifying number of the return in which the premises are included.

Every form received must be returned to the Home Office.

(iv.) Payments under Certified Schemes, &c., to be excluded.—The return must not include any particulars with regard to (a) compensation paid under a contracting-out scheme certified by the Registrar of Friendly Societies under the Act, or (b) damages under the Employers' Liability Act or at Common Law, or (c) payments made under section 34 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1906, or (d) compensation for accidents which occurred prior to 1st July, 1907.

(v.) Returns to include only Payments under Act.—In calculating the figures as to compensation paid, the employer is to take into account only the amount actually paid by him (or by an employer's association or mutual indemnity or other insurance company on his behalf) under the Act to the worker. In particular, he must not take into account either (a) any benefits given to the worker over and above those provided for by the Act, or (b) costs incurred by him in connection with legal proceedings or otherwise, or (c) amounts received by him by way of indemnity from third parties, or (d) amounts received by him from, or paid by him to, other employers, under sub-section (1) (c) (iii.) of section 8 (industrial diseases) of the Act.

(vi.) Returns by Insurance Companies on behalf of Employers.—An employer insured against his liabilities under the Act in a mutual indemnity or other insurance company, or belonging to an association of employers which deals on behalf of its members with claims for compensation, will not be required to make a separate return, if the company in which he is insured, or the association to which he belongs, is under an arrangement with the Home Office to make returns of the whole of the prescribed particulars on behalf of the employers insured or represented by it; provided he states in the form issued to him from the Home Office the name of the company or association in which he is insured or to which he belongs and his policy number (or if he has been insured during the year in more than one company, the name of each company and the number of each policy) and returns the form to the Home Office. If the employer is insured with a company, or belongs to an association, which is under an arrangement with the Home Office to supply part of the particulars prescribed, e.g., the particulars in Part 2 only, the employer will only be required to furnish a return of the remaining particulars. Otherwise, the employer must make the whole return, obtaining any particulars required from the company or association.

(vii.) Returns by Employers partly Insured.—An employer insured for part of the year only, must make a return for the part of the year during which he was uninsured, and must state the period for which the return is made, and the name of the insurance company, &c., in which he was insured for the remainder of the year.

Similarly, if an employer is insured for part only of the persons employed in his business, or for fatal cases but not for disablement cases, or for accidents but not for industrial diseases—he must make a return for the part of his liability not covered by insurance, and specify in respect of what part of his liability the return is made.

(viii.) Number of Persons Employed.—The number of persons employed, which is to be stated in Part 1 (b) of the return, must be the average number employed throughout the year, e.g., two persons employed for six months each are to be counted as one person employed.

(ix.) Blanks in Return.—In filling up the form, no blanks must be left. Columns in which there are no entries to be made should have "Nil" written across them. If no compensation at all has been paid during the year, the particulars in Part 1 must be filled in, and the words "No compensation paid" written across the columns in Part 2.

(x.) Outside Workers in Factories.—Persons employed in the business of the factory whose duties take them wholly or partly outside the factory, such as carters, should be included in the return, but their number should be stated separately in Part 1 (b) of the return under the heading of "Outside workers." "Outworkers" (i.e., persons to whom articles or materials are given out to be made up, finished, cleaned, &c., &c., on other premises) are not to be included.

(xi.) Shipping.—Vessels employed solely on inland waters are not to be included in the return.

If no paid hands have been employed during the year, or if (in the case of steam fishing vessels) the persons employed are paid by the share, a statement to that effect is to be made in Part 1 (b) of the return. If part only of the crew are paid hands, the number must be stated separately.

INTRODUCTORY CHAPTER.

General Observations on the Special Jurisdiction given to the County Court by Special Statutes.

Numerous statutes, other than those which deal exclusively with county courts or their jurisdiction, have from time to time been passed since 1846 which confer some jurisdiction, or impose some duty, on county courts or their judges or their registrars. These jurisdictions and duties have been conferred without regard to any recognised system, hence it is most difficult to classify or arrange the Acts which confer them in any satisfactory manner. The obligations created or dealt with by these special statutes are of a most varied kind, giving to county courts a jurisdiction sometimes limited and sometimes unlimited, sometimes exclusive of and sometimes concurrent with the High Court. In addition certain statutes of general application, but frequently used in county courts, such as the Sale of Goods Act are set out in different parts of this book, and will be found in the following list of statutes. The War Emergency Statutes are also included in the list.

In editions of the practice prior to that of 1914 it had been considered that a question of first importance for a practitioner was to know the nature and extent of the jurisdiction; consequently, so far as any classification could be attempted, jurisdiction was made the basis of that classification. But this classification, though most instructive to the student who desired to make himself master of the subject of county court jurisdiction, was found not to be convenient for those practitioners who in the press of business desired to ascertain as quickly as possible the jurisdiction and practice of the county court on any one particular statute.

It was therefore decided in all future editions to alter the arrangement of the practice and to deal with each subject in alphabetical order, bringing the notes, the Acts and the rules as far as possible together, setting out in notes to each statute the limit (if any) to the jurisdiction given to the county court, in which court proceedings ought to be brought, and whether those proceedings should be by action or petition, whether an appeal lay to the High Court, and how that appeal ought to be presented. As the classification of the statutes according to the jurisdiction they respectively confer is interesting and instructive, a list of the statutes thus classified is added at the end of these observations.

Appeal.]—The question of whether an appeal could be prosecuted was at one time a matter of considerable difficulty, but is much simplified since The Delano (C. A.), (1895) P. 40 ; 64 L. J. P. 8, in which case the Court of Appeal decided that wherever the words of sect. 120 of the County Courts Act, 1888, were wide enough to include a case under a special Act, the right of appeal was given by that section in every action or matter which could come before a county court. As, by sect. 186 of the County Courts Act, 1888, "action" includes suit and means every proceeding which may be commenced by plaint, and "matter" means every proceeding which may be commenced otherwise than by plaint, it will be at once realised how wide a field is covered by the Delano decision (see Williams v. Wallis & Cox, (1914) 2 K. B. 478; 83 L. J. K. B. 1296. Where the special Act does give an appeal it is now settled that the appeal must be by motion (Kirkheaton Local Board v. Ainley (C. A.), (1892) 2 Q. B. 274 ; 61 L. J. Q. B. 812).

Prohibition.]—The general power which the High Court possesses to restrain all inferior courts from exceeding their jurisdiction no doubt enables it to restrain by prohibition any excess of jurisdiction under any special Act, whether the jurisdiction be concurrent or exclusive (Hull v. McFarlane, (1857) 2 C. B. N. S. 796 ; 27 L. J. (N. S.) C. P. 41, where it seems to have been assumed that prohibition may be ordered in the mode prescribed by sect. 128 of the County Courts Act, 1888, instead of in the more cumbrous method still prevailing for other cases ; Smith v. Pryse, (1857) 7 E. & B. 339 ; 26 L. J. (N. S.) Q. B. 95).

Order in lieu of Mandamus.]—Whether a judge can be compelled by order in lieu of by mandamus to do an act to the performance of which a suitor is entitled is not clear, but it seems to have been so considered in a case under the Bills of Exchange Act (Holborow v. Jones, (1868) L. R. 4 C. P. 14 ; 38 L. J. (N. S.) C. P. 22) ; whilst where a county court judge refused to hear disputes which he was bound to hear under the terms of a local Act, it was held that mandamus and not an order was the proper remedy (Re Brighton Sewers Act, (1882) 9 Q. B. D. 723).

In what Court Proceedings commenced.]—Where the special Act is silent as to the court in which proceedings under it may be brought, the safest course is to proceed under sect. 74 of the County Courts Act, 1888, in the court of the district in which the defendant dwells or carries on business. In The Hero, (1891) P. 294; 60 L. J. P. 99, it was held that the general provisions of the said sect. 74 gave jurisdiction in admiralty to the court in which the defendant carried on business, although the Admiralty Jurisdiction Acts contain express provisions inconsistent with such general provisions.

When by Action and when by Petition.]—The general practice of the court prescribed by the rules applies to all proceedings authorised by any Act to be commenced or taken in a county court, except in so far as such practice may be inconsistent with the provisions of any such Act or of any particular rules made as to the procedure under any such Act (Order L. r. 36). It is also provided that where by any Act, for which particular rules have not been prescribed, proceedings are authorised or directed to be taken in a county court, the proceedings must be commenced by action where the object of the proceedings is to obtain relief against any person, or to compel any person to do or abstain from doing any act. Where there is no person against whom an action can be brought, proceedings must be taken either by petition or in accordance with the rules for the time being in force as to interlocutory applications, and must be supported by affidavit; the judge has power, in any case in which an interlocutory application is made, to direct an application to be filed (Order L. r. 35).

The Act and rules help one step further by providing that the word "action" means every proceeding which may be commenced by plaint (51 & 52 Vict. c. 43, s. 186). It may therefore shortly be said that wherever there is anyone who can be made defendant the proceeding should be by action commenced by plaint in the ordinary way. Where there is no such person then the proceeding should be as provided by Order L. r. 35 (above).

Classification.]—The following is a classification of the statutes giving special jurisdiction to county courts or those with which they are often called upon to deal:—

AGRICULTURAL HOLDINGS ACT, 1914.

4 & 5 GEO. V. c. 7 (31ST JULY, 1914).

Jurisdiction.]—Under the Agricultural Holdings Acts, 1908 and 1914, which repealed the Agricultural Holdings Acts, 1883, 1900 and 1906, and the Market Gardeners Compensation Act, 1895, the county courts exercise a jurisdiction identical with that which they exercised under the Agricultural Holdings Act, 1900, and the Market Gardeners Compensation Act, 1905, which is exclusive.

The cases in which the county court has jurisdiction may be classed under four heads :—

A. As to arbitration and awards, in deciding points of law submitted by the arbitrator in the form of a special case (sect. 13 (3)); in the removal of an arbitrator who has misconducted himself (Schedule II. (6)); in directing an arbitrator on the application of either party to state a special case on any question of law arising in an arbitration (Schedule II. (9)); in setting aside an award when an arbitrator has misconducted himself or when an arbitration or award has been improperly procured (Schedule II. (13)); and in the taxation by the registrar, subject to review by the judge, of the costs of and incidental to an arbitration or award (Schedule II. (14)).

B. In enforcing payment of compensation awarded (sect. 14).

C. In deciding disputes as to distresses. These may also be determined by a court of summary jurisdiction (sect. 30; Order XL. r. 8, p. 1739).

D. To appoint, where necessary, a guardian of an infant or person of unsound mind (sect. 32); and to take separate examinations of married women under the Act (sect. 33).

Procedure.] — For procedure in the arbitration, see sect. 13 and Schedule II.; in the county court, see Order XL., post, p. 1732. Proceedings are to be taken in the county court within the district of which the holding, or the larger part thereof, is situate (sect. 48).

Practice.]—For the practice in county court, see Order XL., p. 1732, viz. for—Appointment or change of guardian (see Rule 1).

Application for order to state a special case and the statement and hearing thereof (see Rules 2, 3, and Forms 415, 416, 417).

Application for removal of arbitrator or to set aside an award (see Rule 4, Forms 418, 419, 420).

Application for taxation of costs of arbitration (Rules 5, 6, Forms 423, 424).

Application for the recovery of money, awarded or agreed to be paid (Rules 7, 8, Forms 421, 422).

Appeal from county court judge on case stated by an arbitrator is to the Court of Appeal whose decision is final (sect. 13 (3)) (see procedure in such appeal, R. S. C. Order 58, r. 20), ante, p. 229, in other cases to Divisional Court; see Williams v. Wallis & Cox, (1914) 2 K. B. 478; 83 L. J. K. B. 1296.

COMPENSATION FOR IMPROVEMENTS ON HOLDINGS.

Right of tenant to compensation for improvements.

1.—(1) Where a tenant of a holding has made thereon any improvement comprised in the first schedule to this Act he shall, subject as in this Act mentioned, be entitled, at the determination of a tenancy, on quitting his holding to obtain from the landlord as compensation under this Act for the improvement such sum as fairly represents the value of the improvement to an incoming tenant.

(2) In the ascertainment of the amount of the compensation payable to a tenant under this section there shall be taken into account—

(a) Any benefit which the landlord has given or allowed to the tenant in consideration of the tenant executing the improvement; and

(b) As respects manuring as defined by this Act, the value of the manure required by the contract of tenancy or by custom to be returned to the holding in respect of any crops sold off or removed from the holding within the last two years of the tenancy or other less time for which the tenancy has endured, not exceeding the value of the manure which would have been produced by the consumption on the holding of the crops so sold off or removed.

(3) Nothing in this section shall prejudice the right of a tenant to claim any compensation to which he may be entitled under custom, agreement, or otherwise, in lieu of any compensation provided by this section.

Consent of landlord as to improvement in First Schedule, Part I.

2. Compensation under this Act shall not be payable in respect of any improvement comprised in Part I. of the first schedule hereto, unless the landlord of the holding has, previously to the execution of the improvement, consented in writing to the making of the improvement, and any such consent may be given by the landlord unconditionally, or upon such terms as to compensation or otherwise as may be agreed upon between the landlord and the tenant, and if any such agreement is made, any compensation payable under the agreement shall be substituted for compensation under this Act.

A consent in writing given under the terms of a lease (and semble, a similar consent under the Agricultural Holdings Act, 1908) by a landlord to a tenant making improvements during his tenancy, for which improvements, being made with such consent, he becomes entitled to compensation, is a term of the tenancy within a condition of sale affecting purchasers with notice of the terms of all existing tenancies; and if any claim for compensation for such improvements arises after the date fixed for completion of the sale, it must be borne by the purchaser. Derby (Earl of) and Fergusson's Contract, In re, (1912) 1 Ch. 479; (1911) 81 L. J. Ch. 567.

Notice to landlord as to improvement in First Schedule, Part II.

3.—(1) Compensation under this Act shall not be payable in respect of any improvement comprised in Part II. of the first schedule hereto, unless the tenant of the holding has, not more than three nor less than two months before beginning to execute the improvement, given to the landlord notice in writing of his intention so to do, and of the manner in which he proposes to do the intended work, and upon such notice being given, the landlord and the tenant may agree on the terms as to compensation or otherwise on which the improvement is to be executed.

(2) If any such agreement is made, any compensation payable under the agreement shall be substituted for compensation under this Act.

(3) In default of any such agreement the landlord may, unless the notice of the tenant is previously withdrawn, execute the improvement in any reasonable and proper manner which he thinks fit, and recover from the tenant as rent a sum not exceeding five per cent. per annum on the outlay incurred, or not exceeding such annual sum payable for a period of twenty-five years as will repay that outlay in that period, with interest at the rate of three per cent. per annum:

Provided that, if the landlord fails to execute the improvement within a reasonable time, the tenant may execute the improvement, and shall in respect thereof be entitled to compensation under this Act.

(4) The landlord and the tenant may by the contract of tenancy or otherwise agree to dispense with any notice under this section, and any such agreement may provide for anything for which an agreement after notice under this section may provide, and in such case shall be of the same validity and effect as such last-mentioned agreement.

Agreements as to improvement in First Schedule, Part III.

4. Where any agreement in writing secures to the tenant of a holding for any improvement comprised in Part III. of the first schedule hereto, fair and reasonable compensation, having regard to the circumstances existing at the time of making the agreement, the compensation so secured shall as respects that improvement be substituted for compensation under this Act.

Avoidance of contract inconsistent with Act.

5. Subject to the foregoing provisions of this Act, any contract (whether under seal or not) made by a tenant of a holding, by virtue of which he is deprived of his right to claim compensation under this Act in respect of any improvement comprised in the first schedule hereto, shall be void so far as it deprives him of that right.

Determination of claims to compensation.

6.—(1) If the tenant of a holding claims to be entitled to compensation, whether under this Act, or under custom or agreement, or otherwise, in respect of any improvement comprised in the first schedule to this Act, and if the landlord and tenant fail to agree as to the amount and time and mode of payment of the compensation, the difference shall be settled by arbitration.

(2) A claim by the tenant of a holding for compensation under this Act in respect of any improvement comprised in the first schedule to this Act shall not be made unless notice of intention to make the claim has been given before the determination of the tenancy :

Provided that, where the claim relates to an improvement executed after the determination of the tenancy but while the tenant lawfully remains in occupation of part of the holding, the notice may be given at any time before the tenant quits that part.

(3) Where any claim by a tenant of a holding for compensation in respect of any improvement comprised in the first schedule to this Act is referred to arbitration, and any sum is claimed to be due to the tenant from the landlord in respect of any breach of contract or otherwise in respect of the holding, or to the landlord from the tenant in respect of any waste wrongfully committed or permitted by the tenant, or in respect of breach of contract or otherwise in respect of the holding, the party claiming that sum may, if he thinks fit, by notice in writing given to the other party not later than seven days after the appointment of the arbitrator, require that the arbitration shall extend to the determination of the claim to that sum, and thereupon the provisions of this Act with respect to arbitration shall apply accordingly.

(4) Where a claim for compensation under this Act has been referred to arbitration, and the compensation payable under an agreement is by this Act to be substituted for compensation under this Act, such compensation as is to be so substituted shall be awarded in respect of any improvements provided for by the agreement.

This section extends the subject matter of a claim; Holmes and Formby, In re, (1895) 1 Q. B. 174; 64 L. J. Q. B. 391 (where it was held that a landlord could not avail himself of a cross claim for waste and breach of covenant further than as a defence against a claim by the tenant) is no longer law. Under the Act of 1883 it was held that a claim for compensation which had not been assessed by arbitration under the Act could not be set up by way of set-off or counter-claim in an action by the landlord (Gas Light Co. v. Holloway, (1885) 52 L. T. 434).

Right of tenant who has paid compensation to outgoing tenant.

7. Where an incoming tenant of a holding has, with the consent in writing of his landlord, paid to an outgoing tenant any compensation payable under or in pursuance of this Act in respect of the whole or part of any improvement, the incoming tenant shall be entitled on quitting the holding to claim compensation in respect of the improvement or part in like manner, if at all, as the outgoing tenant would have been entitled if he had remained tenant of the holding, and quitted it at the time at which the incoming tenant quits it.

Provision as to change of tenancy.

8. A tenant who has remained in his holding during two or more tenancies shall not, on quitting his holding, be deprived of his right to claim compensation under this Act in respect of improvements by reason only that the improvements were not made during the tenancy on the determination of which he quits the holding.

Restriction in respect of improvements by tenant about to quit.

9.—(1) A tenant of a holding shall not be entitled to compensation under this Act in respect of any improvements, other than manuring as defined by this Act, begun by him,—

(a) In the case of a tenant from year to year, within one year before he quits the holding, or at any time after he has given or received notice to quit which results in his quitting the holding; and

(b) In any other case, within one year before the expiration of his contract of tenancy:

Provided that this section shall not apply in the case of any improvement—

(i.) Where the tenant, previously to beginning the improvement, has served notice on his landlord of his intention to begin it, and the landlord has either assented or has failed for a month after the receipt of the notice to object to the making of the improvement; or

(ii.) In the case of a tenant from year to year, where the tenant has begun the improvement during the last year of his tenancy, and, in pursuance of a notice to quit thereafter given by the landlord, quits his holding at the expiration of that year. Section 9.

Compensation for Damage by Game and for Disturbance.

10.—(1) Where a tenant of a holding has sustained damage to his crops from game the right to kill and take which is vested neither in him nor in anyone claiming under him other than the landlord, and which the tenant has not permission in writing to kill, he shall subject as hereinafter mentioned be entitled to compensation from his landlord for such damage if it exceeds in amount the sum of one shilling per acre of the area over which the damage extends, and any agreement to the contrary, or in limitation of such compensation, shall be void. Compensation for damage by game.

(2) The amount of compensation payable under this section shall, in default of agreement made after the damage has been suffered, be determined by arbitration, but no compensation shall be recoverable under this section unless notice in writing is given to the landlord as soon as may be after the damage was first observed by the tenant and a reasonable opportunity is given to the landlord to inspect the damage—and unless notice in writing of the claim, together with the particulars thereof, is given to the landlord within one month after the expiration of the calendar year, or such other period of twelve months as by agreement between the landlord and tenant may be substituted therefor, in respect of which the claim is made.

(a) in the case of damage to a growing crop, before the crop is begun to be reaped, raised, or consumed; and

(3) Where the landlord proves that, under a contract of tenancy made before the commencement of this Act, any compensation for damage by game is payable by him, or that in fixing the rent to be paid under such contract allowance in respect of such damage to an agreed amount was expressly made, the arbitrator shall make such deduction from the compensation which would otherwise be payable under this section as may appear just.

(4) Where the right to kill and take the game is vested in some person other than the landlord, the landlord shall be entitled to be indemnified by such other person against all claims for compensation under this section.

Section 10.

(5) For the purposes of this section the expression "game" means deer, pheasants, partridges, grouse, and black game.

Compensation for unreasonable disturbance.

11. Where—

(a) the landlord of a holding, without good and sufficient cause, and for reasons inconsistent with good estate management, terminates the tenancy by notice to quit, or, having been requested in writing, at least one year before the expiration of a tenancy, to grant a renewal thereof, refuses to do so : or

(b) it has been proved that an increase of rent is demanded from the tenant of a holding, and that such increase was demanded by reason of an increase in the value of the holding due to improvements which have been executed by or at the cost of the tenant, and for which he has not, either directly or indirectly, received an equivalent from the landlord, and such demand results in the tenant quitting the holding, the tenant upon quitting the holding shall, in addition to the compensation (if any) to which he may be entitled in respect of improvements, and notwithstanding any agreement to the contrary, be entitled to compensation for the loss or expense directly attributable to his quitting the holding which the tenant may unavoidably incur upon or in connection with the sale or removal of his household goods, or his implements of husbandry, produce, or farm stock, on or used in connection with the holding :

Provided that no compensation under this section shall be payable—

(a) unless the tenant has given to the landlord a reasonable opportunity of making a valuation of such goods, implements, produce, and stock as aforesaid ;

(b) unless the tenant has within two months after he has received notice to quit or a refusal to grant a renewal of the tenancy, as the case may be, given to the landlord notice in writing of his intention to claim compensation under this section ;

(c) Where the tenant with whom a contract of tenancy was made has died within three months before the date of the notice to quit, or in the case of a lease for years before the refusal to grant a renewal ;

(d) if the claim for compensation is not made within three months after the time at which the tenant quits the holding (a).

In the event of any difference arising as to any matter under this section the difference shall, in default of agreement, be settled by arbitration. Section 11.

As to "good and sufficient cause," see In re Arbitration between Bonnett and Fowler (C. A.), (1913) 2 K. B. 537; 82 L. J. K. B. 713.

NOTE.—Since the 31st July, 1914, sect. 11 has been extended by sect. 1 of the 4 & 5 Geo. V. c. 7, to include compensation for disturbance in connection with sale, see p. 1731.

COMPENSATION IN CASE OF TENANCY UNDER MORTGAGOR.

12. Where a person occupies a holding under a contract of tenancy with a mortgagor, which is not binding on the mortgagee, then— Compensation to tenants when mortgagee takes possession.

(1) The occupier shall, as against the mortgagee who takes possession, be entitled to any compensation which is, or would but for the mortgagee taking possession be, due to the occupier from the mortgagor as respects crops, improvements, tillages, or other matters connected with the holding, whether under this Act or custom or an agreement authorised by this Act;

(2) If the contract of tenancy is for a tenancy from year to year or for a term of years, not exceeding twenty-one, at a rackrent, the mortgagee shall, before he deprives the occupier of possession otherwise than in accordance with the contract of tenancy, give to the occupier six months' notice in writing of his intention so to do, and, if he so deprives him, compensation shall be due to the occupier for his crops, and for any expenditure upon the land which he has made in the expectation of remaining in the holding for the full term of his contract of tenancy, in so far as any improvement resulting therefrom is not exhausted at the time of his being so deprived.

(3) Any sum ascertained to be due to the occupier for compensation, or for any costs connected therewith, may be set off against any rent or other sum due from him in respect of the holding, but unless so set off shall, as against the mortgagee, be charged and recovered in accordance with the provisions of this Act relating to the recovery of compensation due from a landlord who is a trustee.

PROCEDURE IN ARBITRATIONS.

13.—(1) All questions which under this Act or under the contract of tenancy are referred to arbitration shall, whether the matter to which the arbitration relates arose before or after the passing of this Act, be determined, notwithstanding any agreement under the contract of tenancy or otherwise providing for a different method of arbitration, by a single arbitrator in accord- Procedure in arbitrations.

Section 13.

ance with the provisions set out in the second schedule to this Act.

(2) Where any claim which is referred to arbitration relates to an improvement executed or matter arising after the determination of the tenancy, but while the tenant lawfully remains in occupation of part of the holding, the arbitrator may, if he thinks fit, make a separate award in respect of that claim.

(3) If in any arbitration under this Act the arbitrator states a case for the opinion of the county court on any question of law, the opinion of the court on any question so stated shall be final, unless within the time and in accordance with the conditions prescribed by rules of the Supreme Court either party appeals to the Court of Appeal, from whose decision no appeal shall lie.

An appeal lies to a Divisional Court under s. 120 of the County Courts Act, 1888, upon a question of law in an application to set aside an award (Williams v. Wallis & Cox, (1914) 2 K. B. 478; 83 L. J. K. B. 1296).

(4) The Arbitration Act, 1889, shall not apply to any arbitration under this Act.

(5) Repealed.

Recovery of compensation and other sums due.

14. Where any sum agreed or awarded under this Act to be paid for compensation costs or otherwise by a landlord or tenant of a holding is not paid within fourteen days after the time when the payment becomes due, it shall, subject as in this Act provided, be recoverable upon order made by the county court as money ordered by a county court under its ordinary jurisdiction to be paid is recoverable.

That is as a judgment debt can be recovered; as to this, see County Courts Act, 1888, s. 146, Order XXV., and Order XL., r. 7.

Power for landlord on paying compensation to obtain charge.

15.—(1) A landlord, on paying to the tenant the amount due to him under this Act, or under custom or agreement, or otherwise in respect of compensation for an improvement comprised in the first schedule hereto, or on expending after notice given in accordance with this Act such amount as may be necessary to execute an improvement comprised in Part II. of the first schedule hereto, shall be entitled to obtain from the Board an order in favour of himself, his executors, administrators, and assigns, charging the holding, or any part thereof, with repayment of the amount paid or expended, with such interest, and by such instalments, and with such directions for giving effect to the charge, as the Board think fit.

Landlord includes his executor (Gough v. Gough (C. A.), (1891) 2 Q. B. 665; 60 L. J. Q. B. 726).

(2) Where the landlord obtaining the charge is not absolute owner of the holding for his own benefit, no instalment or interest shall be made payable after the time when the improvement in respect whereof compensation is paid will, in the opinion of the Board, have become exhausted. Section 15.

(3) Where the estate or interest of a landlord is determinable or liable to forfeiture by reason of his creating or suffering any charge thereon, that estate or interest shall not be determined or forfeited by reason of his obtaining a charge under this Act, anything in any deed, will, or other instrument to the contrary thereof notwithstanding.

16. The sum charged by the order of the Board under this Act shall be a charge on the holding, or the part thereof charged, for the landlord's interest therein and for all interests therein subsequent to that of the landlord; but so that, in any case where the landlord's interest is an interest in a leasehold, the charge shall not extend beyond the interest of the landlord, his executors, administrators, and assigns. Incidence of charge.

17. Any company now or hereafter incorporated by Parliament, and having power to advance money for the improvement of land, may take an assignment of any charge made by the Board under this Act, or made under any enactment hereby repealed, upon such terms and conditions as may be agreed upon between the company and the person entitled to the charge, and may assign any charge so acquired by them. Advance made by a company.

18. Where a charge may be made under this Act for compensation due under an award, the person making the award shall, at the request and cost of the person entitled to obtain the charge, certify the amount to be charged and the term for which the charge may properly be made, having regard to the time at which each improvement in respect of which compensation is awarded is to be deemed to be exhausted. Certificate as to charges.

19. A charge made by the Board under this Act shall be a land charge within the meaning of the Land Charges Registration and Searches Act, 1888, as amended by any subsequent enactment, and may be registered accordingly. Registration of charges. 51 & 52 Vict. c. 51.

Capital Money applicable for Compensation.

20. Capital money arising under the Settled Land Acts, 1882 to 1890, may be applied— Capital money applicable for compensation.

(1) In payment as for an improvement authorised by those Acts of any money expended and costs incurred by a landlord under or in pursuance of this Act or any enactment hereby repealed, or under custom or agreement or otherwise, in or about the execution of any improvement comprised in Part I. or Part II. of the first schedule hereto; and

(2) In discharge of any charge in respect of any such improvement created on a holding under this Act or any enactment hereby repealed, as if the charge were an incumbrance authorised by those Acts to be discharged out of that capital money.

Tenant's property in fixtures and buildings.

21.—(1) Any engine, machinery, fencing, or other fixture affixed to a holding by a tenant, and any building erected by him thereon for which he is not under this Act or otherwise entitled to compensation, and which is not so affixed or erected in pursuance of some obligation in that behalf or instead of some fixture or building belonging to the landlord, shall be the property of and be removable by the tenant before or within a reasonable time after the determination of the tenancy:

Provided that—

(i.) Before the removal of any fixture or building the tenant shall pay all rent owing by him, and shall perform or satisfy all other his obligations to the landlord in respect of the holding:

(ii.) In the removal of any fixture or building the tenant shall not do any avoidable damage to any other building or other part of the holding:

(iii.) Immediately after the removal of any fixture or building the tenant shall make good all damage occasioned to any other building or other part of the holding by the removal:

(iv.) The tenant shall not remove any fixture or building without giving one month's previous notice in writing to the landlord of his intention to remove it:

(v.) At any time before the expiration of the notice of removal the landlord, by notice in writing given by him to the tenant, may elect to purchase any fixture or building comprised in the notice of removal, and any fixture or building thus elected to be purchased shall be left by the tenant, and shall become the property of the landlord, who shall pay to the tenant the fair value thereof to an incoming tenant of the holding; and any difference as to the value shall be settled by arbitration.

(2) The provisions of this section shall apply to a fixture or building acquired since the thirty-first day of December nineteen hundred by a tenant in like manner as they apply to a fixture or building affixed or erected by a tenant, but shall not apply to any fixture or building affixed or erected before the first day of January eighteen hundred and eighty-four. Section 21.

MISCELLANEOUS RIGHTS OF LANDLORD AND TENANT.

Time of notice to quit.

22. Where a half-year's notice, expiring with a year of tenancy is by law necessary and sufficient for the determination of a tenancy of a holding from year to year, a year's notice so expiring shall by virtue of this Act be necessary and sufficient for such determination, unless the landlord and the tenant agree in writing that this section shall not apply, in which case a half-year's notice shall be sufficient; but nothing in this section shall extend to a case where a receiving order in bankruptcy is made against the tenant.

This section reproduces sect. 33 of the 1883 Act which was held not to apply to any demise in which any stipulation for the determination of the tenancy by notice is contained (Barlow v. Teal (C. A.), (1885) 15 Q. B. D. 501; 54 L. J. Q. B. 564). Where by custom a tenant was entitled to hold part of the land for four months after the expiration of his notice to quit, it was held that his tenancy was not determined until the expiration of the four months, hence notice of claim for compensation given two months before that time was good (In re Paul, (1889) 24 Q. B. D. 247; 59 L. J. Q. B. 30). In Morley v. Carter, (1898) 1 Q. B. 8; 66 L. J. Q. B. 843, where the tenancy of the land expired on February 2nd, and of the buildings on May 1st, it was held that the notice ought to be given with reference to the first date, establishing the principle that the expiration of the tenancy of the land determines when the notice should be given.

A notice to quit under sect. 83 of the 1883 Act might be sent by registered letter (see sect. 45 of this Act): Van Grutten v. Trevenen (C. A.), (1902) 2 K. B. 82; 71 L. J. K. B. 544.

Resumption of possession for cottages, &c.

23. Where a notice to quit is given by the landlord of a holding to a tenant from year to year with a view to the use of land for any of the following purposes:—

(i.) The erection of farm labourers' cottages or other houses with or without gardens;

(ii.) The provision of gardens for farm labourers' cottages or other houses;

(iii.) The provision of allotments for labourers;

(iv.) The provision of small holdings as defined by the Small Holdings and Allotments Act, 1907; 7 Edw. VII. c. 54.

(v.) The planting of trees;

(vi.) The opening or working of any coal, ironstone, limestone, brick earth, or other mineral, or of a stone quarry, clay, sand, or gravel pit, or the construction of any works or buildings to be used in connection therewith;

(vii.) The making of a watercourse or reservoir;

Section 23.

(viii.) The making of any road, railway, tramroad, siding, canal, or basin, or any wharf, pier, or other work connected therewith; and the notice states that it is given with a view to any such use—

(a) it shall, by virtue of this Act, be no objection to the notice that it relates to part only of the holding; and

(b) the provisions of this Act respecting compensation shall apply as if the part to which the notice relates were a separate holding; and

(c) the tenant shall be entitled to a reduction of rent proportionate to the part to which the notice relates, and in respect of any depreciation of the value to him of the residue of the holding caused by the severance, or by the use to be made of the part severed, and the amount of that reduction shall be settled as in case of compensation under this Act:

Provided that the tenant may at any time within twenty-eight days after service of the notice to quit serve on the landlord a notice in writing to the effect that he accepts it as a notice to quit the entire holding, to take effect at the expiration of the then current year of tenancy; and the notice to quit shall have effect accordingly.

24. The landlord of a holding or any person authorised by him may at all reasonable times enter on the holding for the purpose of viewing the state of the holding.

Penal rent and liquidated damages.

25. Notwithstanding any provision in a contract of tenancy making the tenant of a holding liable to pay a higher rent or other liquidated damages in the event of any breach or nonfulfilment of a term or condition in the contract, a landlord shall not be entitled to recover, by distress or otherwise, any sum in consequence of any such breach or nonfulfilment in excess of the damage actually suffered by him in consequence of the breach or nonfulfilment.

Provided that this section shall not apply to any term or condition in a contract against the breaking up of permanent pasture, the grubbing of underwoods, or the felling, cutting, lopping, or injuring of trees, or regulating the burning of heather.

NOTE.—Penalty cannot be recovered, but liquidated damages can to extent of the actual damage suffered (Willson v. Love, (1896) 1 Q. B. 626; 65 L. J. Q. B. 474).

Freedom of cropping and disposal of produce.

26.—(1) Notwithstanding any custom of the country, or the provisions of any contract of tenancy or agreement respecting the method of cropping of arable lands, or the disposal of crops, a tenant of a holding shall have full right to practise any system of cropping of the arable land on the holding and to dispose of the

roduce of the holding without incurring any penalty, forfeiture, r liability :

Provided that he shall previously have made, or, as soon as may e, shall make, suitable and adequate provision to protect the olding from injury or deterioration, which provision shall in the ase of disposal of the produce of the holding consist in the return o the holding of the full equivalent manurial value to the holding f all crops sold off or removed from the holding in contravention f the custom, contract, or agreement :

This sub-section shall not apply—

(a) in the case of a tenancy from year to year, as respects the year before the tenant quits the holding or any period after he has given or received notice to quit which results in his quitting the holding ; or

(b) in any other case, as respects the year before the expiration of the contract of tenancy.

NOTE.—Where there is an agreement prohibiting defendant from selling or disposing of hay, straw, or roots during the term, this section does not enable him to sell any such produce off the holding after he has given or received notice to quit which results in his quitting the holding, even though such produce existed before the last year of the tenancy (Meggeson v. Groves, (1917) 86 L. J. Ch. 145).

(2) If the tenant exercises his rights under this section in such a manner as to injure or deteriorate the holding, or to be likely to injure or deteriorate the holding, the landlord shall, without prejudice to any other remedy which may be open to him, be entitled to recover damages in respect of such injury or deterioration at any time, and, should the case so require, to obtain an injunction restraining the exercise of the rights under this section in that manner, and the amount of such damages may, in default of agreement, be determined by arbitration.

(3) A tenant shall not be entitled to any compensation in respect of improvements comprised in Part III. of the first schedule to this Act which have been made for the purpose of making such provision to protect the holding from injury or deterioration as is required by this section.

(4) In this section the expression "arable land" shall not include land in grass which by the terms of any contract of tenancy is to be retained in the same condition throughout the tenancy.

Record of holding.

27. If at the commencement of a tenancy of a holding entered into after the commencement of this Act either party so requires, a record of the condition of the buildings, fences, gates, roads, drains, ditches, and cultivation of the holding shall be made within three months after the commencement of the tenancy by a person to be appointed in default of agreement by the Board, and in default of agreement the cost of making such record shall be borne by the landlord and the tenant in equal proportions.

Section 27.

Distress.

Limitation of distress in respect of amount and time.

28. It shall not be lawful for a landlord entitled to the rent of a holding to distrain for rent which became due in respect of that holding more than one year before the making of the distress :

Provided that, where it appears that according to the ordinary course of dealing between the landlord and the tenant of the holding the payment of rent has been deferred until the expiration of a quarter or half year after the date at which the rent legally became due, the rent shall for the purpose of this section be deemed to have become due at the expiration of that quarter or half year, and not at the date at which it legally became due.

This section reproduces in substance sect. 44 of the 1883 Act, which was held merely to take away the right of the landlord to distrain for rent which had been due for more than twelve months, but to leave him his other remedies. Thus, where by the course of dealing payment of rent due in advance on June 24th was deferred for three months, it was held that the landlord was enabled by the proviso in sect. 44 of the 1883 Act to distrain in the middle of September for two years' rent, one in arrear and one in advance (Ex parte Bull, (1887) 18 Q. B. D. 642; 56 L. J. Q. B. 270).

Limitation of distress in respect of things to be distrained.

29.—(1) Where live stock belonging to another person has been taken in by the tenant of a holding to be fed at a fair price, the stock shall not be distrained by the landlord for rent where there is other sufficient distress to be found, and, if so distrained by reason of other sufficient distress not being found, there shall not be recovered by that distress a sum exceeding the amount of the price agreed to be paid for the feeding, or any part thereof which remains unpaid.

(2) The owner of the stock may, at any time before it is sold, redeem the stock by paying to the distrainer a sum equal to such amount as aforesaid, and any payment so made to the distrainer shall be in full discharge as against the tenant of any sum of the like amount which would be otherwise due from the owner of the stock to the tenant in respect of the price of feeding.

(3) Any portion of the stock so long as it remains on the holding shall continue liable to be distrained for the amount for which the whole of the stock is distrainable.

(4) Agricultural or other machinery which is the property of a person other than the tenant, and is on the holding under an agreement with the tenant for the hire or use thereof in the conduct of his business, and live stock which is the property of a person other than the tenant and is on the holding solely for breeding purposes, shall not be distrained for rent.

"Fair price" in the 1883 Act was held to mean a "fair equivalent," so that cows agisted on terms that the agister should take payment in milk were privileged from distress to the extent mentioned in the section (London and Yorkshire Bank v. Belton, (1885) 15 Q. B. D. 457; 54 L. J. Q. B. 568). An "exclusive right to feed the grass on the land for four weeks" in consideration of 2*l.* was held not an agreement to agist cattle, but in the nature of rent for use and occupation, and not within protection given by the section (Masters v. Green, (1888) 20 Q. B. D. 807). Section 29 Notes.

30.—(1) Where any dispute arises—

(a) in respect of any distress having been levied on a holding contrary to the provisions of this Act; or the dispute may be heard and determined by the county court or by a court of summary jurisdiction, and any such court may make an order for restoration of any live stock or things unlawfully distrained, or may declare the price agreed to be paid for feeding, or may make any other order which justice requires.

(2) Any such dispute shall be deemed to be a matter in which a court of summary jurisdiction has authority by law to make an order on complaint in pursuance of the Summary Jurisdiction Acts; but any person aggrieved by any decision of a court of summary jurisdiction under this section may appeal to a court of quarter sessions.

Set-off of compensation against rent.

31. Where the compensation for any improvement due under this Act or any enactment repealed by this Act, or under custom or agreement, to a tenant of a holding has been ascertained before the landlord distrains for rent, the amount of the compensation may be set off against the rent, and the landlord shall not be entitled to distrain for more than the balance.

NOTE.—No set-off of unascertained claim (Gas Light Co. v. Holloway, (1885) 52 L. T. 434).

Appointment of guardian.

32. Where a landlord or a tenant is an infant without a guardian, or is of unsound mind, not so found by inquisition, the county court on the application of any person interested may appoint a guardian of the infant or person of unsound mind for the purposes of this Act, and may revoke the appointment and appoint another guardian if and as occasion requires.

Provisions respecting married women. 45 & 46 Vict. c. 75.

33. Where a woman married before the commencement of the Married Women's Property Act, 1882, is entitled to land, her title to which accrued before that commencement, then—

(a) if she is entitled to the land for her separate use and is not restrained from anticipation, she shall, for the purposes of this Act, be in respect of the land as if she were a feme sole; and

Section 33.

(b) in any other case her husband's concurrence shall be requisite, and she shall for the purposes of this Act be examined apart from him by the county court, or by the judge of the county court for the place where she is, touching her knowledge of the nature and effect of the intended Act, and it shall be ascertained that she is acting freely and voluntarily.

Provision as to limited owners.

34. Subject to the provisions of this Act in relation to Crown, duchy, ecclesiastical, and charity lands, a landlord of a holding, whatever may be his estate or interest in the holding, may give any consent, make any agreement, or do or have done to him any act in relation to improvements in respect of which compensation is payable under this Act, which he might give or make or do or have done to him if he were owner in fee simple, or, if his interest is an interest in a leasehold, were absolutely entitled to that leasehold.

Recovery of compensation, &c. from trustee.

35. Where any sum agreed or awarded to be paid for compensation, or any sum awarded under this Act to be paid by a landlord, is due from a landlord entitled to receive the rents and profits of the holding otherwise than for his own benefit, whether as trustee or in any other character, the sum due shall be charged and recovered as follows and not otherwise (that is to say) :—

(i.) The amount so due shall not be recoverable personally against the landlord, nor shall he be under any liability to pay that amount, but it shall be a charge on and recoverable against the holding only ;

(ii.) The landlord shall, either before or after having paid to the tenant the amount due to him, be entitled to obtain from the Board a charge on the holding to the amount of the sum which is required to be paid or which has been paid, as the case may be, to the tenant ;

(iii.) If the landlord neglects or fails to pay to the tenant the amount due to him for one month after it has become due, the tenant shall be entitled to obtain from the Board a charge on the holding to the amount of the sum due to him, and of all costs properly incurred by him in obtaining the charge ;

(iv.) Charges under this section shall be made in like manner as other charges under this Act.

Estimation of best rent.

36. In estimating the best rent, or reservation in the nature of rent, of a holding for the purposes of any Act of Parliament, deed, or other instrument, authorising a lease to be made, provided that the best rent, or reservation in the nature of rent, is reserved, it shall not be necessary to take into account against the tenant any increase in the value of the holding arising from any improvements made or paid for by the tenant. Section 36.

Crown or Duchy Lands.

37.—(1) This Act shall apply to land belonging to His Majesty in right of the Crown. Application to Crown lands.

(2) With respect to any such land, for the purposes of this Act, the Commissioners of Woods, or other the proper officer or body having charge of the land for the time being, or, in case there is no such officer or body, then such person as His Majesty may appoint in writing under the Royal Sign Manual, shall represent His Majesty, and shall be deemed to be the landlord.

(3) The power given to the Treasury by section 1 of the Crown Lands Act, 1866 (being a power to direct the cost of certain improvements to be charged to capital and repaid out of income) shall extend to any compensation under this Act payable by the Commissioners of Woods in respect of an improvement comprised in Part I. or Part II. of the first schedule hereto. 29 & 30 Vict. c. 62.

(4) Any compensation under this Act payable by those commissioners, in respect of an improvement comprised in Part III. of the first schedule hereto, shall be paid as part of the expenses of the management of the land revenues of the Crown.

(4) The amount of any compensation under this Act payable by the Chancellor of the Duchy in respect of an improvement comprised in Part III. of the first schedule to this Act shall be paid out of the annual revenues of the duchy.

39.—(1) This Act shall apply to land belonging to the Duchy of Cornwall. Application to land of Duchy of Cornwall.

(2) With respect to any such land, for the purposes of this Act, such person as the Duke of Cornwall, or the possessor for the time being of the Duchy of Cornwall, appoints, shall represent the Duke of Cornwall or other the possessor aforesaid, and be deemed to be the landlord, and may do any act or thing under this Act which a landlord is authorised or required to do thereunder.

(3) Any compensation under this Act payable by the Duke of Cornwall, or other the possessor aforesaid, in respect of an improvement comprised in Part I. or Part II. of the first schedule to this Act, shall be paid, and advances therefor made, in the manner and subject to the provisions of section 8 of the Duchy of Cornwall Management Act, 1863, with respect to improvements of land mentioned in that section.

Ecclesiastical and Charity Lands.

Application to ecclesiastical land.

40.—(1) Where lands are assigned or secured as the endowment of a see, the powers by this Act conferred on a landlord (other than that of entering on a holding for the purpose of viewing the state of the holding) shall not be exercised by the bishop in respect of those lands, except with the previous approval in writing of the Estates Committee of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners.

(2) Where a landlord is incumbent of an ecclesiastical benefice, the powers by this Act conferred on a landlord (other than as aforesaid) shall not be exercised by him in respect of the glebe land or other land belonging to the benefice, except with the previous approval in writing of the patron of the benefice, that is, the person or authority who, in case the benefice were vacant, would be entitled to present thereto, or of Queen Anne's Bounty.

(3) Queen Anne's Bounty may, if they think fit, on behalf of the incumbent, out of any money in their hands, pay to the tenant the amount of compensation due to him in respect of any improvement comprised in the first schedule hereto; and thereupon they may, instead of the incumbent, obtain from the Board a charge on the holding in respect thereof in favour of themselves, and every such charge shall be effectual notwithstanding any change of the incumbent.

Application to charity land.

41. The powers by this Act conferred on a landlord in respect of charging the land shall not be exercised by trustees for ecclesiastical or charitable purposes, except with the approval in writing of the Charity Commissioners or the Board of Education, as the case may require.

VII. c. 28.

(2) Where under a contract of tenancy current on the first day of January, eighteen hundred and ninety-six, a holding was at that date in use or cultivation as a market garden with the knowledge of the landlord, and the tenant thereof has then executed thereon, without having received previously to the execution thereof any written notice of dissent by the landlord, any improvement comprised in the third schedule to this Act, the provisions of this section shall apply, in respect of that holding, as if it had been agreed in writing after that date that the holding should be let or treated as a market garden, so however that the improvements in respect of which compensation is payable under those provisions as so applied shall include improvements executed before as well as improvements executed after that date.

(3) Where the land to which such agreement relates, or so used and cultivated, consists of part of a holding only, this section shall apply as if that part were a separate holding.

4. Every appointment, notice, revocation, and consent under this part of these rules must be in writing.

Time for Award.

5. The arbitrator shall make and sign his award within twenty-eight days of his appointment or within such longer period as the Board may (whether the time for making the award has expired or not) direct.

Removal of Arbitrator.

6. Where an arbitrator has misconducted himself the county court may remove him.

NOTE.—Rejection of evidence by an arbitrator may constitute misconduct (Williams v. Wallis & Cox, (1914) 2 K. B. 478; 83 L. J. K. B. 1296).

Evidence.

7. The parties to the arbitration, and all persons claiming through them respectively, shall, subject to any legal objection, submit to be examined by the arbitrator, on oath or affirmation, in relation to the matters in dispute, and shall, subject as aforesaid, produce before the arbitrator all samples, books, deeds, papers, accounts, writings, and documents, within their possession or power respectively, which may be required or called for, and do all other things which during the proceedings the arbitrator may require.

8. The arbitrator shall have power to administer oaths, and to take the affirmation of parties and witnesses appearing, and witnesses shall, if the arbitrator thinks fit, be examined on oath or affirmation.

9. 15. The arbitrator shall, in awarding costs, take into consideration the reasonableness or unreasonableness of the claim of either party, either in respect of amount or otherwise, and any unreasonable demand for particulars or refusal to supply particulars, and generally all the circumstances of the case, and may disallow the costs of any witness whom he considers to have been called unnecessarily, and any other costs which he considers to have been incurred unnecessarily (a).

NOTE.—(a) The discretion of the arbitrator as to costs is absolute, he being given absolute discretion by the Act itself (supra). Prevention of discharge of noxious or offensive gas in scheduled works.

7.—(1) The owner of any work specified in the first schedule to this Act (hereinafter referred to as a scheduled work) shall use the best practicable means for preventing the escape of noxious or offensive gases by the exit flue of any apparatus used in any process carried on in the work, and for preventing the discharge whether directly or indirectly, of such gases into the atmosphere, and for rendering such gases where discharged harmless and inoffensive, subject to the qualification that, on the basis of the amount of acid gas per cubic foot, no objection shall be taken under this section by an inspector—

(a) To any muriatic acid gas in the air, smoke, or gases discharged into the atmosphere by a chimney or other final outlet, where the amount of such acid gas in each cubic foot of air, smoke, or gases so discharged does not exceed the amount limited by the last preceding section :

(b) To any acid gases in the air, smoke, or gases discharged into the atmosphere by a chimney or other final outlet receiving the residual gases from any process for the concentration or distillation of sulphuric acid, where the total acidity of such acid gases (including those from the combustion of coal) in each cubic foot of air, smoke, or gases so discharged does not exceed what is equivalent to one grain and a half of sulphuric anhydride.

(2) If the owner of any such work fails, in the opinion of the court having cognizance of the matter, to use such means, he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding, in the case of the first offence, twenty pounds, and in the case of every subsequent offence, fifty pounds, with a further sum not exceeding five pounds for every day during which any such subsequent offence has continued.

Provisional Order to prevent discharge of noxious or offensive gas in cement and smelting works.

8.—(1) An inspector may inquire whether, in any works in which aluminous deposits are treated for the purpose of making cement (hereinafter called cement works) or in any works in which sulphide ores, including regulus, are calcined or smelted (hereinafter called smelting works), means can be adopted at a reasonable expense for preventing the discharge from the furnaces or chimneys of such works into the atmosphere of any noxious or offensive gas evolved in such works, or for rendering such gas where discharged harmless or inoffensive.

(2) Where it appears to the Local Government Board that such means can be adopted at a reasonable expense, the board may by order require the owners of such works to adopt the best practicable means for the purpose, and may by the order limit the amount or proportion, in the case of cement works or smelting works, of any noxious or offensive gas which is to be permitted to escape from such works into the chimney or into the atmosphere, and may also by the order extend to such works such provisions of this Act relating to scheduled works as they think fit.

(3) An order made under this section shall be provisional only, and shall not be of any validity until confirmed by Parliament, but when so confirmed shall have full effect, with such modifications as may be made therein by Parliament; and the expression "this Act" when used in this Act shall be deemed to include an order so confirmed, so far as is consistent with the tenor of that order.

(4) The Board shall take such steps as they may think fit for giving notice to persons interested of the provisions of any order made by them under this section before any bill for confirming the same is introduced into Parliament.

(5) An order made under this section may impose fines for a breach of its provisions of like amount as any fines imposed by this Act for offences against this Act.

(6) An order made under this section may be repealed, altered, or amended by any subsequent order made under this section, and confirmed by Parliament.

PART III.

(i.) Registration of Works.

Registration of works and stamp duty.

9.—(1) An alkali work, a scheduled work, a cement work, or a smelting work shall not be carried on unless it is certified to be registered.

(2) The work shall be registered in a register containing the prescribed particulars, and the register shall be conducted and the certificates issued in the prescribed manner.

(3) A certificate of registration, if issued at a time when a previous certificate is in force, shall be in force for one year after the time when that certificate ceases to be in force, and if issued at a time when no previous certificate is in force shall be in force until the following first day of April.

(4) An application for a certificate of registration of a work may, in the case of the first registration of that work, be made at any time, and an application for any subsequent certificate in respect of that work shall be made in the month of January or February.

(5) A certificate of registration shall be issued on application being made in the prescribed manner by the owner of the work, if the conditions of registration are complied with, and one of the conditions, in the case of the first registration of an alkali or scheduled work, or the registration of such a work if the work has been closed for a period of twelve months previously, shall be that the work is at the time of registration furnished with such appliances as appear to the chief inspector or, on appeal, to the Local Government Board to be necessary in order to enable the work to be carried on in accordance with such of the requirements of this Act as apply to the work.

Provided that the Local Government Board may dispense with the last-mentioned condition in the case of works erected before the commencement of this Act which were not before the commencement of this Act required to be registered.

(6) There shall be charged upon every such certificate a stamp duty of five pounds in the case of an alkali work, and of three pounds in the case of any other work, and the Commissioners of Inland Revenue shall issue stamped forms of certificate for the purpose.

(7) Written notice of any change which occurs in the ownership of a work or in the other particulars stated in the register shall within one month after such change be sent by the owner to the Local Government Board, and the register and the certificate shall be altered accordingly in the prescribed manner without charge and without the issue of a new certificate. If such notice is not sent as so required the work shall not be deemed to be certified to be registered.

(8) The owner of a work which has been carried on in contravention of this section shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty pounds.

Appointment of inspectors.

10.—(1) The Local Government Board shall, with the approval of the Treasury as to numbers and salaries or remuneration, appoint such inspectors (under whatever title they may fix) as the Board think necessary for the execution of this Act, and may assign them their duties and award them their salaries or remuneration, and shall constitute a chief inspector, and may regulate the cases and manner in which the inspectors are to execute and perform the powers and duties of inspectors under this Act, and may remove such inspectors.

(2) Notice of the appointment of such inspector shall be published in the London Gazette, and a copy of the Gazette shall be evidence of the appointment.

(3) The salaries or remuneration of the inspectors, and such expenses of the execution of this Act as the Treasury may sanction, shall be paid out of moneys provided by Parliament.

Section 10.

(4) A person holding the office of chief inspector or inspector shall not be employed in any other work except with the sanction of the Local Government Board.

Disqualification of certain persons for inspectors.

11. A person who—

(a) acts or practises as a land agent; or

(b) is engaged or interested directly or indirectly in any work to which this Act applies, or in any patent for any process or apparatus carried on or used in any such work, or in any process or apparatus connected with the condensation of acid gases, or with the treatment of alkali waste, or with preventing the discharge into the atmosphere or rendering harmless or inoffensive any noxious or offensive gas, or otherwise with any of the matters dealt with by this Act; or

(c) is employed in or about or in connection with any work to which this Act applies, or in any other chemical work for gain,

Inspection of works.

12.—(1) For the purpose of the execution of this Act, an inspector may at all reasonable times by day and night, without giving previous notice, but so as not to interrupt the process of the manufacture,—

(a) enter and inspect any work to which, in the opinion of the Local Government Board, any of the provisions of this Act applies; and

(b) examine any process causing the evolution of any noxious or offensive gas, and any apparatus for condensing any such gas, or otherwise preventing the discharge thereof into the atmosphere, or for rendering any such gas harmless or inoffensive when discharged; and

(d) enter and inspect any place where alkali waste is treated or deposited, or where any liquid containing either acid or any other substance capable of liberating sulphuretted hydrogen from alkali waste or drainage therefrom is likely to come into contact with alkali waste or drainage therefrom; and

(e) apply any such tests and make any such experiments, and generally make all such inquiries, as seem to him to be necessary or proper for the execution of his duties under this Act.

(2) The owner of any such work shall, on the demand of the chief inspector, furnish him within a reasonable time with a sketch plan, to be kept secret, of those parts of such work in which any process causing the evolution of any noxious or offensive gas or any process for the condensation of such gas or for preventing the discharge thereof into the atmosphere, or for rendering any such gas harmless or inoffensive when discharged, is carried on.

(3) The owner of every such work and his agents shall render to every inspector all necessary facilities for entry, inspection, examination, and testing in pursuance of this Act.

(4) Every owner of a work in which such facilities are not afforded to an inspector as are required by this Act, or in which an inspector is obstructed in the execution of his duty under this Act, and every person wilfully obstructing an inspector in the execution of his duty under this Act, shall be liable on conviction under the Summary Jurisdiction Acts to a fine not exceeding ten pounds.

17. The following regulations shall have effect with respect to the recovery of fines for offences under this Act other than fines recoverable summarily :

(1) Every such fine shall be recovered by action in the county court having jurisdiction in the district in which the offence is alleged to have been committed :

(2) The action shall not be brought without the sanction of the central authority, nor by any person other than the chief inspector or such other inspector as the Local Government Board may in any particular case direct, nor, except as respects a fine for the contravention of the provisions of this Act as to the registration of works, after the expiration of three months from the commission of the offence, and for the purposes of such action the fine shall be deemed to be a debt due to such inspector :

Section 17.

(3) The plaintiff in any action for a fine under this Act shall be presumed to be an inspector authorised under this Act to bring action, until the contrary is proved by the defendant:

(4) The court may, on the application of either party, appoint a person to take down in writing the evidence of the witnesses, and may award to that person such remuneration as the court thinks just; and the amount so awarded shall be deemed to be costs in the action:

(5) If either party in any action under this Act feels aggrieved by the decision or direction of the court in point of law, or on the merits, or in respect of the admission or rejection of any evidence, he may appeal to the High Court:

(6) Subject to the provisions of this section, all the enactments, rules, and orders relating to proceedings in actions in county courts, and to enforcing judgments in county courts, and to appeals shall apply as if the action related to a matter within the ordinary jurisdiction of the court.

Any power given to a court by this rule may be exercised by any judge of such court at chambers.

41. No person shall, except by order of the House of Commons or any tribunal having cognizance of petitions complaining of undue returns or undue elections, open the sealed packet of counterfoils after the same has been once sealed up, or be allowed to inspect any counted ballot papers in the custody of the Clerk of the Crown in Chancery; such order may be made subject to such conditions as to persons, time, place, and mode of opening or inspection as the House or tribunal making the order may think expedient; provided that on making and carrying into effect any such order, care shall be taken that the mode in which any particular elector has voted shall not be discovered until he has been proved to have voted, and his vote has been declared by a competent court to be invalid.

42. All documents forwarded by a returning officer in pursuance of this Act to the Clerk of the Crown in Chancery, other than ballot papers and counterfoils, shall be open to public inspection at such time and under such regulations as may be prescribed by the Clerk of the Crown in Chancery, with the consent of the Speaker of the House of Commons, and the Clerk of the Crown shall supply copies of or extracts from said documents to any person demanding the same, on payment of such fees and subject to such regulations as may be sanctioned by the Treasury.

43. Where an order is made for the production by the Clerk of the Crown in Chancery of any document in his possession relating to any specified election, the production by such clerk or his agent of the document ordered, in such manner as may be directed by such order, or by a rule of the court having power to make such order, shall be conclusive evidence that such document relates to the specified election; and any endorsement appearing on any packet of ballot papers produced by such Clerk of the Crown or his agent shall be evidence of such papers being what they are stated to be by the endorsement. The production from proper custody of a ballot paper purporting to have been used at any election, and of a counterfoil marked with the same printed number and having a number marked thereon in writing, shall be primâ facie evidence that the person who voted by such ballot paper was the person who at the time of such election had affixed to his name in the register of voters at such election the same number as the number written on such counterfoil.

Rules for Municipal Elections.

64. In the application of the provisions of this schedule to municipal elections the following modifications shall be made:—

(a) The expression "register of voters" means the burgess roll of the burgesses of the borough, or, in the case of an election for the ward of a borough, the ward list; and the mayor shall provide true copies of such register for each polling station:

(b) All ballot papers and other documents which, in the case of a parliamentary election, are forwarded to the Clerk of the Crown in Chancery shall be delivered to the town clerk of the municipal borough in which the election is held, and shall be kept by him among the records of the borough; and the provisions of part one of this schedule with respect to the inspection, production, and destruction of such ballot papers and documents, and to the copies of such documents, shall apply respectively to the ballot papers and documents so in the custody of the town clerk, with these modifications; namely, Rule 64.

(a) An order of the county court having jurisdiction in the borough, or any part thereof, or of any tribunal in which a municipal election is questioned, shall be substituted for an order of the House of Commons, or of one of Her Majesty's Superior Courts; but an appeal from such county court may be had in like manner as in other cases in such county court;

(b) The regulations for the inspection of documents and the fees for the supply of copies of documents of which copies are directed to be supplied, shall be prescribed by the council of the borough with the consent of one of Her Majesty's Principal Secretaries of State; and, subject as aforesaid, the town clerk, in respect of the custody and destruction of the ballot papers and other documents coming into his possession in pursuance of this Act, shall be subject to the directions of the council of the borough:

THE BALLOT ACT, 1872.

5. An application to the Court under rule 40 or rule 41 in the first schedule to the Ballot Act, 1872, as applied by rule 64 in the said schedule, may be made in writing and shall be intituled in the matter of the Acts and of the particular matter. Such application shall be made in accordance with the rules for the time being in force as to interlocutory applications, save that, unless by consent or otherwise ordered only oral evidence shall be admitted. Costs if allowed shall be taxed on such scale as the judge shall direct. Application under 35 & 36 Vict. c. 33, Sched. I. rules 40, 41, 64.

Sect. 11 of this Act casts a ministerial duty upon the registrar of county courts outside the London bankruptcy district to file, keep and index in the prescribed manner the abstract sent to him by the registrar of bills of sale of bills of sale given by persons residing in the county court district. The county court registrar's duties and the remuneration are prescribed by the rules of the Supreme Court, infra.

An omission to transmit the abstract to the county court registrar does not invalidate the registration (Trinder v. Raynor, (1887) 56 L. J. Q. B. 422).

Local registration of contents of bill of sale.

11. Where the affidavit (which under section ten of the principal Act is required to accompany a bill of sale when presented for registration) describes the residence of the person making or giving the same, or of the person against whom the process is issued to be in some place outside the London bankruptcy district as defined by the Bankruptcy Act, 1869, or where the bill of sale describes the chattels enumerated therein as being in some place outside the said London bankruptcy district, the registrar under the principal Act shall forthwith and within three clear days after registration in the principal registry, and in accordance with the prescribed directions, transmit an abstract in the prescribed form of the contents of such bill of sale to the county court registrar in whose district such places are situate, and if such places are in the districts of different registrars, to each such registrar.

Every abstract so transmitted shall be filed, kept, and indexed by the registrar of the county court in the prescribed manner, and any person may search, inspect, make extracts from, and obtain copies of the abstract so registered in the like manner and upon the like terms as to payment or otherwise as near as may be as in the case of bills of sale registered by the registrar under the principal Act.

3. Abstract.—The abstract of the contents of a bill of sale, required by the Bills of Sale Act (1878) Amendment Act, 1882, to

6. Notice of a satisfaction of a Bill of Sale to be Transmitted to Local Registry.—Where a memorandum of satisfaction has been or shall be written under section 15 of the Bills of Sale Act, 1878, upon any registered or re-registered copy of a bill of sale, an abstract of which has been transmitted to any registrar of a county court, a notice of such satisfaction, in the form in the Appendix hereto, duly sealed and dated, shall be transmitted to each of the registrars to whom an abstract of such bill of sale shall have been transmitted.

9. Satisfaction to be Noted in Index.—Upon the receipt of a notice of satisfaction, the registrar shall enter the notice of satisfaction on the abstract of the Bill to which it relates, and shall note in the index against the name of the mortgagor or assignor the fact of the satisfaction having been entered.

10. Search and Inspection of Abstract.—The registrar shall allow any person to search the index at any time during which he is required by the County Court Rules for the time being to keep his office open, upon payment by such person of one shilling; and to make extracts from the abstract or notice of satisfaction upon payment of one shilling for each abstract or notice of satisfaction inspected.

11. Office Copy of Abstract.—The registrar shall also, if required, cause an office copy to be made of any abstract or notice of satisfaction, and shall be entitled for making, marking and sealing the same to the same fee as is payable in the Bills of Sale Department of the Central Office of the Supreme Court of Judicature, viz., sixpence per folio.

This Act enables an owner or owners of land of a rateable value of 2,000*l.* alleging subsidence of such land by brine pumping operations, to apply to the Local Government Board for the formation of a compensation district (sect. 1). Every district formed under the Act shall have a compensation board (sect. 9). Such board, if and when appointed, shall form and maintain (sect. 21) a compensation fund for the district solely applicable to compensation for damage arising from subsidence. Such fund is derived from the assessment and levy of a rate per thousand gallons of brine pumped within the district.

Jurisdiction.]—The jurisdiction of county courts is limited (1) to the recovery as a debt of the sum awarded (sect. 26); (2) in allowing or disallowing a claim on the ground that the claimant had or had not such title or interest in the property damaged by subsidence as would entitle him to recover (sect. 27).

Appeal.]—An appeal from the county court under sect. 27 will be as provided by sect. 120 of the County Courts Act, 1888, (sect. 27 (5)).

Recovery of sums awarded.

26. Any sum awarded by a compensation board to be paid under any of the provisions of this Act shall be certified by the clerk of the board under his hand, and may, subject to the provisions of this Act, be recovered as a debt at the expiration of three months from the date of such certificate in the county court within whose jurisdiction the property to which the claim relates is situate.

Appeal on questions of title.

27.—(1) If a board disallow a claim or any item thereof on the ground that the claimant had not, as respects such claim or item, such title or interest in the property damaged by subsidence as would entitle him to recover under this Act, the claimant may appeal in manner in this section mentioned on the ground that he had such title or interest.

(2) If a board allow a claim or any item thereof, any person assessed to the last rate made under this Act in and for the district may appeal in manner in this section mentioned against such allowance on the ground that the board ought to have decided that the claimant had not (as respects such claim or item) such title or interest as hereinbefore mentioned.

(3) Notice of appeal under this section must be given in writing to the board at the meeting at which the decision appealed against is given, or within three weeks afterwards.

Section 27.

(4) The appeal shall be brought in the county court within whose jurisdiction the land is situate, in manner prescribed by rules made or to be made by the authority for the time being empowered to make rules for the procedure and practice of county courts.

Appeal from County Court.

(5) The judgment of the county court shall be binding on all persons, subject to an appeal to the Supreme Court according to the practice for the time being in use with respect to appeals from county courts.

(6) The costs of any appeal under this section shall be in the discretion of the court in which the same are incurred.

(7) If as a consequence of any decision on appeal under this section any damage is to be assessed, increased, or reduced, the claim shall stand remitted to the board to be adjudicated, and allowed, altered, increased, or reduced as the case may require.

Special case.

28. Any person aggrieved who desires to question an order or determination of the board on the ground that it is erroneous in point of law, may apply to the board to state a special case, setting forth the facts of the case and the grounds on which the order or determination is questioned, and if the board decline to state the case, may apply to the High Court of Justice for an order requiring the case to be stated.

The application shall be made and the case stated, heard, and determined in accordance with the provisions of section thirty-three, sub-section two of the Summary Jurisdiction Act, 1879, as if the case stated by the board were a case stated by a court of summary jurisdiction.

42 & 43 Vict. c. 49.

Limit of appeal.

29. In no case shall there be any appeal, by special case or otherwise, where the amount claimed does not exceed one hundred pounds.

COUNTY COURT RULES, ORDER L., RR. 19—21.

Appeals under 54 & 55 Vict. c. 40, s. 7.

19. Any person desirous of appealing to the court under sect. 27 of the Brine Pumping (Compensation for Subsidence) Act, 1891, shall within fourteen days from the date of giving notice of appeal file with the registrar a written statement of the decision of the board and of the grounds of appeal against such decision, together with as many copies thereof as there are respondents to the appeal.

Entry of plaint and issue of summons. [Conf. Form 446.]

20. The registrar shall forthwith on the filing of the said statement and copies enter a plaint and issue a summons calling upon the board and (in the case of an appeal against the allowance of a claim or any item thereof) upon the claimant to show cause why the decision of the board should not be reversed or modified, and shall annex to the summons for service on each respondent a copy of the said statement, which copy shall be deemed to be part of the summons. O. L. r. 20.

21. The practice, procedure, and costs in an action shall be applicable to an appeal under the said section. Practice and costs.

Jurisdiction of the county court under these Acts is partly exclusive and partly concurrent with the High Court, and relates to four different matters: (1) as to defaults of officers (sect. 24); (2) as to winding-up (sect. 32); (3) as to enforcing awards of arbitrators (sect. 34); (4) as to decision of disputes between a society and its members (sect. 35).

"The Court" in the 1874 Act means the county court of the district in which the chief office or place of meeting for business of the society is situate. See sect. 4.

Appeal.]—Every determination of a dispute by arbitrators or by the court or by the registrar shall be binding on all parties and shall be final, provided that the arbitrators or registrar or the court may at the request of either party state a case for the opinion of the Supreme Court on any question of law (sect. 36), but are not compelled to do so (sect. 20, 1894 Act).

37 & 38 VICT. c. 42.

4. The court in this Act means,— Definition of court.

In England, the county court of the district in which the chief office or place of meeting for the business of the society is situate. . . .

16. The rules of every society hereafter established under this Act shall set forth:— Matters to be set forth in the rules.

(9) Whether disputes between the society and any of its members, or any person claiming by or through any member, or under the rules, shall be settled by reference to the court, or to the registrar, or to arbitration.

20. Any certificate of incorporation or of registration, or other document relating to a society under this Act, purporting to be signed by the registrar, shall in the absence of any evidence to the contrary, be received by the court, and by all courts of law and equity and elsewhere, without proof of the signature; and a printed copy of the rules of a society, certified by the secretary or other officer of the society to be a true copy of its registered rules, shall, in the absence of any evidence to the contrary, be received as evidence of the rules. Evidence of registration.

24. Every such officer, his executors or administrators, shall, upon demand made, or notice in writing given or left at his last or usual place of residence, give in his account as may be required by Officers to account.

the board of directors or committee of management of the society to be examined and allowed or disallowed by them, and shall, on the like demand or notice, pay over all the moneys remaining in his hands, and deliver all securities and effects, books, papers, and property of the society in his hands or custody, to such person as the society appoint; and in case of any neglect or refusal to deliver such account, or to pay over such moneys, or to deliver such securities and effects, books, papers, and property, in manner aforesaid, the society may sue upon the bond or may apply to the court, who may proceed thereupon in a summary way, and make such order thereon as to the court in its discretion shall seem just, which order shall be final and conclusive.

Practice.]—The jurisdiction under sect. 24 is exclusive. Proceedings should be by action commenced by plaint and summons, the society being plaintiffs and the officer in default defendant (Order XLI. r. 7, post, p. 1782) Particulars of demand must be filed (ib. rr. 8, 9, 10).

Proceedings necessary for the termination or dissolution of a society.

32. A society under this Act may terminate or be dissolved—

(1) Upon the happening of any event declared by its rules to be the termination of the society.

(2) By dissolution in manner prescribed by its rules.

(3) By dissolution with the consent of three-fourths of the members holding not less than two-thirds of the number of shares in the society, testified by their signatures to the instrument of dissolution. The instrument of dissolution shall set forth—

(a) The liabilities and assets of the society in detail.

(b) The number of members, and the amount standing to their credit in the books of the society.

(c) The claims of depositors and other creditors, and the provision to be made for their payment.

(d) The intended appropriation or division of the funds and property of the society.

(e) The names of one or more persons to be appointed trustees for the special purpose, and their remuneration.

Alterations in the instrument of dissolution may be made with the like consent, testified in the same manner. The instrument of dissolution and all alterations therein shall be registered in the manner provided for the registration of rules, and shall be binding upon all the members of the society.

Winding-up.

(4) By winding-up, either voluntarily under the supervision of the court or by the court, if the court shall so order, on the petition of any member authorised by three-fourths of the members present at a general meeting of the society specially called for the purpose to present the same on behalf of the society, or on the petition of any judgment creditor for not less than fifty pounds, but not otherwise. General orders for regulating the proceedings of the court under this section may be from time to time made by the authority for the time being empowered to make general orders for the court. Section 32.

Notice of the commencement and termination of every dissolution or winding up shall be sent to the registrar, and registered by him.

The effect of sect. 32 is considerably altered by sect. 8 of the 1894 Act, (infra) as since the passing of that section Jurisdiction in winding-up is limited to a society the amount of whose capital paid up, or credited as paid up, does not exceed 10,000*l*.

57 & 58 VICT. c. 47.

8.—(1) Notwithstanding anything in the Building Societies Acts, every society under those Acts shall be deemed to be a company within the meaning of the Companies (Winding-up) Act, 1890. Application of 53 & 54 Vict. c. 63, to building societies.

(2) Any proceedings in the winding up of any such society which at the passing of this Act are pending in any county court may, on application by or on behalf of the registrar, with the consent of the secretary of state, be transferred to the High Court and thereupon the Companies (Winding-up) Act, 1890, shall, so far as applicable, apply thereto accordingly.

Although the Companies (Winding-up) Act, 1890, has been repealed by the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, yet sects. 286 to 291 of the said Act make it clear that the winding-up of building societies must be effected under the provisions of the 1908 Act, hence the jurisdiction is limited as above-mentioned. For winding-up the county court will be the county court to which the district in which the chief office or place of meeting for business of the society is situate is attached for the purpose of jurisdiction in bankruptcy (see Order XLIA., p. 1893, and Lord Chancellor's Order, November 29th, 1890, p. 1894).

Three-fourths, how computed.]—In computing the three-fourths mentioned in sect. 32, members who have given notice of withdrawal, but have not been paid out, must be counted (Sibun v. Pearce (C. A.), (1890) 44 Ch. D. 354; see also Pepe v. City and Suburban Building Society, (1893) 2 Ch. 311; 62 L. J. Ch. 501).

Costs.]—These in the winding-up are taxed according to the scale of costs for the time being in use in the Supreme Court (Order XLI. r. 12, p. 1783).

An Instrument of dissolution is not equivalent in its operation to a winding-up order. Upon such instrument advanced members who have covenanted to pay their advances by instalments cannot be compelled to pay forthwith the balances due from them (Kemp v. Wright, (1895) 1 Ch. 121; 64 L. J. Ch. 59).

Claims against Society.]—Many difficult questions arise in the course of a winding-up as to the claims admissible against the society and the various priorities of claimants, and also as to the distribution of assets when there is a surplus after payment of debts. The particular words used in the rules generally make provision as to the rights of members: subject to them the following rules appear to be supported by the authorities.

Section 8. Notes.

Debts. Loan to Society.]—The debts payable by the society must be satisfied first. The most important item under this head is that of loans. Prior to the Act of 1874 no society could borrow money so as to create a debt from the society unless its rules authorised borrowing (Ex parte Williamson, (1870) L. R. 5 Ch. 309). If the rules gave a limited or unlimited power to borrow, borrowing pursuant thereto created debts enforceable against the society (Murray v. Scott, (1884) 9 App. Cas. 519; 53 L. J. Ch. 745). The Act limits the power of borrowing (sect. 15), and any borrowing beyond that limit, or in societies not under the Act, beyond the limit imposed by the rules, or for purposes other than those authorised by the rules, will create no debt enforceable against the society, by action (Chapleo v. Brunswick Building Society (C. A.), (1881) 6 Q. B. D. 696; 50 L. J. Q. B. 372; Re Professional Building Society, (1871) L. R. 6 Ch. 856), or in a winding-up (In re Davies' Trusts, (1871) L. R. 12 Eq. 516; 40 L. J. Ch. 566; Cunliffe Brooks v. Blackburn Building Society, (1884) 9 App. Cas. 857; 54 L. J. Ch. 562). See also Sinclair v. Brougham and Another, [1914] A. C. 398; 83 L. J. Ch. 465. If, however, a lender whose loan is thus invalid can prove that his money has been applied in satisfaction of any valid debt of or claim against the society, he will be entitled to that extent to maintain his claim against the society (Cunliffe Brooks v. Blackburn Building Society, supra); or if the money has been advanced to members on mortgage, he will be entitled to the benefit of the security (Neath Building Society v. Luce (1889), 43 Ch. D. 158; 59 L. J. Ch. 3). Where money has been lent to a society without borrowing powers, the directors have no power, after incorporation under the Act of 1874, to create a debt against the society in respect of such money by the issue of any form of security under seal (Ex parte Watson, (1888) 21 Q. B. D. 301; 57 L. J. Q. B. 609). As to personal liability of directors, see Cross v. Fisher (C. A.), (1892) 1 Q. B. 467; 61 L. J. Q. B. 609.

Lenders when not Members.]—A mere lender, who lends his money and gets a bond or promissory note as security for it, does not thereby become a member of the society, and, generally speaking, he and other lenders will be entitled to be paid in full before any member is entitled to participate in the assets, whether the member has given notice to withdraw or not (Re Mutual Aid Building Society (C. A.), (1885) 30 Ch. D. 434; 55 L. J. Ch. 111; Murray v. Scott, supra; Sinclair v. Brougham and Another, supra). But a member might, it is believed, lend money in the ordinary way, and, in regard to it, be an outside creditor. See Sinclair v. Brougham, supra.

Deposit, etc., Members.]—In many societies, persons, under the name of deposit members, or without any particular designation, are allowed to pay money into the society from time to time and receive a kind of pass-book in which they are described as members. When lenders of this kind received "deposit" shares they were held to rank after outside creditors, but before unadvanced members (Murray v. Scott, supra).

Advanced Members.]—Advanced members are, in the absence of special provisions to the contrary in the rules, entitled to redeem and pay up all moneys due from them to the society pursuant to the rules, including fines, etc. (no interest chargeable on fines (Parker v. Butcher, (1867) L. R. 3 Eq. 762; 36 L. J. Ch. 552)), at any time either before or after a winding-up, and on so doing generally cease to be liable to contribute to any deficiency in funds (Parker v. Butcher, supra; Re Doncaster Building Society, (1866) L. R. 3 Eq. 158; Brownlie v. Russell, (1883) 8 App. Cas. 235; Tosh v. North British Building Society, (1886) 11 App. Cas. 489). Where the rules, however, provide for their participation in losses, they cannot redeem without paying their share of the losses (Re West Riding of Yorkshire Building Society (No. 1), (1890) 43 Ch. D. 407; 59 L. J. Ch. 197).

Unadvanced Members.]—Unadvanced members supply the fund to which creditors ultimately resort. The extent of their liability is generally limited by the rules, and such limit is expressly confirmed by the Act (sect. 14). Members of this class are, however, generally empowered to withdraw on giving a specified notice. When such notices have been given and have expired before the commencement of a winding-up, and the members have been paid out, they cease to be members and cannot be placed on the list of contributories (Re Sheffield Building Society, (1889) 22 Q. B. D. 470; 58 L. J. Q. B. 265, explained by Sibun v. Pearce, (1890) 44 Ch. D. 354); if not paid out they will generally be entitled to be paid out of the assets in priority to others who have not given notice, although there were no funds in hand for payment between the giving of notice and the winding-up (Walton v. Edge, (1884) 10 App. Cas. 33; 54 L. J. Ch. 362; Re Alliance Society (C. A.), (1885) 28 Ch. D. 559; 54 L. J. Ch. 540); unless, indeed, it has become patent that liquidation is inevitable, when notices then given are as inoperative as if given after the order to wind-up (Re Sunderland Building Society (No. 2), (1890) 24 Q. B. D. 394; 59 L. J. Q. B. 217. See this case also as to interest after notice).

Determination of disputes by arbitration.

34. Where the rules of a society under this Act direct disputes to be referred to arbitration, arbitrators shall be named and elected in the manner such rules provide, or if there be no such provision, at the first general meeting of the society, none of the said arbitrators being beneficially interested, directly or indirectly, in its funds; of whom a certain number, not less than three, shall be chosen by ballot in each such case of dispute, the number of the said arbitrators and mode of ballot being determined by the rules of the society; the names of such arbitrators shall be duly entered in the minute book of the society, and, in case of the death or refusal or neglect of any of the said arbitrators to act, the society, at a general meeting, shall name and elect an arbitrator to act in the place of the arbitrator dying, or refusing or neglecting to act; and whatever award shall be made by the arbitrators or the major part of them, according to the true purport and meaning of the rules of the society, shall determine the dispute; and should either of the parties to the dispute refuse or neglect to comply with or conform to such award within a time to be limited therein, the court, upon good and sufficient proof being adduced of such award having been made, and of the refusal of the party to comply therewith, shall enforce compliance with the same upon the petition of any person concerned. Where the parties to any dispute arising in a society under this Act agree to refer the dispute to the registrar, or where the rules of the society direct disputes to be referred to the registrar, the award of the registrar shall have the same effect as that of arbitrators.

Jurisdiction under this section is exclusive.

Practice.]—Every application to enforce an award must be by plaint and summons, the party claiming the benefit of the award to be plaintiff, the party against whom the award has been given, defendant; file particulars stating relief or order claimed (Order XLI. r. 4, post, p. 1782).

Determination of disputes by court.

35. The court may hear and determine a dispute in the following cases:—

(1) If it shall appear to the court, upon the petition of any person concerned, that application has been made by either party to the dispute to the other party, for the purpose of having the dispute settled by arbitration under the rules of the society, and that such application has not within forty days been complied with, or that the arbitrators have refused or for a period of twenty-one days have neglected to make any award.

(2) Where the rules of the society direct disputes to be referred to the court or to justices.

Determination to be final.

36. Every determination by arbitrators or by the court or by the registrar under this Act of a dispute shall be binding and conclusive on all parties, and shall be final to all intents and purposes, and shall not be subject to appeal, and shall not be removed or removable into any court of law, or restrained or restrainable by the injunction of any court of equity; provided always, that the arbitrators, or the registrar, or the court, as the case may be, may, at the request of either party, state a case for the opinion of the Supreme Court of Judicature on any question of law, and shall have power to grant to either party to the dispute such discovery, as to documents and otherwise, as might now be granted by any court of law or equity, such discovery to be made on behalf of the society by such officer of the society as the arbitrators, registrar, or court may determine.

Members cannot, by giving notice to withdraw, sue in the ordinary courts (Walker v. General Building Society (C. A.), (1887) 36 Ch. D. 777; Huckle v. Wilson, (1877) 2 C. P. D. 410); if there is a "dispute" it must be disposed of according to the Act and rules. Where a member alleged that he was not bound by certain new rules and prayed the benefit of old ones, it was held that there was a dispute (Thompson v. Planet Building Society, (1873) L. R. 15 Eq. 333; 42 L. J. Ch. 364).

Disputes. What are.

But every contention is not a "dispute" to which the Act applies, e.g., an action by a society against an officer to recover moneys received for and not paid over to the society (Municipal Building Society v. Richards (C. A.), (1888) 39 Ch. D. 372; 58 L. J. Ch. 8); or an action on a covenant in a mortgage deed (Western Building Society v. Martin (C. A.), (1886) 17 Q. B. D. 609; 55 L. J. Q. B. 382); or an action for redemption (Mulkern v. Lord, (1879) 4 App. Cas. 182; 48 L. J. Ch. 745), but this has been only since the passing of the Building Societies Act, 1884 (47 & 48 Vict. c. 41), s. 2, which defined the meaning of "dispute" in the Building Societies Acts, as follows:—

47 & 48 Vict. c. 41, s. 2.]—The word "disputes" in the Building Societies Acts or in the rules of any society thereunder, shall be deemed to refer only to disputes between the society and a member or any representative of a member, in his capacity of a member of the society, unless by the rules for the time being it shall be otherwise expressly provided; and in the absence of such express provision, shall not apply to any dispute between any such society and any member thereof, or other person whatever as to the construction or effect of any mortgage deed or any contract contained in any document, other than the rules of the society, and shall not prevent any society or any member thereof or any person claiming through or under him from obtaining in the ordinary course of law any remedy in respect o such mortgage or other contract to which he or the society would otherwise be by law entitled: Provided always that nothing in this Act shall apply to any dispute pending at any time before the passing of this Act between any such society or any member thereof or other person which before the passing of this Act shall have been actually referred or agreed to be referred to arbitration, or as to which the jurisdiction of any court of law shall have been adjudged to be excluded by any decision of any court of competent jurisdiction in any action or suit between the society and any member thereof or other person.

Practice on plaint for dispute.]—The dispute must be brought into court by plaint and summons (Order XLI. r. 1 (infra)). The aggrieved member or other person must be plaintiff and the society, either in its own name or in the name of such persons as are authorised by the Act to be sued on behalf of the society, defendants (Ib. r. 2), particulars must be filed with the required copies, which must state concisely the nature of the dispute referred and the relief or order claimed (Ib. r. 3).

The following section of the 1894 Act preserves the right of the arbitrators, or the court, or the registrar to refuse to state a special case.

Arbitrators not to be compelled to state special case on settlement of disputes.

20. Notwithstanding anything contained in the Arbitration Act, 1889, or in any other Act, the arbitrators, registrar, or court to whom a dispute is referred in pursuance of the Building Societies Act, 1874, shall not be compelled to state a special case on any question of law arising in the case, but may do so on the request of either party as provided in section thirty-six of the Building Societies Act, 1874.

By sect. 11 of the 1911 Act the county court judge may be appointed by the Secretary of State, either alone or with an assessor or assessors, as the court to hold an inquiry as to the competency of a manager or under-manager of a mine and his fitness to hold a certificate of competency, at such place as the Secretary of State may appoint; extended by the Act of 1914 (4 & 5 Geo. 5, c. 22) to any owner or agent of a mine taking part in the technical management thereof.

The inquiry must be public.

By sect. 77 the mine owner, under certain circumstances, has to provide washing and drying accommodation, one half cost of which is to be borne by the men. If any question arises as to the estimated cost of maintenance, it shall be referred to an arbitrator, who, failing agreement, is to be appointed by the judge of county courts of the district in which the mine is situate.

11.—(1) If at any time representation is made to the Secretary of State by an inspector or otherwise that any person holding a certificate of competency under this Act is, by reason of incompetency or gross negligence or misconduct in the capacity of, or while temporarily performing the duties of, manager or undermanager of a mine, unfit to continue to hold a certificate of competency, or has been convicted of an offence against this Act or any enactment repealed by this Act, the Secretary of State may, if he thinks fit, cause inquiry to be made into the conduct of that person, and with respect to every such inquiry the following provisions shall have effect :—

(a) The inquiry shall be public, and shall be held, at such place as the Secretary of State may appoint, by such county court judge, metropolitan police magistrate, stipendiary magistrate, or other person or persons (hereinafter in this section referred to as the court) as may be directed by the Secretary of State, and either alone or with the assistance of any assessor or assessors named by the Secretary of State :

(b) The Secretary of State shall, before the commencement of the inquiry, furnish to the person into whose conduct inquiry is made a statement of the case on which the inquiry is instituted :

(c) The person into whose conduct inquiry is made may attend the inquiry by himself, his counsel, solicitor, or agent, and may, if he thinks fit, be sworn and examined as an ordinary witness in the case :

(d) The court shall, on the conclusion of the inquiry, send to the Secretary of State a report containing a full statement of the case, and the opinion of the court thereon, and such report of, or extracts from, the evidence as the court may think fit :

(e) The court shall have power to cancel or suspend the certificate of the person into whose conduct inquiry is made, if it finds that he is, by reason of incompetency, or of such gross negligence or misconduct as aforesaid, or of his having been convicted of an offence against this Act or any enactment repealed by this Act, unfit to continue to hold a certificate of competency :

(f) The court may require the person into whose conduct inquiry is made to deliver up his certificate. The court shall hold a certificate so delivered until the conclusion of the investigation, and shall then either restore, cancel, or suspend the certificate according to its judgment on the case:

(g) The court shall have, for the purpose of the inquiry, all the powers of a court of summary jurisdiction when acting as a court in hearing informations for offences against this Act, and all the powers of an inspector under this Act, and in addition the following powers:—

(i.) power, by summons signed by the court, to require the attendance of all such persons as it thinks fit to summon and examine for the purpose of the inquiry, and for that purpose to require answers or returns to such inquiries as the court thinks fit to make;

(ii.) power to require the production of all books, papers, and documents which the court considers important for the purpose of the inquiry:

(h) A person attending as a witness before the court shall be allowed such expenses as would be allowed to a witness attending on subpœna before a court of record; and in case of dispute as to the amount to be allowed, the same shall be referred by the court to a Master of the Supreme Court, who, on request signed by the court, shall ascertain and certify the proper amount of such expenses.

(3) The court may make such order as it thinks fit respecting the costs and expenses of the inquiry, and such order shall, on the application of any party entitled to the benefit thereof, be enforced by any court of summary jurisdiction as if such costs and expenses were a fine imposed by that court.

Court or judge may direct sale of goods seized in execution.

13. When goods or chattels have been seized in execution by a sheriff or other officer under process of the above mentioned courts, and some third person claims to be entitled under a bill of sale or otherwise to such goods or chattels by way of security for a debt, the court or a judge may order a sale of the whole or part thereof, upon such terms as to payment of the whole or part of the secured debt, or otherwise, as they or he shall think fit, and may direct the application of the proceeds of such sale, in such manner and upon such terms as to such court or judge may seem just.

(Applied to county courts by Order in Council dated August 4th, 1879.)

By sect. 37 "a common" means any land subject to be inclosed under the Inclosure Acts, 1845 to 1868.

Jurisdiction, by sect. 30, in addition to any then existing remedy, was given to the county court within whose jurisdiction any common or part of a common is situate to grant an injunction against any illegal inclosure,

An appeal to the High Court of Justice is given to any person aggrieved by the making or the refusal of an injunction or order. No rules of court have been made as to an appeal, which may be had in the same manner as in a case within the court's ordinary jurisdiction (see sect. 120 of the County Courts Act, p. 123).

30. A county court within whose jurisdiction any common or part of a common is situate shall have jurisdiction to hear any case relating to any illegal inclosure or encroachment of or upon such common or part of a common respectively made after the passing of this Act, or to any nuisance impeding the exercise of any right of common arising after the passing of this Act, and to grant an injunction against such inclosure, encroachment, or nuisance, or to make an order for the removal or abatement of such inclosure, encroachment, or nuisance.

Any person aggrieved by any injunction granted or order made or refusal to grant an injunction or make an order by a county court in pursuance of this section may, on giving security for costs to the satisfaction of the county court, appeal to the High Court of Justice in a summary manner, or by special case or otherwise, as may be prescribed by rules of court to be made by the Supreme Court of Judicature in manner provided by the seventeenth section of the Supreme Court of Judicature Act, 1875.

The appellate court may on hearing the appeal reverse, modify, or confirm the injunction or order complained of, or remit the case to the county court from which the appeal lay, with instructions to deal with the case according to the directions given by the appellate court.

Where an appeal is lodged against the order of a county court directing the removal or abatement of any inclosure, encroachment, or nuisance, such order shall be suspended during such time as such appeal is pending.

Until rules of court are made for the purposes of this section, an appeal may be had from the decision of any county court under this section in the same manner in which an appeal from the decision of a county court may be had in a case within its ordinary jurisdiction.

Proceedings under section 30 of the Commons Act, 1876, shall be by action commenced by plaint and summons in the ordinary way. Particulars of demand must be filed in every such action stating concisely the relief or order which the plaintiff claims.

Sect. 27. If the interest on debenture stock is in arrear for thirty days the holder for the time being may (without prejudice to his power to apply for the appointment of a receiver or judicial factor) recover the arrears with costs by action or suit against the company in any court of competent jurisdiction.

As to court of competent jurisdiction, see 34 & 35 Vict. c. 41, s. 4.

Jurisdiction.]—Where the share capital of a company paid up, or credited as paid up, does not exceed 10,000*l.*, and the registered office of the company is situated within the jurisdiction of a county court having jurisdiction under this Act, i.e., a county court having bankruptcy jurisdiction, a petition to wind up the company shall be presented to that county court (sect. 131, sub-sect. 3).

"The Court."]—By sect. 131, sub-sect. 5, the Lord Chancellor may by order exclude a county court from having jurisdiction under this Act, and has in fact by order dated May 19th, 1899 (see p. 1996), excluded any county court not, for the time being, having bankruptcy jurisdiction from having jurisdiction under this Act, the district of such court so excluded from jurisdiction being attached to a county court having bankruptcy jurisdiction, hence "the court" (sect. 285) is the county court having bankruptcy jurisdiction within the district within which the registered office of the company is situated. The list of the county courts having bankruptcy jurisdiction with their respective districts are at p. 1996.

Stannaries Court.]—The county courts in Cornwall to which the jurisdiction of the Stannaries court has been transferred, are not, in the case of mining companies carrying on business solely in Cornwall, confined to companies whose capital does not exceed 10,000*l.*, but have exclusive jurisdiction whatever the amount of the capital (Dunbar v. Harvey, (1913) (C. A.) 2 Ch. 530; 82 L. J. Ch. 452; or wherever the registered office of the company is situate (sect. 131, sub-sect. 4), even when the company's powers were not confined to working mines in Cornwall (Radium Ore Mines, Ltd., 109 L. T. 707; affirmed (C. A.) 110 L. T. 57).

Powers of the Court.]—The court has all the powers of the High Court and is not subject to prohibition when exercising such powers (sect. 131, sub-sect. 6; In re The New Par Consols, Ltd. (No. 2), (1898) 1 Q. B. 669 (C. A.); 67 L. J. Q. B. 598); but has no jurisdiction to decide in the winding-up questions of title to property between a company and a stranger (Re Ilkeley Hotel Co., (1893) 1 Q. B. 248; 62 L. J. Q. B. 333); the court must enforce its judgment by means of its own officers (Re Bassett's Plaster Co., (1894) 2 Q. B. 96; 63 L. J. Q. B. 518).

Practice.]—The Companies (Winding-up) Rules, 1909, govern the procedure in a winding-up by the court (see post, p. 1895); for the title of the proceedings and issue of summonses see Rules 11 et seq.; for service and execution of process see Rules 22 et seq.; for the form of a petition, the advertisement, service, and verification thereof see Rules 25 et seq.; for appointment of official receiver as provisional liquidator see Rule 31; for notice by persons who intend to appear, affidavits in opposition and reply, and for hearing of the petition see Rules 32—35; for the notice of the making of an order to the official receiver, for the drawing up and settling of the order, and for the transmission and advertisement of the order see Rules 37 et seq. In matters other than winding-up the practice is governed by Ord. XLIA., p. 1893.

Transfer.]—The powers of transfer are very large, from the county court to the High Court, and from one county court to another county court having jurisdiction in the winding-up of a company (see Rules 42—47).

Appeal to High Court.]—It is provided by sect. 181 of the Act that subject to rules of court, an appeal lies upon a question of law from any order or decision in the winding-up of a company in the same manner and under the same conditions as in ordinary cases. If any question arises in any winding-up proceeding, which all the parties to the proceeding, or one of them and the judge, wish to have determined in the first instance in the High Court, the judge must state the facts in the form of a special case for the opinion of the High Court. The case and such proceedings as may be required, must then be transmitted to the High Court (sect. 133, sub-sect. 3).

The registrar's taxation of costs may, at the instance of the Board of Trade, be reviewed by a taxing-officer of the High Court (Rule 185).

Appeal to County Court from Official Receiver.]—In various cases mentioned in the Act and rules, an appeal is allowed to the court against the act or decision of the official receiver. Where the official receiver is acting otherwise than as liquidator the appeal must be brought within twenty-one days from the time when the decision or act appealed against is done, pronounced or made (Rule 206).

No costs should be given against an official receiver personally, unless he has been guilty of misconduct; such an order is subject to an appeal to the divisional court (see In re Raynes Park Golf Club, Ex parte Official Receiver, (1899) 1 Q. B. 961; 68 L. J. Q. B. 529).

Matters to be heard in Court and Chambers.]—Rule 6 (1) provides what matters are to be heard in county courts in court, and Rule 6 (2) provides that any other matter or application may be heard and determined in chambers.

Public Examinations.]—An order for a public examination may be made ex parte (Re Trust, etc., Corporation of South Africa (C. A.), (1892) 3 Ch. 332; 62 L. J. Ch. 22); but not until the official receiver has made a report stating that in his opinion a fraud has been committed by some person in the promotion or formation of the company, or by some director or officer of the company in relation to the company since its formation, and the judge has, after consideration of the report, directed the attendance of such person (sect. 175).

On any proceedings subsequently instituted under sect. 215, the verified notes of the examination are subject to all just exceptions admissible against those against whom the application is made, who, under sect. 175 and the judge's order, could take part in the examination if fifteen days' notice at least of the intention to use the notes be given before day of hearing. Every person against whom the application is made, shall be at liberty to cross-examine or re-examine the person whose examination is read (see Rule 70).

County Court Judges as Commissioners.]—County court judges who sit at places more than twenty miles from the General Post Office are commissioners for taking evidence in any winding-up (sect. 226).

Unregistered Companies.]—Part VIII., beginning at sect. 267, deals with the winding-up of unregistered companies.

Limited Partnerships established under the 7 Edw. VII. c. 24, are now treated as ordinary partnerships and fall under the Bankruptcy Act. The Limited Partnership (Winding-up) Rules, made under sect. 268 (1) (VII.) of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, are now obsolete. See post, p. 1996.

Costs.]—In a winding-up by the county court, costs are allowed on the lower scale in Appendix N (see Annual Practice Supreme Court, Appendix N); taxation must be by the registrar in person (Rule 184).

Constitution and Incorporation.

Alteration of objects of company.

9.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this section a company may, by special resolution, alter the provisions of its memorandum with respect to the objects of the company, so far as may be required to enable it—

(a) to carry on its business more economically or more efficiently; or

(b) to attain its main purpose by new or improved means; or

(c) to enlarge or change the local area of its operations; or

(d) to carry on some business which under existing circumstances may conveniently or advantageously be combined with the business of the company (a); or

Note (b).—As to true test of contract ultra vires, see Dundee Harbour Trustees v. Nicol, (1915) A. C. 550; 84 L. J. P. C. 74.

(2) The alteration shall not take effect until and except in so far as it is confirmed on petition by the court.

(3) Before confirming the alteration the court must be satisfied—

(a) that sufficient notice has been given to every holder of debentures of the company, and to any persons or class of persons whose interests will, in the opinion of the court, be affected by the alteration; and claim has been discharged or has determined, or has been secured to the satisfaction of the court : Section 9.

Provided that the court may, in the case of any person or class, for special reasons, dispense with the notice required by this section.

(4) The court may make an order confirming the alteration either wholly or in part, and on such terms and conditions as it thinks fit, and may make such order as to costs as it thinks proper.

(5) The court shall, in exercising its discretion under this section, have regard to the rights and interests of the members of the company or of any class of them, as well as to the rights and interests of the creditors, and may, if it thinks fit, adjourn the proceedings in order that an arrangement may be made to the satisfaction of the court for the purchase of the interests of dissentient members ; and may give such directions and make such orders as it may think expedient for facilitating or carrying into effect any such arrangement : Provided that no part of the capital of the company may be expended in any such purchase.

(6) An office copy of the order confirming the alteration, together with a printed copy of the memorandum as altered, shall, within fifteen days from the date of the order, be delivered by the company to the registrar of companies, and he shall register the same, and shall certify the registration under his hand, and the certificate shall be conclusive evidence that all the requirements of this Act with respect to the alteration and the confirmation thereof have been complied with, and thenceforth the memorandum so altered shall be the memorandum of the company.

The court may by order at any time extend the time for the delivery of documents to the registrar under this section for such period as the court may think proper.

(7) If a company makes default in delivering to the registrar of companies any document required by this section to be delivered to him, the company shall be liable to a fine not exceeding ten pounds for every day during which it is in default.

office of the company, and, except when closed under the provisions of this Act, shall during business hours (subject to such reasonable restrictions as the company in general meeting may impose, so that not less than two hours in each day be allowed for inspection) be open to the inspection of any member gratis, and to the inspection of any other person on payment of one shilling, or such less sum as the company may prescribe, for each inspection.

(2) Any member or other person may require a copy of the register, or of any part thereof, or of the list and summary required by this Act, or any part thereof, on payment of sixpence, or such less sum as the company may prescribe, for every hundred words or fractional part thereof required to be copied.

(3) If any inspection or copy required under this section is refused, the company shall be liable for each refusal to a fine not exceeding two pounds, and to a further fine not exceeding two pounds for every day during which the refusal continues, and every director and manager of the company who knowingly authorises or permits the refusal shall be liable to the like penalty; and, as respects companies registered in England or Ireland, any judge of the High Court, or the judge of the court exercising the stannaries jurisdiction in the case of companies subject to that jurisdiction, may by order compel an immediate inspection of the register.

Power of court to rectify register.

32.—(1) If—

(b) default is made or unnecessary delay takes place in entering on the register the fact of any person having ceased to be a member,

the person aggrieved, or any member of the company, or the company, may apply to the court for rectification of the register.

(2) The application may be made, as respects companies registered in England or Ireland, by motion in the High Court, or by application to a judge of the High Court sitting in chambers, or by application to the judge of the court exercising the stannaries jurisdiction in the case of companies subject to that jurisdiction, and, as respects companies registered in Scotland, by summary petition to the Court of Session, or in such other manner as the said courts may respectively direct; and the court may either refuse the application, or may order rectification of the register, and payment by the company of any damages sustained by any party aggrieved. Section 32.

(3) On any application under this section the court may decide any question relating to the title of any person who is a party to the application to have his name entered in or omitted from the register, whether the question arises between members or alleged members, or between members or alleged members on the one hand and the company on the other hand; and generally may decide any question necessary or expedient to be decided for rectification of the register.

(4) In the case of a company required by this Act to send a list of its members to the registrar of companies, the court, when making an order for rectification of the register, shall by its order direct notice of the rectification to be given to the registrar.

45.—(1) A company limited by shares may, by special resolution confirmed by an order of the court, modify the conditions contained in its memorandum so as to reorganise its share capital, whether by the consolidation of shares of different classes or by the division of its shares into shares of different classes : Reorganisation of share capital.

Provided that no preference or special privilege attached to or belonging to any class of shares shall be interfered with except by a resolution passed by a majority in number of shareholders of that class holding three-fourths of the share capital of that class and confirmed at a meeting of shareholders of that class in the same manner as a special resolution of the company is required to be confirmed, and every resolution so passed shall bind all shareholders of the class.

(2) Where an order is made under this section an office copy thereof shall be filed with the registrar of companies within seven days after the making of the order, or within such further time as the court may allow, and the resolution shall not take effect until such a copy has been so filed.

on any of its shares, cancel any paid-up share capital which is lost or unrepresented by available assets; or

(c) Either with or without extinguishing or reducing liability on any of its shares, pay off any paid-up share capital which is in excess of the wants of the company, and may, if and so far as is necessary, alter its memorandum by reducing the amount of its share capital and of its shares accordingly.

(2) A special resolution under this section is in this Act called a resolution for reducing share capital.

Application to court for confirming order.

47. Where a company has passed and confirmed a resolution for reducing share capital it may apply by petition to the court for an order confirming the reduction.

48. On and from the confirmation by a company of a resolution for reducing share capital, or where the reduction does not involve either the diminution of any liability in respect of unpaid share capital or the payment to any shareholder of any paid-up share capital, then on and from the presentation of the petition for confirming the reduction, the company shall add to its name, until such date as the court may fix, the words "and reduced," as the last words in its name, and those words shall, until that date, be deemed to be part of the name of the company:

Provided that, where the reduction does not involve either the diminution of any liability in respect of unpaid share capital or the payment to any shareholder of any paid-up share capital, the court may, if it thinks expedient, dispense altogether with the addition of the words "and reduced."

Objections by creditors and settlement of list of objecting creditors.

49.—(1) Where the proposed reduction of share capital involves either diminution of liability in respect of unpaid share capital or the payment to any shareholder of any paid-up share capital, and in any other case if the court so directs, every creditor of the company who at the date fixed by the court is entitled to any debt or claim which, if that date were the commencement of the winding-up of the company, would be admissible in proof against the company, shall be entitled to object to the reduction.

(2) The court shall settle a list of creditors so entitled to object, and for that purpose shall ascertain, as far as possible without requiring an application from any creditor, the names of those creditors and the nature and amount of their debts or claims, and may publish notices fixing a day or days within which creditors not entered on the list are to claim to be so entered or are to be excluded from the right of objecting to the reduction.

(3) Where a creditor entered on the list whose debt or claim is not discharged or determined does not consent to the reduction, the court may, if it thinks fit, dispense with the consent of that creditor, on the company securing payment of his debt or claim by appropriating, as the court may direct, the following amount; (that is to say,)—

(i.) If the company admits the full amount of his debt or claim, or, though not admitting it, is willing to provide for it, then the full amount of the debt or claim;

(ii.) If the company does not admit or is not willing to provide for the full amount of the debt or claim, or if the amount is contingent or not ascertained, then an amount fixed by the court after the like inquiry and adjudication as if the company were being wound up by the court.

Order confirming reduction.

50. The court, if satisfied, with respect to every creditor of the company who under this Act is entitled to object to the reduction, that either his consent to the reduction has been obtained or his debt or claim has been discharged or has determined, or has been secured, may make an order confirming the reduction on such terms and conditions as it thinks fit.

As to what is sufficient evidence of consent by debenture holders, see Hydraulic Power and Smelting Co. Ltd., In re, (1914) 2 Ch. 187; 83 L. J. Ch. 753.

51.—(1) The registrar of companies on production to him of an order of the court confirming the reduction of the share capital of a company, and the delivery to him of a copy of the order and of a minute (approved by the court), showing with respect to the share capital of the company, as altered by the order, the amount of the share capital, the number of shares into which it is to be divided, and the amount of each share, and the amount (if any) at the date of the registration deemed to be paid up on each share, shall register the order and minute.

(2) On the registration, and not before, the resolution for reducing share capital as confirmed by the order so registered shall take effect.

(3) Notice of the registration shall be published in such manner as the court may direct.

(4) The registrar shall certify under his hand the registration of the order and minute, and his certificate shall be conclusive evidence that all the requirements of this Act with respect to reduction of share capital have been complied with, and that the share capital of the company is such as is stated in the minute.

Minute to form part of memorandum.

52.—(1) The minute when registered shall be deemed to be substituted for the corresponding part of the memorandum of the company, and shall be valid and alterable as if it had been originally contained therein; and must be embodied in every copy of the memorandum issued after its registration.

Section 52.

(2) If a company makes default in complying with the requirements of this section it shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one pound for each copy in respect of which default is made, and every director and manager of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorises or permits the default shall be liable to the like penalty.

Liability of members in respect of reduced shares.

53. A member of the company, past or present, shall not be liable in respect of any share to any call or contribution exceeding in amount the difference (if any) between the amount paid, or (as the case may be) the reduced amount, if any, which is to be deemed to have been paid, on the share and the amount of the share as fixed by the minute:

Provided that if any creditor, entitled in respect of any debt or claim to object to the reduction of share capital, is, by reason of his ignorance of the proceedings for reduction, or of their nature and effect with respect to his claim, not entered on the list of creditors, and, after the reduction, the company is unable, within the meaning of the provisions of this Act with respect to winding up by the court, to pay the amount of his debt or claim, then—

(i.) every person who was a member of the company at the date of the registration of the order for reduction and minute, shall be liable to contribute for the payment of that debt or claim an amount not exceeding the amount which he would have been liable to contribute if the company had commenced to be wound up on the day before that registration; and

(ii.) if the company is wound up, the court, on the application of any such creditor, and proof of his ignorance as aforesaid may, if it thinks fit, settle accordingly a list of persons so liable to contribute, and make and enforce calls and orders on the contributories settled on the list as if they were ordinary contributories in a winding up.

54. If any director, manager, or officer of the company wilfully conceals the name of any creditor entitled to object to the reduction, or wilfully misrepresents the nature or amount of the debt or claim of any creditor, or if any director or manager of the company aids or abets in or is privy to any such concealment or misrepresentation as aforesaid, every such director, manager, or officer shall be guilty of a misdemeanour.

Section 55.

55. In any case of reduction of share capital, the court may require the company to publish as the court directs the reasons for reduction, or such other information in regard thereto as the court may think expedient with a view to give proper information to the public, and, if the court thinks fit, the causes which led to the reduction.

Publication of reasons for reduction.

56. A company limited by guarantee and registered on or after the first day of January nineteen hundred and one, may, if it has a share capital, and is so authorised by its articles, increase or reduce its share capital in the same manner and subject to the same conditions in and subject to which a company limited by shares may increase or reduce its share capital under the provisions of this Act.

69.—(1) A resolution shall be an extraordinary resolution when it has been passed by a majority of not less than three-fourths of such members entitled to vote as are present in person or by proxy (where proxies are allowed) at a general meeting of which notice specifying the intention to propose the resolution as an extraordinary resolution has been duly given (a).

Note (a).—See MacConnell v. E. Prill & Co., (1916) 2 Ch. 57; 85 L. J. Ch. 674.

(3) At any meeting at which an extraordinary resolution is submitted to be passed or a special resolution is submitted to be passed or confirmed, a declaration of the chairman that the resolution is carried shall, unless a poll is demanded, be conclusive evidence of the fact without proof of the number or proportion of the votes recorded in favour of or against the resolution.

(4) At any meeting at which an extraordinary resolution is submitted to be passed or a special resolution is submitted to be passed or confirmed a poll may be demanded, if demanded by three persons for the time being entitled according to the articles to vote, unless the articles of the company require a demand by such number of such persons, not in any case exceeding five, as may be specified in the articles.

(5) When a poll is demanded in accordance with this section, in computing the majority on the poll reference shall be had to the number of votes to which each member is entitled by the articles of the company.

(6) For the purposes of this section notice of a meeting shall be deemed to be duly given and the meeting to be duly held when the notice is given and the meeting held in manner provided by the articles.

Registration and copies of special resolutions.

(5) If a company makes default in embodying in or annexing to a copy of its articles or in forwarding in print to a member when required by this section a copy of a special resolution, it shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one pound for each copy in respect of which default is made.

(6) Every director and manager of a company who knowingly and wilfully authorises or permits any default by the company in complying with the requirements of this section shall be liable to the like penalty as is imposed by this section on the company for that default.

(b) determining whether or not an application is to be made to the court for the appointment of a committee of inspection to act with the liquidator, and who are to be the members of the committee if appointed.

(2) The court may make any appointment and order required to give effect to any such determination, and, if there is a difference between the determinations of the meetings of the creditors and contributories in respect of any of the matters mentioned in the foregoing provisions of this section, the court shall decide the difference and make such order thereon as the court may think fit.

(3) In case a liquidator is not appointed by the court the official receiver shall be the liquidator of the company.

153. Where in the winding up of a company by the court in England a person other than the official receiver is appointed liquidator he shall give the official receiver such information and such access to and facilities for inspecting the books and documents of the company, and generally such aid as may be requisite for enabling that officer to perform his duties under this Act. Liquidator to give information to official receiver.

154.—(1) Every liquidator of a company which is being wound up by the court in England shall, in such manner and at such times as the Board of Trade, with the concurrence of the Treasury, direct, pay the money received by him to the Companies Liquidation Account at the Bank of England, and the Board shall furnish him with a certificate of receipt of the money so paid: Payments of liquidator in English winding up into bank.

Provided that, if the committee of inspection satisfy the Board of Trade that for the purpose of carrying on the business of the company or of obtaining advances, or for any other reason, it is for the advantage of the creditors or contributories that the liquidator should have an account with any other bank, the Board shall, on the application of the committee of inspection, authorise the liquidator to make his payments into and out of such other bank as the committee may select, and thereupon those payments shall be made in the prescribed manner.

(2) If any such liquidator at any time retains for more than ten

(2) The account shall be in a prescribed form, shall be made in duplicate, and shall be verified by a statutory declaration in the prescribed form.

(3) The Board shall cause the account to be audited and for the purpose of the audit the liquidator shall furnish the Board with such vouchers and information as the Board may require, and the Board may at any time require the production of and inspect any books or accounts kept by the liquidator.

(4) When the account has been audited, one copy thereof shall be filed and kept by the Board, and the other copy shall be filed with the court, and each copy shall be open to the inspection of any creditor, or of any person interested.

(5) The Board shall cause the account when audited or a summary thereof to be printed, and shall send a printed copy of the account or summary by post to every creditor and contributory.

Books to be kept by liquidator in English winding up.

156. Every liquidator of a company which is being wound up by the court in England shall keep, in manner prescribed, proper books in which he shall cause to be made entries or minutes of proceedings at meetings, and of such other matters as may be prescribed, and any creditor or contributory may, subject to the control of the court, personally or by his agent inspect any such books.

Release of liquidators in England.

157.—(1) When the liquidator of a company which is being wound up by the court in England has realised all the property of the company, or so much thereof as can, in his opinion, be realised without needlessly protracting the liquidation, and has distributed a final dividend, if any, to the creditors, and adjusted the rights of the contributories among themselves, and made a final return, if any, to the contributories, or has resigned, or has been removed from his office, the Board of Trade shall, on his application, cause a report on his accounts to be prepared, and, on his complying with all the requirements of the Board, shall take into consideration the report, and any objection which may be urged by any creditor, or contributory, or person interested against the release of the liquidator, and shall either grant or withhold the release accordingly, subject nevertheless to an appeal to the High Court.

(2) Where the release of a liquidator is withheld the court may, on the application of any creditor, or contributory, or person interested, make such order as it thinks just, charging the liquidator with the consequences of any act or default which he may have done or made contrary to his duty.

(3) An order of the Board of Trade releasing the liquidator shall discharge him from all liability in respect of any act done or default made by him in the administration of the affairs of the company, or otherwise in relation to his conduct as liquidator, but any such order may be revoked on proof that it was obtained by fraud or by suppression or concealment of any material fact.

(4) Where the liquidator has not previously resigned or been removed, his release shall operate as a removal of him from his office.

158.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this Act, the liquidator of a company which is being wound up by the court in England shall, in the administration of the assets of the company and in the distribution thereof among its creditors, have regard to any directions that may be given by resolution of the creditors or contributories at any general meeting, or by the committee of inspection, and any directions given by the creditors or contributories at any general meeting shall in case of conflict be deemed to override any directions given by the committee of inspection.

NOTE.—See as to employment of solicitor when the committee of inspection objects, Consolidated Diesel Engine Co., (1915) 1 Ch. 192; 84 L. J. Ch. 325.

(2) The liquidator may summon general meetings of the creditors or contributories for the purpose of ascertaining their wishes, and it shall be his duty to summon meetings at such times as the creditors or contributories, by resolution, either at the meeting appointing the liquidator or otherwise, may direct, or whenever requested in writing to do so by one tenth in value of the creditors or contributories as the case may be.

(3) The liquidator may apply to the court in manner prescribed for directions in relation to any particular matter arising under the winding up.

(4) Subject to the provisions of this Act, the liquidator shall use his own discretion in the management of the estate and its distribution among the creditors.

(5) If any person is aggrieved by any act or decision of the liquidator, that person may apply to the court, and the court may confirm, reverse, or modify the act or decision complained of, and make such order in the premises as it thinks just.

Control of Board of Trade over liquidators in England.

159.—(1) The Board of Trade shall take cognizance of the conduct of liquidators of companies which are being wound up by the court in England, and, if a liquidator does not faithfully perform his duties and duly observe all the requirements imposed on him by statute, rules, or otherwise with respect to the performance of his duties, or if any complaint is made to the Board by any creditor or contributory in regard thereto, the Board shall inquire into the matter, and take such action thereon as they may think expedient.

(2) The Board may at any time require any liquidator of a company which is being wound up by the court in England to answer any inquiry in relation to any winding up in which he is engaged, and may, if the Board think fit, apply to the court to examine him or any other person on oath concerning the winding up.

(3) The Board may also direct a local investigation to be made of the books and vouchers of the liquidator.

160.—(1) A committee of inspection appointed in pursuance of this Act shall consist of creditors and contributories of the company or persons holding general powers of attorney from creditors or contributories in such proportions as may be agreed on by the meetings of creditors and contributories, or as, in case of difference, may be determined by the court.

(2) The committee shall meet at such times as they from time to time appoint, and, failing such appointment, at least once a month; and the liquidator or any member of the committee may also call a meeting of the committee as and when he thinks necessary.

(3) The committee may act by a majority of their members present at a meeting, but shall not act unless a majority of the committee are present.

(4) Any member of the committee may resign by notice in writing signed by him and delivered to the liquidator.

Section 160.

(5) If a member of the committee becomes bankrupt, or compounds or arranges with his creditors, or is absent from five consecutive meetings of the committee without the leave of those members who together with himself represent the creditors or contributories, as the case may be, his office shall thereupon become vacant.

(6) Any member of the committee may be removed by an ordinary resolution at a meeting of creditors (if he represents creditors), or of contributories (if he represents contributories) of which seven days' notice has been given, stating the object of the meeting.

(7) On a vacancy occurring in the committee the liquidator shall forthwith summon a meeting of creditors or of contributories, as the case may require, to fill the vacancy, and the meeting may, by resolution, re-appoint the same or appoint another creditor or contributory to fill the vacancy.

(8) The continuing members of the committee, if not less than two, may act notwithstanding any vacancy in the committee.

(9) If there is no committee of inspection, any act or thing or any direction or permission by this Act authorised or required to be done or given by the committee may be done or given by the Board of Trade on the application of the liquidator.

Power in England to appoint special manager.

161.—(1) Where the official receiver becomes the liquidator of a company, whether provisionally or otherwise, he may, if satisfied that the nature of the estate or business of the company, or the interests of the creditors or contributories generally, require the appointment of a special manager of the estate or business of the company other than himself, apply to the court to, and the court may on such application, appoint a special manager thereof to act during such time as the court may direct, with such powers, including any of the powers of a receiver or manager, as may be entrusted to him by the court.

164. The court may, at any time after making a winding-up order, require any contributory for the time being settled on the list of contributories, and any trustee, receiver, banker, agent, or officer of the company to pay, deliver, convey, surrender, or transfer forthwith, or within such time as the court directs, to the liquidator any money, property, or books and papers in his hands to which the company is primâ facie entitled.

(2) The court in making such an order may, in the case of an unlimited company, allow to the contributory by way of set-off any money due to him or to the estate which he represents from the company on any independent dealing or contract with the company, but not any money due to him as a member of the company in respect of any dividend or profit; and may, in the case of a limited company, make to any director or manager whose liability is unlimited or to his estate the like allowance.

(3) But in the case of any company, whether limited or unlimited, when all the creditors are paid in full, any money due on any account whatever to a contributory from the company may be allowed to him by way of set-off against any subsequent call.

166.—(1) The court may, at any time after making a winding-up order, and either before or after it has ascertained the sufficiency of the assets of the company, make calls on and order payment thereof by all or any of the contributories for the time being settled on the list of the contributories to the extent of their liability, for payment of any money which the court considers necessary to satisfy the debts and liabilities of the company, and the costs, charges, and expenses of winding up, and for the adjustment of the rights of the contributories among themselves.

(2) In making a call the court may take into consideration the probability that some of the contributories may partly or wholly fail to pay the call.

167.—(1) The court may order any contributory, purchaser or other person from whom money is due to the company to pay the same into the Bank of England or any branch thereof to the account of the liquidator instead of to the liquidator, and any such order may be enforced in the same manner as if it had directed payment to the liquidator.

(2) All moneys and securities paid or delivered into the Bank of England or any branch thereof in the event of a winding up by the court shall be subject in all respects to the orders of the court.

(2) All other pertinent matters stated in the order shall be taken to be truly stated as against all persons, and in all proceedings, except proceedings against the real estate of a deceased contributory, in which case the order shall be only primâ facie evidence for the purpose of charging his real estate, unless his heirs or devisees were on the list of contributories at the time of the order being made.

170. The court shall adjust the rights of the contributories among themselves, and distribute any surplus among the persons entitled thereto.

172.—(1) When the affairs of a company have been completely wound up, the court shall make an order that the company be dissolved from the date of the order, and the company shall be dissolved accordingly.

Section 172.

(3) If the liquidator makes default in complying with the requirements of this section he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five pounds for every day during which he is in default.

Delegation to liquidator of certain powers of court in England.

173. General rules may be made for enabling or requiring all or any of the powers and duties conferred and imposed on the court in England by this Act, in respect of the matters following, to be exercised or performed by the liquidator as an officer of the court, and subject to the control of the court; that is to say, the powers and duties of the court in respect of—

Power to summon person suspected of having property of company.

174.—(1) The court may, after it has made a winding-up order, summon before it any officer of the company or person known or suspected to have in his possession any property of the company or supposed to be indebted to the company, or any person whom the court deems capable of giving information concerning the trade, dealings, affairs, or property of the company (a).

(a) This power should only be exercised in very exceptional circumstances (In re Property Insurance Co., (1914) 1 Ch. 775; 83 L. J. Ch. 525).

(2) The court may examine him on oath concerning the same, either by word of mouth or on written interrogatories, and may reduce his answers to writing and require him to sign them.

(3) The court may require him to produce any books and papers in his custody or power relating to the company; but, where he claims any lien on books or papers produced by him, the production shall be without prejudice to that lien, and the court shall have jurisdiction in the winding up to determine all questions relating to that lien.

Section 174.

(4) If any person so summoned, after being tendered a reasonable sum for his expenses, refuses to come before the court at the time appointed, not having a lawful impediment (made known to the court at the time of its sitting, and allowed by it), the court may cause him to be apprehended, and brought before the court for examination.

175.—(1) When an order has been made in England for winding up a company by the court, and the official receiver has made a further report under this Act stating that in his opinion a fraud has been committed by any person in the promotion or formation of the company, or by any director or other officer of the company in relation to the company since its formation, the court may, after consideration of the report, direct that any person who has taken any part in the promotion or formation of the company, or has been a director, or officer of the company, shall attend before the court on a day appointed by the court for that purpose, and be publicly examined as to the promotion or formation or the conduct of the business of the company, or as to his conduct and dealings as director or officer thereof.

(2) The official receiver shall take part in the examination, and for that purpose may, if specially authorised by the Board of Trade in that behalf, employ a solicitor with or without counsel.

(3) The liquidator, where the official receiver is not the liquidator, and any creditor or contributor, may also take part in the examination either personally or by solicitor or counsel.

(4) The court may put such questions to the person examined as the court thinks fit.

(5) The person examined shall be examined on oath, and shall answer all such questions as the court may put or allow to be put to him.

(6) A person ordered to be examined under this section shall at his own cost, before his examination, be furnished with a copy of the official receiver's report, and may at his own cost employ a solicitor with or without counsel, who shall be at liberty to put to him such questions as the court may deem just for the purpose of enabling him to explain or qualify any answers given by him: Provided that if he is, in the opinion of the court, exculpated from any charges made or suggested against him, the court may allow him such costs as in its discretion it may think fit.

(7) Notes of the examination shall be taken down in writing, and shall be read over to or by, and signed by, the person examined, and may thereafter be used in evidence against him, and shall be open to the inspection of any creditor or contributory at all reasonable times.

(8) The court may, if it thinks fit adjourn the examination from time to time.

(9) An examination under this section may, if the court so directs, and subject to general rules, be held before any judge of county courts, or before any officer of the Supreme Court, being an official referee, master, or registrar in bankruptcy, or before any district registrar of the High Court named for the purpose by the Lord Chancellor, or, in the case of companies being wound up by a palatine court, before a registrar of that court, and the powers of the court under this section as to the conduct of the examination, but not as to costs, may be exercised by the person before whom the examination is held.

176. The court, at any time either before or after making a winding-up order, on proof of probable cause for believing that a contributory is about to quit the United Kingdom, or otherwise to abscond, or to remove or conceal any of his property for the purpose of evading payment of calls, or of avoiding examination respecting the affairs of the company, may cause the contributory to be arrested, and his books and papers and moveable personal property to be seized, and him, and them, to be safely kept until such time as the court may order.

Powers of court cumulative.

177. Any powers by this Act conferred on the court shall be in addition to and not in restriction of any existing powers of instituting proceedings against any contributory or debtor of the company, or the estate of any contributory or debtor, for the recovery of any call or other sums.

Enforcement of and Appeal from Orders.

178.—(1) Orders made by the High Court in England or Ireland under this Act may be enforced in the same manner as orders made in any action pending therein.

(2) For the purposes of this part of this Act the court exercising the stannaries jurisdiction shall, in addition to its ordinary powers, have the same power of enforcing any orders made by it as the High Court in England has in relation to matters within its jurisdiction; and, for the last-mentioned purposes, the jurisdiction of the judge of the court exercising the stannaries jurisdiction shall be deemed to be co-extensive in local limits with the jurisdiction of the High Court in England.

181.—(1) Subject to rules of court, an appeal from any order or decision made or given in the winding up of a company by the court under this Act shall lie in the same manner and subject to the same conditions as an appeal from any order or decision of the court in cases within its ordinary jurisdiction. (2) Any creditor or contributory may, within three weeks from the completion of the arrangement, appeal to the court against it, and the court may thereupon, as it thinks just, amend, vary, or confirm the arrangement.

NOTE.—The notice must express dissent and also expressly give the liquidator the option mentioned (In re Demarara Rubber Co., (1913) 1 Ch. 331; 82 L. J. Ch. 220). "Member" includes executors of a deceased member (Llewellyn v. Kasintoe Rubber Estates, Ld., (1915) 2 Ch. 670; 84 L. J. Ch. 70).

(4) If the liquidator elects to purchase the member's interest the purchase money must be paid before the company is dissolved, and be raised by the liquidator in such manner as may be determined by special resolution.

(2) The court, if satisfied that the determination of the question or the required exercise of power will be just and beneficial, may accede wholly or partially to the application on such terms and conditions as the court thinks fit, or may make such other order on the application as the court thinks just.

NOTE.—The costs of unsuccessful litigation are payable to the party entitled out of the assets of company in priority to the costs of the liquidation (In re Pacific Coast Syndicate, Ld., (1913) 2 Ch. 26; 82 L. J. 404).

194.—(1) Where a company is being wound up voluntarily, the liquidator may summon general meetings of the company for the purpose of obtaining the sanction of the company by special or extraordinary resolution, or for any other purposes he may think fit.

(2) In the event of the winding up continuing for more than one year, the liquidator shall summon a general meeting of the company at the end of the first year from the commencement of the winding up, and of each succeeding year, or as soon thereafter as may be convenient, and shall lay before the meeting an account of his acts and dealings and of the conduct of the winding up during the preceding year.

195.—(1) In the case of every voluntary winding up, as soon as the affairs of the company are fully wound up, the liquidator shall make up an account of the winding up, showing how the winding up has been conducted and the property of the company has been disposed of; and thereupon shall call a general meeting of the company for the purpose of laying before it the account, and giving any explanation thereof.

(2) The meeting shall be called by advertisement in the Gazette specifying the time, place, and object thereof, and published one month at least before the meeting.

(3) Within one week after the meeting, the liquidator shall make a return to the registrar of companies of the holding of the meeting, and of its date, and in default of so doing shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five pounds for every day during which the default continues.

(4) The registrar on receiving the return shall forthwith register it, and on the expiration of three months from the registration of the return the company shall be deemed to be dissolved:

Provided that the court may, on the application of the liquidator or of any other person who appears to the court to be interested, make an order deferring the date at which the dissolution of the company is to take effect for such time as the court thinks fit.

(5) It shall be the duty of the person on whose application an

197. The voluntary winding up of a company shall not bar the right of any creditor or contributory to have it wound up by the court, if the court is of opinion, in the case of an application by a creditor, that the rights of the creditor or, in the case of an application by a contributory, that the rights of the contributories will be prejudiced by a voluntary winding up.

Power of court to adopt proceedings of voluntary winding up.

198. Where a company is being wound up voluntarily, and an order is made for winding up by the court, the court may if it thinks fit by the same or any subsequent order provide for the adoption of all or any of the proceedings in the voluntary winding up.

Power to order winding up subject to supervision.

199. When a company has by special or extraordinary resolution resolved to wind up voluntarily, the court may make an order that the voluntary winding up shall continue but subject to such supervision of the court, and with such liberty for creditors, contributories, or others to apply to the court, and generally on such terms and conditions as the court thinks just.

200. A petition for the continuance of a voluntary winding up subject to the supervision of the court shall, for the purpose of giving jurisdiction to the court over actions, be deemed to be a petition for winding up by the court.

201. The court may, in deciding between a winding up by the court and a winding up subject to supervision, in the appointment of liquidators, and in all other matters relating to the winding up subject to supervision, have regard to the wishes of the creditors or contributories as proved to it by any sufficient evidence.

(3) The court may remove any liquidator so appointed by the court or any liquidator continued under the supervision order and fill any vacancy occasioned by the removal, or by death or resignation.

203.—(1) Where an order is made for a winding up subject to supervision, the liquidator may, subject to any restrictions imposed by the court, exercise all his powers, without the sanction or intervention of the court, in the same manner as if the company were being wound up altogether voluntarily. Effect of supervision order.

(2) A winding up subject to the supervision of the court is not a winding up by the court for the purpose of the following provisions of this Act, namely, those contained in sections one hundred and forty-seven, one hundred and forty-eight, one hundred and forty-nine, except sub-section (10), one hundred and fifty-two, one hundred and fifty-three, one hundred and fifty-four, one hundred and fifty-five, one hundred and fifty-six, one hundred and fifty-seven, one hundred and fifty-eight, one hundred and fifty-nine, one hundred and sixty, one hundred and sixty-one, one hundred and sixty-two, one hundred and seventy-three, and one hundred and seventy-five, but, subject as aforesaid, an order for a winding up subject to supervision shall for all purposes, including the staying of actions and other proceedings, the making and enforcement of calls, the power in Scotland to remit the winding up to a permanent Lord Ordinary, and the exercise of all other powers, be deemed to be an order for winding-up by the court.

(2) For the purpose of giving fuller effect to that jurisdiction, all process issuing out of the said court, and all orders, rules, demands, notices, warrants, and summonses required or authorised by the practice of the court to be served on any company, whether registered or not registered, or on any member or contributory thereof, or on any officer, agent, director, manager, or servant thereof, may be served in any part of England without any special order of the judge for that purpose, or by such special order may be served in any part of the British Islands, on such terms and conditions as the court may think fit:

Provided that no such service of process out of the limits of the stannaries in any suit or plaint on the common law side of the court shall be effected without the special order of the judge made on a statement of the nature and object of the suit or plaint.

(3) All decrees, orders, and judgments of the said court may be enforced in the same manner in which decrees, orders, and judgments of the court of the vice-warden of the stannaries could before its abolition have been by law enforced, whether within or beyond the stannaries.

In all other respects the same procedure shall follow the fresh notice as would have followed the original notice.

Rule 152. Attendance at proceedings.

STATEMENT.

1. The amount due in respect of proofs admitted against the company, and the estimated amount of the costs, charges, and expenses of the winding-up, form in the aggregate the sum of £ or thereabouts.

2. The assets of the company are estimated to realise the sum of £ . There are no other assets, except the amounts due from certain of the contributories to the company, and in my opinion it will not be possible to realise in respect of the said amounts more than £ .

3. The list of contributories has been duly settled, and persons have been settled on the list in respect of the total number of shares.

4. For the purpose of satisfying the several debts and liabilities of the company, and of paying the costs, charges, and expenses of the winding-up, I estimate that a sum of £ will be required in addition to the amount of the company's assets herein-before mentioned.

5. In order to provide the said sum of £ it is necessary to make a call on the contributories, and having regard to the probability that some of them will partly or wholly fail to pay the amount of the call, I estimate that for the purpose of realising the amount required it is necessary that a call of £ per share should be made.

Power to make rules.

8. After the passing of this Act the Lord Chancellor may from time to time make, alter, and revoke rules—

(1) For regulating the security (if any) to be required from bailiffs;

(2) For regulating the fees, charges, and expenses in and incidental to distresses; and

58 & 59 VICT. C. 24.

Power to cancel bailiffs' certificates. 51 & 52 Vict. c. 21.

1. A certificate granted to a bailiff by the judge of a county court under the Law of Distress Amendment Act, 1888, may at any time be cancelled or declared void by a judge of that county court, and so much of section 7 of that Act as refers to the cancellation of certificates is hereby repealed.

Penalty for acting without certificate.

2. If any person not holding a certificate for the time being in force under the Law of Distress Amendment Act, 1888, levies a distress contrary to the provisions of that Act, he shall without prejudice to any civil liability be liable on summary conviction to a fine not exceeding 10*l*.

Duration of certificates.

3. The power to make rules under the Law of Distress Amendment Act, 1888, shall extend to making provision for fixing the duration of certificates granted, or to be hereafter granted, to bailiffs.

A distress made by the manager of a company on behalf of the company and without a certificate is illegal (Hogarth v. Jennings (C. A.), (1892) 1 Q. B. 907; 61 L. J. Q. B. 601).

The Acts apply to distresses under the Agricultural Holdings Act, 1883; a general appointment will authorise a bailiff to act in any part of England and Wales (see Re Sanders, (1885) 54 L. J. Q. B. 331; and Rule 4).

If an uncertificated bailiff, in levying a distress, seizes the goods of a third party, the landlord who authorised the distress is liable in damages to the owner (Perring v. Emerson, (1906) 1 K. B. 1; 75 L. J. K. B. 12).

LAW OF DISTRESS AMENDMENT ACT, 1908.

Section 1.

Under tenant, or lodger, if distress levied, to make declaration that immediate tenant has no property in goods distrained.

1. If any superior landlord shall levy, or authorise to be levied, a distress on any furniture, goods, or chattels of—

(a) any under tenant liable to pay by equal instalments not less often than every actual or customary quarter of a year a rent (a) which would return in any whole year the full annual value of the premises or of such part thereof as is comprised in the under tenancy, or

for arrears of rent due to such superior landlord by his immediate tenant, such under tenant, lodger, or other person aforesaid may serve such superior landlord, or the bailiff or other agent employed by him to levy such distress, with a declaration in writing made by such under tenant, lodger, or other person aforesaid, setting forth that such immediate tenant has no right of property or beneficial interest in the furniture, goods, or chattels so distrained or threatened to be distrained upon, and that such furniture, goods, or chattels are the property or in the lawful possession of such under tenant, lodger, or other person aforesaid, and are not goods or live stock to which this Act is expressed not to apply; and also, in the case of an under tenant or lodger, setting forth the amount of rent (if any) then due to his immediate landlord, and the times at which future instalments of rent will become due, and the amount thereof, and containing an undertaking to pay to the superior landlord any rent so due or to become due to the immediate landlord, until the arrears of rent in respect of which the distress was levied or authorised to be levied have been paid off, and to such declaration shall be annexed a correct inventory, subscribed by the under tenant, lodger, or other person aforesaid, of the furniture, goods, and chattels referred to in the declaration; and, if any under tenant, lodger, or other person aforesaid, shall make or subscribe such declaration and inventory knowing the same or either of them to be untrue in any material particular, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanour.

NOTE (a).—The word "rent" here means money, not another or contingent source of profit though it arises from the tenancy (Parsons v. Hambridge, (1916) 33 T. L. R. 117).

Penalty.

2. If any superior landlord, or any bailiff or other agent employed by him, shall, after being served with the before-mentioned declaration and inventory, and in the case of an under tenant or lodger after such undertaking as aforesaid has been given, and the amount of rent (if any) then due has been paid or tendered in accordance with that undertaking, levy or proceed with a distress on the furniture, goods, or chattels of the under tenant, lodger, or other person aforesaid, such superior landlord, bailiff, or other agent shall be deemed guilty of an illegal distress, and the under tenant, lodger, or other person aforesaid, may apply to a justice of the peace for an order for the restoration to him of such goods, and such application shall be heard before a stipendiary magistrate, or before two justices in places where there is no stipendiary magistrate, and such magistrate or justices shall inquire into the truth of such declaration and inventory, and shall make such order for the recovery of the goods or otherwise as to him or them may seem just, and the superior landlord shall also be liable to an action at law at the suit of the under tenant, lodger, or other person aforesaid, in which action the truth of the declaration and inventory may likewise be inquired into.

Payments by under tenant or lodger to superior landlord.

3. For the purposes of the recovery of any sums payable by an under tenant or lodger to a superior landlord under such an undertaking as aforesaid, or under a notice served in accordance with section six of this Act, the under tenant or lodger shall be deemed to be the immediate tenant of the superior landlord, and the sums payable shall be deemed to be rent; but, where the under tenant or lodger has, in pursuance of any such undertaking or notice as aforesaid, paid any sums to the superior landlord, he may deduct the amount thereof from any rent due or which may become due from him to his immediate landlord, and any person (other than the tenant for whose rent the distress is levied or authorised to be levied) from whose rent a deduction has been made in respect of such a payment may make the like

4. This Act shall not apply—

(1) to goods belonging to the husband or wife of the tenant whose rent is in arrear, nor to goods comprised in any bill of sale, hire purchase agreement, or settlement made by such tenant, nor to goods in the possession, order, or disposition of such tenant by the consent and permission of the true owner under such circumstances that such tenant is the reputed owner thereof, nor to any live stock to which section twenty-nine of the Agricultural Holdings Act, 1908, applies; 8 Edw. 7, c. 28.

(2) (a) to goods of a partner of the immediate tenant; (b) to goods (not being goods of a lodger) upon premises where any trade or business is carried on in which both the immediate tenant and the under tenant have an interest; (c) to goods (not being goods of a lodger) on premises used as offices or warehouses where the owner of the goods neglects for one calendar month after notice (which shall be given in like manner as a notice to quit) to remove the goods and vacate the premises; (d) to goods belonging to and in the offices of any company or corporation on premises the immediate tenant whereof is a director or officer, or in the employment of such company or corporation;

Provided that it shall be competent for a stipendiary magistrate, or where there is no stipendiary magistrate for two justices, upon application by the superior landlord or any under tenant or other such person as aforesaid, upon hearing the parties to determine whether any goods are in fact goods covered by sub-section (2) of this section.

5. This Act shall not apply to any under tenant where the under tenancy has been created in breach of any covenant or agreement in writing between the landlord and his immediate tenant, or where the under tenancy has been created under a lease existing at the date of the passing of this Act contrary to the wish of the landlord in that behalf, expressed in writing and delivered at the premises within a reasonable time after the circumstances have come, or with due diligence would have come, to his knowledge.

6. In cases where the rent of the immediate tenant of the superior landlord is in arrear it shall be lawful for such superior

Section 6. landlord to serve upon any under tenant or lodger a notice (by registered post addressed to such under tenant or lodger upon the premises) stating the amount of such arrears of rent, and requiring all future payments of rent, whether the same has already accrued due or not, by such under tenant or lodger to be made direct to the superior landlord giving such notice until such arrears shall have been duly paid, and such notice shall operate to transfer to the superior landlord the right to recover, receive, and give a discharge for such rent.

Commencement of Act. 7. This Act shall come into operation on the first day of July one thousand nine hundred and nine.

Repeal of 34 & 35 Vict. c. 79. 8. The Lodgers' Goods Protection Act, 1871, shall, wherever and so far as this Act applies, be repealed as from the commencement of this Act.

Definitions. 9. In this Act the words "superior landlord" shall be deemed to include a landlord in cases where the goods seized are not those of an under tenant or lodger; and the words "tenant" and "under tenant" do not include a lodger.

Act not to extend to Scotland. 10. This Act shall not extend to Scotland and shall only apply in Ireland to a rent issuing out of lands or tenements situate wholly within the boundaries of a municipality or of a township having town commissioners.

Short title. 11. This Act may be cited as the Law of Distress Amendment Act, 1908.

[62 & 63 VICT. c. 19.]

[38 & 39 VICT. c. 90.]

Jurisdiction.]—In any proceeding before the county court in relation to any dispute between an employer and a workman (as defined by sect. 10) arising out of their relationship as such, the court may, in addition to any other jurisdiction, exercise all or any of the powers given by sect. 3 of the Act. But although the court may adjust and set off claims, there is no obligation on either party to bring them forward, and they may be dealt with in separate proceedings (Hindly v. Haslam, (1878) 3 Q. B. D. 481; see Stanton v. Styles, (1850) 5 Ex. 578; 19 L. J. Ex. 336; Jones v. Jones, (1874) 22 W. R. 577).

Practice will follow the ordinary procedure commenced by plaint and summons.

An employer whose workman absents himself from work may treat the contract of service as broken, or as subsisting and claim damages, but he cannot suspend the workman from work by way of penalty (Hanley v. Pease, (1915) 1 K. B. 698; 84 L. J. K. B. 532).

Power of county court as to ordering payment of money, set-off, and rescission of contract and taking security.

3. In any proceeding before a county court in relation to any dispute between an employer and a workman arising out of or incidental to their relation as such (which dispute is hereinafter referred to as a dispute under this Act) the court may, in addition to any jurisdiction it might have exercised if this Act had not passed, exercise all or any of the following powers; that is to say,

(1) It may adjust and set off the one against the other all such claims on the part either of the employer or of the workman arising out of or incidental to the relations between them, as the court may find to be subsisting, whether such claims are liquidated or unliquidated, and are for wages, damages, or otherwise; and,

(2) If, having regard to all the circumstances of the case, it thinks it just to do so, it may rescind any contract between the employer and the workman upon such terms as to the apportionment of wages or other sums due thereunder, and as to the payment of wages or damages, or other sums due, as it thinks just; and,

(3) Where the court might otherwise award damages for any breach of contract it may, if the defendant be willing to give security to the satisfaction of the court for the performance by him of so much of his contract as remains unperformed, with the consent of the plaintiff, accept such security, and order performance of the contract accordingly, in place either of the whole of the damages which would otherwise have been awarded, or some part of such damages.

The security shall be an undertaking by the defendant and one or more surety or sureties that the defendant will perform his contract, subject on non-performance to the payment of a sum to be specified in the undertaking.

Any sum paid by a surety on behalf of a defendant in respect of a security under this Act, together with all costs incurred by such surety in respect of such security, shall be deemed to be a debt due to him from the defendant; and where such security has been given in or under the direction of a court of summary jurisdiction, that court may order payment to the surety of the sum which has so become due to him from the defendant.

8. A person may give security under this Act in a county court or court of summary jurisdiction by an oral or written acknowledgment in or under the direction of the court of the undertaking or condition by which and the sum for which he is bound, in such manner and form as may be prescribed by any rule for the time being in force, and in any case where security is so given, the court in or under the direction of which it is given may order payment of any sum which may become due in pursuance of such security. Section 8.

The Lord Chancellor may at any time after the passing of this Act, and from time to time make, and when made, rescind, alter, and add to, rules with respect to giving security under this Act.

10. In this Act— Definitions.

The expression "workman" does not include a domestic or menial servant, but, save as aforesaid, means any person who, being a labourer, servant in husbandry, journeyman, artificer, handicraftsman, miner, or otherwise engaged in manual labour, whether under the age of twenty-one years or above that age, has entered into or works under a contract with an employer, whether the contract be made before or after the passing of this Act, be express or implied, oral or in writing, and be a contract of service or a contract personally to execute any work or labour. "Workman."

See Squire v. Midland Lace Co., (1905) 2 K. B. 448; 74 L. J. K. B. 614. See as to meaning of "workman" cases under Employers' Liability Act, 1880, Part 4.

11. In the case of a child, young person, or woman subject to the provisions of the Factory Acts, 1833 to 1874, any forfeiture on the ground of absence or leaving work shall not be deducted from or set off against a claim for wages or other sum due for work done before such absence or leaving work, except to the amount of the damage (if any) which the employer may have sustained by reason of such absence or leaving work. Set-off in case of factory workers.

By sect. 66 of this Act one of the principal secretaries of state is empowered to appoint a county court judge, or such person as is named in the Act, to make, with the assistance of a government inspector or other assessor as a court, a formal investigation in cases of serious explosions. The inquiry is to be made in open court, and the court has all the powers of a court of summary jurisdiction, as well as special powers in regard to the enforcing of the attendance of witnesses, production of documents, and other matters; it also has power to enter and inspect any place or building.

The court holding an investigation into any accident under this section shall make a report to the Secretary of State.

EXTRAORDINARY TITHE REDEMPTION ACT, 1886.

(As amended by 60 & 61 Vict. c. 23).

After the passing of this Act, no extraordinary tithe was to be charged or levied, but provision was made for ascertaining the capital value (sect. 3) of the said charge, and by sect. 4, interest at 4 per centum was to be paid on such capital value until redemption, half yearly, on the days on which the extraordinary charge had hitherto been payable.

Jurisdiction by sect. 4 is given to recover in the High Court or the county court any instalment of the rentcharge by action.

Practice will be the ordinary procedure by plaint and summons brought in the court within the district of which the defendant resides or carries on business.

Interest on capitalised value of extraordinary charge to be until redemption first charge on land.

4.—(1) Subject to the provisions of this Act with respect to the redemption of charges, land in respect of which at the date of the passing of this Act extraordinary charge is payable shall, so soon as the capital value of the said charge shall have been certified under the provisions of this Act, be charged with the payment of an annual rentcharge equal to four per centum on such capital value, in lieu of the extraordinary charge which shall cease on the half-yearly day of payment thereof which shall immediately precede the date of the said certificate, such rentcharge to be a charge upon the particular farm or parcel of land in respect of which the same has been assessed.

(2) Provided that the commissioners may from time to time, if they think fit, on application by or on behalf of any person interested in land so charged, by order under their seal exonerate from the charge the whole or any part of that land, and may, if necessary, substitute other land for the land so exonerated, provided that the value of the land charged with the payment of the rentcharge shall be in their opinion equal to at least three times the capital value of the rentcharge and that such land is held under the same title, and subject to the same limitations as the land so exonerated.

(3) The rentcharge shall be payable half-yearly on the days on which the extraordinary charge in the parish has hitherto been payable, and the first payment thereof shall be made on the one of the said two days which shall first occur after the capital value shall have been certified as aforesaid, the first payment to be a full half-yearly payment. The rentcharge shall have priority over all existing and future estates, interests, and incumbrances whatever.

(4) The rentcharge shall be payable to the person who would but for this Act have been for the time being entitled to receive the extraordinary charge, and shall be held on the trusts and subject to the provisions and conditions (if any) applicable to that charge.

(5) If default is made in payment of any instalment of the rentcharge it may be recovered by action in Her Majesty's High Court of Justice, or a county court, or in the same way that rentcharge in lieu of ordinary tithe is recoverable and subject to like conditions, or by entry upon and perception of the rents and profits of the land subject to such rentcharge. The said rentcharge shall not be subject to any parochial, county, or other rate, charge, or assessment.

THE FACTORY AND WORKSHOP ACT, 1901.

[1 Edw. VII. c. 22.]

Jurisdiction of the county court is founded on sect. 14, sub-s. 4, and is exclusive. This section, sect. 14, makes provision for factories being provided with adequate means of escape in case of fire. The jurisdiction of the county court is, as between the owner and occupier of the factory, to decide who should bear this expense, or the proportions in which it should be borne between them.

Practice is governed by Order L., rule 34, below.

Provision of means of escape in case of fire.

14.—(1) Every factory of which the construction was not commenced on or before the first day of January one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two, and in which more than forty persons are employed, and every workshop of which the construction was not commenced before the first day of January one thousand eight hundred and ninety-six, and in which more than forty persons are employed, must be furnished with a certificate from the district council of the district in which the factory or workshop is situate that the factory or workshop is provided with such means of escape in case of fire for the persons employed therein as can reasonably be required under the circumstances of each case, and if the factory or workshop is not so furnished it shall be deemed not to be kept in conformity with this Act; and it shall be the duty of the council to examine every such factory and workshop, and, on being satisfied that the factory or workshop is so provided, to give such a certificate as aforesaid. The certificate must specify in detail the means of escape so provided.

(2) With respect to all factories and workshops to which the foregoing provisions of this section do not apply, and in which more than forty persons are employed, it shall be the duty of the district council of every district from time to time to ascertain whether all such factories and workshops within their district are provided with such means of escape as aforesaid, and, in the case of any factory or workshop which is not so provided, to serve on the owner of the factory or workshop a notice in writing specifying the measures necessary for providing such means of escape as aforesaid, and requiring him to carry them out before a specified date, and thereupon the owner shall, notwithstanding any agreement with the occupier, have power to take such steps as are necessary for complying with the requirements, and unless the requirements are complied with, the owner shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one pound for every day that the non-compliance continues.

(3) In case of a difference of opinion between the owner of the factory or workshop and the council under the last foregoing subsection, the difference shall, on the application of either party, to be made within one month after the time when the difference arises, be referred to arbitration, and thereupon the provisions of the first schedule to this Act shall have effect, and the award on the arbitration shall be binding on the parties thereto, and the notice of the council shall be discharged, amended, or confirmed in accordance with the award.

(4) If the owner alleges that the occupier of the factory or workshop ought to bear or contribute to the expenses of complying with the requirement, he may apply to the county court having jurisdiction where the factory or workshop is situate, and thereupon the county court, after hearing the occupier, may make such order as appears to the court just and equitable under all the circumstances of the case.

[The residue of the section does not concern county court jurisdiction.]

The same words in sect. 7, sub-s. 2, of the 1891 Act have been held to give the county court jurisdiction, whatever may be the legal effect of the covenants, to apportion the expenses as between the owner and occupier as may seem just and equitable under all the circumstances of the case (Monk v. Arnold, (1902) 1 K. B. 761; 71 L. J. K. B. 441). Where the tenant covenants to pay "all parliamentary, parochial and other rates, assessments and impositions which may be imposed during the term," the landlord's remedy is restricted to a proceeding in the county court under this section, and he cannot sue in the High Court on the covenant (Horner v. Franklin (C. A.), (1905) 1 K. B. 479; 74 L. J. K. B. 291; impliedly overruling Shephard v. Barber, (1903) 67 J. P. 239).

The following rule of practice has been made:—

COUNTY COURT RULES. ORDER L., RULE 34.

Application under 1 Edw. VII. c. 22, s. 14, sub-s. 4.

An application to the court under sect. 14, sub-sect. 4, of the Factory and Workshop Act, 1901, shall be made by action commenced by plaint and summons in the ordinary way. Particulars of demand shall be filed with every such application, stating concisely the relief or order which the plaintiff claims. Order 50.

FINANCE ACTS, 1894 AND 1896.

Jurisdiction.]—The sole effect, so far as county courts are concerned, of the 1896 Act is by sect. 22 to add to sect. 10, sub-s. 5 of the 1894 Act a proviso giving, as of right, an appeal from the county court to the Court of Appeal under this section.

By sect. 10 of the 1894 Act, an appeal is given from the Commissioners to the county court for the county or place where the appellant resides, or the property is situate, in cases where the value of the property in respect of which the dispute arises, is alleged by the Commissioners not to exceed 10,000*l.*

By sect. 14 of the same Act, any dispute as to the proportion of estate duty to be borne by any property or person may, where the amount is less than 50*l.*, be determined by the county court for the county or place where the person who is authorised or required to pay the estate duty under the circumstances mentioned in sect. 14, sub-s. 1 resides, or the property in respect of which the duty has been paid is situate.

Practice.]—Any person who desires to appeal under sect. 10, sub-s. 5 must within one month from the date of the notification to him or his solicitor of the decision or claim of the Commissioners, deliver to them a written statement of the grounds of such appeal as provided by Order XLII. r. 2. By Rule 3 the Commissioners must deliver their reply within one month; if the Commissioners maintain their decision or claim in whole or in part, within one month from the date of the notification of such determination by the Commissioners, the appellant may proceed by filing a petition (see as to the proceedings, Order XLII. rr. 1—11, post), p. 2027.

As to proceedings to determine a dispute under sect. 14, see Order XLII. r. 12, post, p. 2028.

Appeal.]—The appeal from the county court under sect. 10, sub-s. 5 is direct to the Court of Appeal, but that does not seem to apply to sect. 14; the appeal as to matters under sect. 14 will be according to sect. 120 of the County Courts Act, 1888 (see p. 123). See Acts of 1910 and 1912, post, pp. 2028—2033.
